LABOR CHIEFS START NATIONAL CAMPAIGN FOR DAVIS'S ELECTION

Representatives of 44 Leaders Tell Nominee Fight Will Be Carried to Every Union.

MAJ. BERRY DIRECTS MOVE

CANDIDATE OFF FOR INDIANA

But Before He Goes Leaders of Five Boroughs Pledge Aid and Discuss City Plans.

Before departing on his second invasion of the Middle West, John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President, received a visit yesterday afternoon from a delegation of labor leaders, who notified him of the organization of the National Democratic Labor Committee in behalf of his candidacy.

The labor leaders, all affiliated with the American Federation, told Mr. Davis that they intended to carry on a nationwide campaign for him among all the unions in the Federation, and that they represented as many if not more votes than La Follette had in the Federation.

This announcement was regarded at Democratic national headquarters in the Hotel Belmont as one of the best pieces of news Mr. Davis had received in some time. It was also considered a strong blow at the La Follette-Wheeler candidacy in showing that Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and the Executive Council of the Federation could not deliver the labor vote to the third party ticket.

Following the decision of the Building Trades Council of New York and Long Island to support Davis the formation of the committee was looked upon as a telling repudiation of the action of the Executive Council of the Federation in endorsing La Follette and Wheeler in the Atlantic City meeting.

Major Berry Heads Delegation.

The delegation that called on Mr. Davis included twelve men. They were headed by Major George L. Berry, President of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America, who was a candidate for the nomination for Vice President at the Democratic National Convention. P. J. Morrin, President of the International Association of Iron and Structural Steel Workers, and John J. Dowd, Vice President of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Helpers, were in the delegation.

Major Berry and his associates informed Mr. Davis that the delegation had been sent to call on him by a meeting of forty-four labor leaders at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria. The Waldorf meeting, they went on, had decided to organize the national committee and to open headquarters, probably at the Waldorf. Major Berry had been chosen Chairman of the Campaign Committee, Mr. Morrin Vice Chairman and Mr. Dowd Secretary.

The labor men said they would conduct an intensive campaign among organized labor men to offset the influence of the La Follette-Wheeler endorsement by the Executive Council of the Federation. Members of the committee, they said, would be placed in all the big unions belonging to or affiliated with the American Federation.

Secrecy Cloaks Conference.

Both labor leaders and members of Mr. Davis's entourage were secretive about the conference. It was announced that the Labor Committee intended to withhold until Monday a formal statement of its plans and its reasons for supporting Davis instead of La Follette.

"All I can say now," Major Berry told reporters, "is that we will have a national organization set up and functioning at an early date. It will represent many thousands of labor votes, as many, if not more, than the votes represented by those within the American Federation of Labor who are supporting the La Follette-Wheeler ticket. We represent unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and we will set up a national committee to support the candidacy of John W. Davis."

Following this meeting with the labor leaders, Mr. Davis held a long conference with the five Democratic leaders from the five counties in Greater New York—former George W. Olvany, New York County (leader of Tammany Hall); Sheriff Edward J. Flynn, Bronx; John H. McCooey, Kings (Brooklyn); Mason O. Smedley, Queens, and Thomas F. McGinley, Richmond (Staten Island).

Besides pledging their support to Mr. Davis, these leaders discussed plans for the candidate's speaking engagements in New York City during the last week of the campaign. They later conferred on the same subject with Thomas J. Spellacy, Eastern campaign manager. Judge Olvany said the arrangements were satisfactory to himself and the other local leaders. He said they called for at least two speeches by Mr. Davis in Manhattan and at least one speech in each of the other boroughs. The formal schedule is to be announced later. The New York speeches will wind up the campaign.

Both the labor and local conferences were regarded at Democratic headquarters as developments of far-reaching importance to Mr. Davis's campaign. It was pointed out that this was the first time, in the recollection of anybody at headquarters that the leader of Tammany Hall and his associate leaders from the other counties in New

MONTANA TROUBLES ALL PARTY LEADERS

Neither Republicans, Democrats Nor Progressives Are Certain of Winning.

THREE BATTLES IN ONE

RESULT OF EACH IN DOUBT

Ku Klux Klan Is the Dominant Issue in the Walsh-Linderman Fight for Senator.

Special to The New York Times.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 10.—If the Republicans carry Montana for Coolidge and Dawes they will owe their victory to the vote of the conservative business man, the wool growers and other direct beneficiaries of the Fordney-McCumber Tariff law and the wholehearted support of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, it is asserted by political observers here. In Montana, as in Oklahoma and Colorado, the Republicans have nominated for the United States Senate a man whose Klan sympathies are admitted in the head councils of the party.

However, the Republicans have not won Montana yet, and they admit that Senator La Follette is going to give them the run of their life for the four electoral votes of this State. Four year ago Mr. Harding won Montana with 40,000 votes to spare. This year, the Republicans say, they will be delighted if they can hold the State with a plurality one-fourth of that. The Democrats concede that the odds are against Mr. Davis and that, as matters now stand, Mr. La Follette has the inside track. It is generally conceded that if La Follette gets 20 per cent. of the farm vote he probably will have the State by from 5,000 to 10,000 plurality.

There are three district political battles raging in Montana. One involves the Presidency, another the United States Senate and the third the Governorship. The first are interwoven, but the last is an independent affair.

The public pronouncements of the Republican and Democratic State Committees do not accurately disclose the situation in Montana. Privately the leaders of each of the old parties admit that the La Follette obstacle is a barrier of the first magnitude. That barrier is the combined vote of the United Mine Workers of America, the Railway Brotherhoods and the labor unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Third Ticket a Menace.

This vote is approximately one-third the total vote of the State, and all of these organizations have endorsed the man from Wisconsin. It it holds to the last—and as yet there is no sign of a serious break anywhere—it does not take much of a mathematician to figure out what a menacing force the Third Party movement in Montana is this year.

The precariousness of the Presidential outlook, so far as it concerns Coolidge and Dawes, is disclosed by the fact that O. M. Lanstrum, Republican National Committeeman, and W. E. Dowlin, Chairman of the State Central Committee, are in Chicago today appealing for more funds to save the State for Coolidge and Dawes and for Frank Linderman, the Klan-endorsed candidate for the Senate, according to a man high in the managerial councils of the party.

As in practically every Rocky Mountain State, the Republicans have eliminated John W. Davis from consideration. They say the fight involves only Coolidge and La Follette, and at least one Republican State Chairman has written the National Committee protesting against the failure of that body to fully estimate the power of Senator La Follette in this mountain country. In that letter the National Committee was asked to stop sending anti-Davis literature, but to send all the literature and everything else that could be used to halt the La Follette drift. This State Chairman told the committee that his views also were those of the other Mountain State Chairmen.

As in Idaho, Colorado and other Mountain States, the Republicans are trying to make the tariff the controlling issue. They are preaching that the rise in the price of wheat is due to the tariff, that the prosperity of the wool growers and the sugar beet farmers is due to the same thing, and, in fact, that everything the farmer produces, from grain to eggs, would be selling today at a minimum but for the beneficent effect of the high tariff enacted by the Republicans. They are telling the farmers that a Republican defeat will mean dollar wheat, big importations of Danish butter and Chinese eggs, the collapse of the wool market and the dominance of the American sugar market by foreign interests.

This campaign is making headway, but since everybody out here wears clothes and eats bread, the Democrats and La Follette managers insist that it will not succeed to the extent hoped for by the Republican organization.

Count on Farmers' Votes.

Republicans are counting on the support of thousands of farmers who, it is admitted, probably would have voted for La Follette a year ago. They know they will get the solid Republican organization vote, and they say 50 per cent. of the conservative Democrats will vote for Coolidge and Dawes rather than take a chance of the election going into Congress, where Bryan would have a chance of being elected. They also are counting on the practically solid vote of the Ku Klux Klan, which has a voting membership in this State variously estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000.

On the other hand, La Follette managers claim the solid vote of the miners, estimated at from 25,000 to 30,000. They also claim the solid railway brotherhood vote, running from 12,000 to 15,000, and, finally, there is the vote of the American Federation of Labor, expected to total approximately 10,000. If these voters stand "pitched" to the end, this apparently would give La Follette a 30,000 nest egg, and as the State vote is not expected to exceed 200,000, all parties admit it might swing the State.

La Follette leaders also are claiming a fair cent. of the farm vote, but this is pure guess, unjustified. The Republicans say the third ticket will not get more than 5 per cent. of this vote under any circumstances. The Democrats, however, concede the third party a minimum of 15 per cent. of the farmers. In either case, this may be enough, provided [illegible] as said.

The Democratic State organization is working day and night to save the situation for Davis and Bryan, but the leaders admit the outlook is not so rosy as they would like it to be. One said: "We have not given up the fight by a long shot," said Chairman Stout of the Democratic State Committee. "I am confident that Mr. Davis is gaining ground. Whether or not he can garner enough votes between now and election day to win, the State is, to my mind, doubtful. Honesty compels that admission on my part.

"No man in touch with the situation, Republican or Democratic, will dispute the seriousness of the La Follette movement in Montana. La Follette is going to poll a great vote, and there is no question that he has a chance to carry the State. Personally, I am convinced he has a better chance than Coolidge, and a lot of Republicans agree with me."

Gives Coolidge a Small Plurality.

Joseph Scanlan, Acting Chairman of the Republican State Committee, gave it as his opinion that Coolidge would win, but admitted that he was not entertaining any hope that the Harding landslide of 1920 would be repeated. He said a plurality of 15,000, which is 25,000 less than the 1920 margin, would be a big victory. He expects the Republicans to capture at least 75 per cent. of the conservative Democratic vote and this, with the wheat and sugar beet farmers, who, he believes, will return to the fold, will give Montana to Coolidge and Dawes, he asserts.

Due to the fact that Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the Teapot Dome investigator, is a member of the Roman Catholic Church, the religious issue is a dominating factor in the contest for Mr. Walsh's seat in the Senate. The Ku Klux Klan, which is supporting Mr. Linderman, the Republican candidate, is exerting every influence it can to bring about the defeat of Senator Walsh. The Republicans admit that Mr. Linderman, who is a poet and a Flathead Lake hotel keeper, won the nomination mainly because of Klan support. Without that support, they say, he would have lost the nomination to ex-Attorney General Rankin.

For years Mr. Linderman has been known in Montana as intensely anti-Catholic. It is charged, and the Republican committee admits, that he was a power in the old A. P. A. organization, and they say they don't know whether he is a member of the Klan or not.

"We are morally certain," said Chairman Stout of the Democratic Committee, "that Mr. Linderman is a member of the Ku Klux Klan. We know that he was a member of the A. P. A. He ran in the primary as the Klan candidate, and as such was nominated, and as such he is today being enthusiastically supported by the National and State Republican organizations. Twenty years ago he was elected a member of the Legislature and he was pledged to vote for Thomas Carter for the United States Senate. However, he refused on religious grounds to support Mr. Carter. Mr. Carter was a Roman Catholic.

Religious Issue Dominant.

"In the race between Senator Walsh and Mr. Linderman the only issue is religion. The bringing in of that issue is Linderman's one and only hope. However, it has helped Walsh more than it has hurt him. Despite the great strength of the Klan in certain parts of the State, this is not a State in which the issue of religious bigotry can make any great headway. It means thousands of Republican votes for Senator Walsh, and I am as certain as I can be of anything that Senator Walsh will win by a handsome majority."

At Republican State headquarters Acting Chairman Scanlan was asked if he could say whether Mr. Linderman was a member of the Klan.

"I don't know whether he is or not," Mr. Scanlan replied.

The Republican National organization is giving Mr. Linderman its wholehearted support. The National Committee is sending its money contributions direct to Mr. Linderman.

Mr. Linderman is the third Klan candidate for the United States Senate in States west of the Mississippi who is carrying the Republican banner. The others are W. B. Pine, in Oklahoma, and Rice Means, in Colorado. Senator Phipps, running for re-election in Colorado, though not a member of the Klan, has the support of the Invisible Empire.

Most of the organizations supporting the La Follette-Wheeler ticket have endorsed Senator Walsh. J. W. Anderson is running as a Farmer-Labor candidate, but he is not a real contender. Senator La Follette has written his representatives in Montana that he wants his supporters to stand by Mr. Walsh.

The Republican candidate for Governor is Governor Joseph M. Dixon, who was the National Bull Moose Chairman in 1912, and the Democratic nominee is Judge J. E. Erickson. Frank J. Edwards is the Farmer-Labor candidate.

The Dixon managers charge that Judge Erickson is a candidate for the big copper interests. On the other hand, it is asserted that Governor Dixon is giving only half-hearted support to Coolidge and Dawes, and at heart is for La Follette. Party lines have practically disappeared in this battle, which is between Dixon and Erickson. As to the outcome, one guess sems to be as good as another.

EXPECT LIGGETT PAYMENTS.

Friends Say Drug Man Will Take Up $1,200,000 Loan.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Louis K. Liggett, head of a drug store chain, is reported to be out of the financial woods and prepared to take up the $1,200,000 loyalty fund certificates which his friends bought in 1921 to tide him over difficulties.

The statement has been made that payment of 100 cents on the dollar for these certificates will start on Nov. 1.

LA FOLLETTE TELLS HIS FOREIGN POLICY

PROPOSES OPEN DIPLOMACY

Senator Declares He Would Menace No Other Country and Give Filipinos Independence.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 10.—Senator La Follette devoted practically his entire speech tonight at Music Hall to an outline of the foreign policy of the Progressives. He declared that his was a policy of cooperation with other nations to end conscription, for disarmament, and for the release of subject peoples. He would "end all secret diplomacy, end all profit from war, and in the event of a defensive war he would pay for war as we go" and "leave no heritage of debt on subsequent generations."

Eight thousand men and women heard Senator La Follette. Five thousand crowded into Music Hall and 3,000 listened in front of the hall, where amplifiers carried his voice to the outermost edge of the crowd.

Admission was not charged to this meeting as to the one held last night in Detroit, but a collection was taken. At the suggestion of Mr. La Follette at least half the seats at all future meetings will be free, so that poverty may not prevent those who wish from hearing his message.

Asserting that he was not an advocate of "peace at any price," Senator La Follette said he would repel invasion or the aggressive acts of any power "that would seize our territory or imperil our national life or institutions."

In his address in a community which has a large German element, Mr. La Follette gave it as his opinion that "secret treaties" and "crooked diplomacy" were responsible for the World War, and that it was "not a war of unprovoked aggression by one nation."

"It was a war which had its birth in secret diplomacy, in national fears kept alive by military castes, and, most of all, by private munition makers and a capitalistic press in all of the great powers," he added.

After remarking that the diplomacy of the last four years "may involve us in another war," the speaker enumerated the principles, which he said the Progressives would invoke to end war "and at the same time to make permanent our liberties at home."

Attacks Secret Diplomacy.

The Senator attacked secret diplomacy and said that, in effect, it made it possible for the State Department "to involve us in commitments and obligations, in acts of aggression and in entanglements which involve the honor of the nation." War, he added, became an accomplished fact "before the nation was aware of even the possibility of such a contingency."

Senator La Follette criticized the State Department, which, he asserted, had adopted the diplomatic secrecy of Europe.

"Even the United States Senate is not advised of its acts," he continued. "When a demand is made from the Senate for information regarding relations with foreign Governments, the stereotyped refusal of the State Department is, 'It is incompatible with the public interest that such information should be published.' So sacred is this secrecy in foreign relations that a President may involve 116,000,000 people in a foreign war without the consent of Congress and in defiance of the will of the American people.

"We would bring all diplomacy out into the open. We would publish our engagements, if such there were, with foreign nations. In carrying out our pledge for the democratic control of foreign policy we would at all times keep Congress fully advised and concede to it its constitutional share in the conduct of foreign relations."

The second plank in his foreign policy was summed up in the sentence, "We will end profit in war." Ending the expectations of profits from war, he said, would end "the hysteria, the activity of fearmongers and the promotion of international rivalries in armaments."

The Senator's third plank called for a "pay-as-you-go policy" in the event of a defensive war.

"If war is forced upon us, we shall leave no heritage of debt on subsequent generations," he declared. "We shall pay for war as we go. We shall not permit your Government again to force billions of war securities onto the workers, the farmers and the poor, with guarantees that they should always be worth the dollars that bought them and then permit a conspiracy of the bankers to hammer down the value of such Liberty bonds and shake out millions of patriotic investors in the interest of the making syndicates which acquired them at their depreciated value and then raised their value to par."

Promises No Annexation of Territory.

No annexation of the territory of any other nation was the fourth plank enunciated by Senator La Follette.

"We will not menace the integrity of Mexico," he said. "We will withdraw our marines from Haiti, from Santo Domingo and from the Central American States. We will not join in the dismemberment of China or seek to coerce China, or any other dependent people, to permit us to share with other powers in their spoliation.

"We will give self-government to the Philippines, thus fulfilling the solemn promises of our Congress."

The Senator's fifth plank called for a referendum on war, "except in case of emergency arising from armed invasion, an emergency which I cannot conceive to arise.

"We will make no war until those who are to offer their lives and who are to make the sacrifices vote their approval of war," he added. "Such a war would not require the subversion of the Constitution, the trampling under foot of civil liberties, and the denial of the rights of free opinions."

"We will seek the whole-hearted cooperation of the nations of the world to reduce armaments to a defensive basis," is the sixth plank.

Coming to the seventh plank, to which he invited close attention, Senator La Follette discussed "dollar diplomacy," "financial imperialism" and "the doctrine that the flag follows the investor." In the latter doctrine, he asserted, was to be found the explanation of almost every war of the last generation.

America had become the credit reservoir of the world, he said, and since the war eight billions of dollars had been invested abroad. The speaker said:

"It has gone to Europe and Asia, to Africa and to South and Central America. J. P. Morgan & Co. has become the dictator of the destiny of a great part of Europe. It fixes the terms upon which Governments may endure. It determines whether Ministries shall rise or fall. It dictates the terms of peace, and holds the fate of European democracy in its hands.

Assails "the Bankers' Doctrine."

"The doctrine that the flag follows the investor is a bankers' doctrine. It was conceived in the British Foreign Office seventy years ago. It was this wicked doctrine that destroyed the liberties of a great part of the world. It led to the bombardment of Alexandria and the invasion of Egypt. It made Tunis, Algiers and Morocco subject to France. It laid its hands on all of Africa. It inspired the Boeer war. It lay back of the conflict over the Bagdad Railway and the conquest of the Mediterranean.

"Dollar diplomacy, financial imperialism, the doctrine that the flag follows the investor, is responsible for the great war itself."

He denounced the Treaty of Versailles as "a treaty of financial imperialists, of exploiters, of bankers, of oil monopolists, who sought through mandates to sanctify and make permanent a redistribution of the spoils of the world and to cement forever the stranglehold of the power of gold on the defenseless peoples of the earth."

"The Progressives propose to end financial imperialism," Senator La Follette declared. "They will divorce the State Department from imperialistic financial agencies. They will repudiate the doctrine that the American flag shall follow the investor. American youth shall no longer be sent to the tropics, to Mexico, to Santo Domingo, or Haiti. They shall not be used in Europe or in other continents as a collection agency for private debts.

"This is the foreign policy of the Progressives. It is a policy of avowed peace to the world. It is a policy of non-aggression. It is a policy of cooperation with other nations for the ending of conscription, for disarmament, for the release of subject peoples. It is a conservative policy. A policy of peace on earth and good-will to all mankind, a policy that would mobilize the world for peace, that would free the world from conquest and and release its workers for the production of wealth and for its enjoyment unpoisoned by fear.

"We believe that the people of all nations are war-weary and that they will force their Governments to join with us to promote peace and banish war forever from the world."

DAVIS SEES VICTORY IN AID FROM WOMEN

Nominee in Letter to Mrs. John E. Quinn Thanks Club for Offering Its Services.

In reply to a letter in which 2,000 members of the Woman's Democratic Club pledged themselves to perform any service required in the interest of his campaign, John W. Davis said yesterday that the interest shown by women in the present election was an assurance of victory for liberalism and progress.

Mr. Davis's letter follows:

Oct. 10.

Mrs. John Enos Quinn, President,
Woman's Democratic Club of New York City, New York City.

Dear Mrs. Quinn: It seems scarcely necessary for me to assure you of my deep gratitude for the action of the Woman's Democratic Club of New York City in placing themselves at the service of the Democratic Party. I fully realize that that action is prompted by an abiding faith in the principles of Democracy.

I am sure that the women of the United States feel a vital interest in this campaign, involving as it does the welfare of our country and those fundamental ideals upon which it is founded.

With such support we may confidently expect victory for the causes of liberalism and progress, and I earnestly hope I may continue to merit your gratifying confidence in me.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN W. DAVIS.

The Women's Democratic Organizations of New York will give a luncheon at the Nevl Commodore in honor of Mr. Davis and Governor Smith on Oct. 25, the day Mr. Davis is due back from his Western trip.

On next Thursday the Women's Democratic Union will meet at Governor Smith's headquarters in the Hotel Biltmore to perfect plans for their participation in the State and national campaigns, including a drive among clubs and women's organizations.

Among the prominent women backing the drive are Mrs. John Blair, Mrs. James W. Gerard, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, Mrs. Montgomery Hare, Mrs. David H. Houston, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Mrs. Jane O'Hegan Shinn, Miss Amey Aldrich, Mrs. Norman H. Davis, Mrs. Pierre Jay, Miss A. J. G. Perkins, Miss Virginia Potter, Miss Ethel Stebbins, Mrs. Vanderbilt Webb, Miss Carrie Wiley and Mrs. Abram I. Elkus.

SAYS COOLIDGE IS BEATEN.

Governor Ritchie, in Two Speeches Here, Predicts Election of Davis.

Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of Maryland, who was a candidate in the Democratic convention for the Presidential nomination, made a radio speech here last night in which he said John W. Davis had President Coolidge blocked and needed only seventy-one more electoral votes to win the election, and addressed the Women's Democratic Club of New York City at the Hotel Commodore. At this meeting he assailed the Republican Party for "a policy that breeds corruption" through the granting of special privileges.

Governor William W. Brandon of Alabama, of "Twenty-four Votes for Underwood" prominence in the Democratic Convention, told the 500 women that the President has brought a sort of motion picture show into the campaign, calling him "same movie actor."

Both he and Governor Ritchie appealed for support of Governor Smith, the Maryland executive predicting that both he and John W. Davis would be elected.

Miss Elizabeth Marbury denounced the capitalization of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's war service in the campaign, contending that while his military record was highly creditable it did not qualify him for the Governorship.

ROOSEVELT ROUSES THE NORTHERN TIER

Makes 12 Speeches on Way to Watertown, and in That City Discussing the Issues.

STANDS BY DRY POSITION

He Confers With Wadsworth, Snell and Macheld on Campaign Plans.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Colonel Roosevelt had an easy going day through the Northern tier today, having been called on to make only eleven speeches as the train rolled through St. Lawrence and Jefferson Counties, and up to the time of the arrival at this city, where a parade and night meeting were scheduled.

This was in sharp contrast to the schedule for yesterday, which necessitated his making two speeches in Ogdensburg last night, the concluding one being his twenty-second for the day, when he was a trifle "groggy."

For the first time since he began campaigning Colonel Roosevelt touched on the subject of prohibition enforcement, in his speech here tonight. At a meeting held in the Olympic Theatre he read from his speech of acceptance what he had said on the subject. This, briefly summarized, was that the Democrats had attempted to delude the public by representing that modification of the law could be produced in any other way than by Federal enactment, and that, as far as the State is concerned, he will recommend the enactment of any State legislation needed to uphold enforcement.

Then he said:

"I said that in my speech of acceptance, and when I say a thing I mean it. I stand squarely behind everything I said there."

His utterance was greeted with applause. This is prohibition territory up here and it is believed the appropriateness of the place caused him to choose it for his statement. It has been known for a day or two that he has been contemplating taking up the subject. Some of the gossip aboard the special train today was that certain leaders who have joined the party since yesterday were not altogether satisfied with his intention. If there was any difference of opinion, which is by no means certain, the fact made known by his speech tonight is that the candidate has carried through his original plan of again declaring himself on the enforcement question.

Watertown tonight gave Roosevelt the biggest demonstration he has had in his campaign. This was partly due to the fact that the meeting was held in a larger theatre than has yet been available in any of the cities so far visited, from which hundreds were turned away, and partly because a large street parade was held, heightened by a band and red flares. Spectators lined the streets and the square through which it passed.

This city is the home of Edmund Machold, Speaker of the Assembly, who presided at the meeting tonight.

Talks to Boy Scouts.

Colonel Roosevelt also conferred badges of merit on a local Boy Scout troop at the Watertown High School, and he and Mrs. Roosevelt were guests of honor at a reception at the Hotel Woodruff, given on their arrival.

In his talk Colonel Roosevelt said the young people of his family and their relatives had constituted a Boy Scout troop long before there were any Boy Scouts in the country. Their father was the Scoutmaster, he said, and he described how the former President would take them out to camp near Oyster Bay.

This is the way he described a "point to point" walk led by their father, in which his sister played a prominent part to the discomfiture of the late President:

"You would take two points. You would pick out a steeple of a church about three miles away, and you would pick out the chimney or the top of a high hill over there and back home again. While you were going on those walks you could not go to the right or left, but straight toward the object toward which you were going. So, if you came to a haystack you could not go around it; you had to climb over the top.

"I remember one barn we came to filled with hay, and we could not go around that, so we burrowed underneath the hay. If we came to a pond we couldn't go around that; we had to swim across; and I remember—this is for the benefit of the ladies in the rear who are mothers of Scouts—I remember at times my mother disapproved very much of the hikes we took, particularly when my eldest sister went on the walk, and she put in her pocket a little red copy of one of Shakespeare's plays. She was wearing a pretty white dress. We waded through a pond, and when she came out of the pond the book had run red all down the side of the dress. My father had to stay out on the plazza quite a while before he felt brave enough to go in and see my mother."

Until the train reached Watertown early this evening only smaller towns and villages had been visited. Comparatively speaking, however, the audiences that came out to see the candidate were as large as those of previous days. There were good crowds at the station meetings and on the few occasions when the party left the train to go to halls. The auditoriums were crowded, many persons being obliged to stand.

Colonel Roosevelt held, in the main, to the principal speech he has been delivering from the beginning. Several times he accentuated the need of a full vote, and at one stop he said that when his father ran for Governor in 1898 he was believed to have been defeated until the heavy Republican vote from the Northern tier came in to offset the unfavorable figures from the lower part of the State.

"So you see what a great responsibility is upon you to vote in this election," he concluded.

A touch of color in today's uneventful meetings was supplied when the train stopped at Great Bend. Like the other towns touched today, this is in the St. Lawrence River country. When the crowd drew up around the platform it was seen that in the front row was a tall and bulky Indian with long hair down to his shoulders. He did not set with the taciturnity habitually ascribed to his race, but took a leading part in the cheering. When the candidate shook hands with the crowd, he was the third person to come forward.

Quotes Bible to a Priest.

At Antwerp Colonel Roosevelt from the steps of the Public Library saw a priest in the audience as he was talking about the sins of the Democrats.

"Doctor," he said, addressing himself directly to the clergyman, "I think the character of our Democratic rivals is pretty well summed up in the 23d Chapter of Matthews, at the end of the third verse. 'For they say, and do not.' I have quoted that correctly, haven't I?"

While the hand-shaking was going on after the speech, Colonel Roosevelt reached the priest and the latter said:

"Why do you want to shake hands with the only Democrat in Antwerp?"

"Well," replied the candidate, shaking hands with him as he laughed loudly, "now I will quote the Bible again:

"'There is more joy in Heaven over one sinner that repentsth.'"

The rest of the quotation was lost in the laughter of the crowd, in which the priest joined, poking the candidate in the ribs meanwhile.

Important conferences were held on the special train today, as three of the Republican leaders of the Northern tier, were on board. Senator Wadsworth, and Representative Bertrand H. Snell had come with the train from Ogdensburg, and Speaker H. Edmund Machold joined it at Redwood, the first town in his county.

The places covered today in their order were Morristown, Brierhill, Hammond, Redwood, Theresa, Philadelphia, Antwerp, Carthage, Lowville, Great Bend, Black River and Watertown.

Coolidge Caravan in Snowdrifts.

The directors of the Coolidge-Dawes Caravan, on the way to the Pacific Coast, notified Republican Eastern Headquarters here yesterday from Laramie, Wyo., that they had plowed through snow a foot deep crossing the Continental Divide.

FULL DAWES PLAN IN EFFECT MONDAY

London. The loan is for twenty-five years, will pay 7 per cent. and will be issued at 92. Provision is made for amortization at the rat. of one-twenty-fifth each year. As already is known, the United States will take slightly more than a half of the total, England a big share, the remainder being distributed among the European countries, France taking $3,000,000.

Today the French Government had a further discussion with the bankers in the manner in which this share will be taken up, and though a vigorous campaign of a political character has been tardily launched against the loan, there is little doubt that the French share will be fully subscribed by the public and banks.

Besides having practically completed contracts for the loan in its hands, the Reparation Commission holds German industrial debenture bonds for 5,000,000,000 gold marks, and railroad bonds for 11,000,000,000 were handed over tonight.

As trustees for the loan, the Reparation Commission approved the choice of S. Parker Gilbert, the young American who has taken up the big task of Reparation Agent General for Reparation Payments; Colonel Dean Jay, a member of Morgan, Harjes & Co., and Mr. Tertius Meulen, the well-known Dutch banker.

On the Transfer Committee, which is an integral part of the plan, the American representative will be Joseph Bizerrett, who was named on the advice of Gates W. McGarrah. He will have as colleagues Jean Parmentier of France, Henry Bell of England and M. Jansen of Belgium. On the Bank Committee the American representative will be Gates W. McGarrah, the other foreign members who will work with the Germans being Sir Charles Addis of England, Frank of Belgium, Sergeant of France, Feltreunelli of Italy, Bachmann of Switzerland and Bruymans of Holland.

OVERSUBSCRIPTION HERE SURE

Ten Times the Amount, One Report Has It—First Chance to Individuals.

The work of international bankers in whipping the new German reconstruction loan into shape for offering in the world's investment markets at the "psychological moment," was said yesterday by bankers in New York to have already assured its success.

When the bonds are placed before the American public next Tuesday, bankers declared, the problem would not be one of selling, but rather of scaling down allotments so as to give all of the subscribers a chance. The temper of the market was said to be ideal for such a flotation.

At the close of business yesterday bankers checked up on the total of subscriptions received so far. About $225,000,000 of bonds had already been subscribed for, according to their estimates. This figure, it was conservatively estimated, would be increased by another $100,000,000 by the time of opening of subscription books on Tuesday morning. Unofficial estimates of total subscriptions ran as high as $500,000,000, with most bankers looking for a total subscription of from $350,000,000 to $400,000,000.

In the present week more than $100,000,000 of new bonds were sold, here and the week before about $174,000,000 of bonds were sold. Despite these heavy transactions the market was whetted into such shape that underwriters looked for practically instant sale of the $110,000,000 allotment of German bonds to the American market. One report yesterday was that [illegible] indicated an oversubscription of [illegible] times the amount of the loan. This report was accepted as an indication of optimism in some quarters over the offering, but was hardly expected. In responsible banking quarters, to be literally fulfilled.

Another report current yesterday was that Henry Ford, acting solely for himself, had offered to buy the entire issue of bonds, thus obviating the necessity of a formal public offering. Participants in the underwriting group were inclined to disbelieve this report, although it was conceded that Mr. Ford could buy them "at a price." The interest yield of 7.15 per cent., it was thought, would hardly make it worth Mr. Ford's while to absorb the entire issue, as his investment funds, plowed back into the property of the Ford Motor Company and other concerns are supposed to bring an even greater yield.

The report was credited to the extent that Mr. Ford was expected to buy some of the bonds. Many wealthy men, it is known, will be subscribers. Their preliminary requests have indicated that their purchases alone will absorb most of the issue. A number of corporations have made applications for allotments, it was said, but the policy of the underwriters will be to pass the bonds out to individuals. Corporate buyers, it was explained, might later feel obligated to sell bonds and other securities to raise needed cash for corporate needs, and such a process might entail later selling of the German securities. The bankers' position, it was explained, was to place the bonds so well that subsequent selling would be avoided.

Confirmation was received by J. P. Morgan & Co. and associates yesterday of the actual signing of the loan contract in London, and it was said that Thomas W. Lamont would leave tonight for New York. He will not arrive in this city in time to participate in the actual selling to the public, but he will be kept closely informed of the progress of the loan. George Whitney, another Morgan partner, will handle that end of the task for the Morgan firm, with the heads of the principal New York banks as his associates.

None of the money to be raised in New York through the sale of German bonds will be spent in the purchase of American goods, it was said yesterday. The money will be placed on deposit, or then invested in prime securities, as a reserve for the new German central bank to be created in accordance with the Dawes plan. Gradually, it was believed, the funds would be withdrawn to Berlin for deposit there. But whether in Berlin or in New York, the money so raised will serve as the basis of the currency to be evolved in Germany, and will thus serve as the foundation on which Germany's industrial comeback is to be formed.

Gates W. McGarrah, Chairman of the Merchanics and Metals National Bank, who has been designated as the American representative on the Board of Directors of the new German bank, is expected to leave New York within a week for Germany. Mr. McGarrah has played an important part in Wall Street's history in organizing banks, and one or two reorganized institutions have been brought back to health with his assistance. His participation in German bank affairs was described by banking associates as an excellent assurance of soundness in German financial policy. He is described as a banker of the "old school" whose leanings are entirely on the side of conservatism, a predisposition which was believed to have influenced his selection for the new office.

Heavy shifting of funds in the domestic security market is anticipated in preparation for subscribing to the new loan. Weakness in certain foreign Government issues yesterday was attributed to the selling of those bonds by persons wishing to invest in the new German issue. Dealers said such swapping was not unusual in anticipation of a large new loan.

Heads of the offering syndicate, it was learned yesterday, had turned back all preliminary requests for the new bonds. This was done, it was understood, in order to simplify the work of selling the bonds. As a result, no potential buyer is given a prior claim on his share of bonds. Orders will be received on Tuesday and allotments made then. No allotments will be based on orders which have already been sent in, as the bankers regard it as fairer policy to give all purchasers an even chance.

SHENANDOAH MAKES PACIFIC COAST GOAL

posed her full length to the air eddies that came whirling over and around the peaks.

The Shenandoah was bobbing like a cork. All motors were driving at a speed which would have sent her along at fifty miles an hour in a calm, but she seemed to stand still, hesitating.

In the control car the nerves of the officers responsible for the safety of the ship were tense. It seemed that every man inside the huge bag of silk was straining in sympathy with the craft.

Slowly she drifted to the right, and a wall of mountain arose out of the darkness so close that it seemed within arm's length. It was but a moment before the whirling blades of the propellers were taking hold and, gently, with but a second to spare, she slid forward, away from the mountain that would have torn her fragile sides into shreds.

The lights of Cochise were sighted ahead at 4:12 A. M., but the Shenandoah's troubles were not over.

Twenty minutes later the green switch lights of the cattle sidetrack of Manzoro were below and the ship was at the mouth of Dragoon Pass, narrower than the former one, and without moon or favoring winds.

Again fate was kindanother freight train shewed the entrance to the shadowy passageway of the canyon. Although a mile and a half in the air, the big ship was only a few hundred yards above the sides of the mountains and lower than some of the peaks.

Benson, near the summit of the divide, was below at 5:19 A. M.

Day was breaking and the mountain tops were emerging from the darkness.

Tucson, lying like a picture of reds and greens on the sandy plains, was passed over at 6:30 A. M.

El Paso Passed in the Night.

Before reaching the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, the Shenandoah passed over El Paso last night, sailing over the mountains, twisting, turning, rising, falling like a great bird until the tortuous Rio Grande River glistened ahead. The giant craft turned her nose toward the city's lights, hovered a while over the twin cities metropolis and sailed majestically on, leaving the Texas plains behind at 7:50 P. M.

Soon the Shenandoah was in the foothills of the Rockies and in a few minutes mounted from an altitude of 2,000 feet to 6,200. The ears and eyes of those aboard reacted to the rarefied atmosphere and the immense bags inside the tubes, which had been only partly full during the previous two days of the cruise, were expanded and straining against their network of cords. With every additional rise the air pressure diminished, and some expanding gas was released to prevent bursting the bags.

The peaks, thrown into strange shapes by the moonlight, seemed to come forward to grasp the graceful intruder and then fell back. The motors were driven through the air with 1,500 horsepower and the winds were straining at the airship, but like an ocean liner she responded faithfully to her rudders, sometimes quivering, but always going swiftly and surely forward. The roar of the wind on taut cardrums was the only proof of the hurricane over the mountain tops.

At Sierra Blanca at 10:15 P. M. the Shenandoah had an altitude of 6,400 feet and her trailing shadow below was registering sixty miles an hour over the ground. Both roads swung into a long curve and she followed, with the wind whistling against her sides. The rocky walls stood away less than her length on either side, but the motors drove her forward and she obeyed her rudders and rose higher and higher from the jagged passes until she soared over the next ridge away from the railroad track, which disappeared through a tunnel.

Fort Hancock on the Rio Grande was reached at 10:45 o'clock and the most of the mountain passes had been negotiated.

The welcome of the Shenandoah by El Paso was an enthusiastic one. The craft swung up the north bank of the Rio Grande, averting a loop of the winding river. Soon the roar of whistles, the flash of waiting automobile lights and a big searchlight throwing her length into relief against the sky evidenced El Paso's welcome and that Texas had been crossed in fourteen hours of sailing.

Gets Her Position by Radio.

TUCSON, Ariz., Oct. 10.—A hurry call was sent to the radio station of the University of Arizona this morning at 8:20 by the Shenandoah to assist its crew in locating themselves. They had just passed Benson and had failed to recognise the place, believing they were lost and off their scheduled path.

Oliver Wright, radio operator at the university station, got in touch with the Western Union and Southern Pacific and the huge ship was reported to have just passed Benson. The information was relayed to them at once.

Direct radio telephone connections were established with the Shenandoah last night when it reached the Arizona-New Mexico line.

LEADERS ARE DISAPPOINTED

Manhattan, However, is Only Borough to Fall Below Last Presidential Year.

New York City's registration yesterday, the next to the last day of the week, was 236,680, making a total for the five days of 1,021,114, or a gain of about 12 per cent. over the corresponding period of 1920, the last Presidential year.

The day on the whole was sluggish. The gain over 1920 was not thought of highly in political circles in light of the fact that 1920 itself failed to get out almost half the vote. Leaders of the various partisan organizations staked their hopes on a record breaking turnout today, the last day, when the polls will be open from 7 A. M. to 10.30 P. M. In 1920 this all-day wind-up of the week yielded a single day's registration of about 400,257, bringing the registration for the full six day week up to something like 1,347,835.

Observers calculated that if New York City did as well today, and also held a minimum lead of yesterday's 12 per cent. the registration for the day would be around 514,347, and for the full week, 1,535,481.

Manhattan yesterday was the only one of the five boroughs to fall below its 1920 total for the day itself, the registration producing only 14,402 against 70,615 in 1920.

The registration by Assembly Districts for the first five days this year compares as follows with the first five days in 1920, 1921 and 1923:

The following tables show the number of voters who registered yesterday and the total registration for the first five days this year in comparison with the corresponding figures for 1920, 1921 and 1923:

BRITISH PARTIES LINE UP FOR FIGHT

BITTER CAMPAIGN FORECAST

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Politicians of all parties are losing no time in getting their views presented to the electorate, and, although the dissolution of Parliament was only declared yesterday, the campaign will be in full swing in most parts of the country tomorrow.

Today was devoted mainly to consultations with their lieutenants by the leaders of the three parties, and the preparation of ammunition for the political battle which will rage for the next three weeks.

A meeting of the Cabinet was held in the morning, at which the manifesto which the Government proposes to issue to the nation was considered. Every party is anxious that, if possible, its first message to the electorate shall be ready for publication in the Sunday newspapers, and it is possible that all three parties may issue their manifestos on this week-end.

The "Shadow Cabinet" of the Conservative Party was in session at the party's headquarters today, and Liberal leaders also met and mapped out a provisional program for campaign robbins.

The general lines of the manifestos of the parties is fairly clear. The Labor Party will rely on the Government's record during the last nine months, particularly with reference to the European situation, the Russian treaty, housing, agriculture, adjustments which have been made in the system of unemployment insurance, and steps which have been taken to provide a general system of secondary education.

May Ignore Red Prosecution Case.

Little is likely to be heard of the withdrawal of the Workers' Weekly prosecution. The Government still regards this as in the Prime Minister's words, a "trumped-up stunt." The other parties, however, will insist that the Ministerial spokesmen ought to explain to the country why the Government called an election rather than agree to the inquiry.

The Conservative manifesto will deal both with the Russian treaty and the Campbell case, but considerable attention also will be paid to the party's own constructive policy, with special reference to agriculture, housing and education.

The Liberal message will outline the party's program of social reform, and a great deal will be heard of the "coal and power" report issued by a committee over which Mr. Lloyd George presided and which the Liberals think will be a real asset during the campaign.

Many speeches are scheduled to be delivered by leaders of the three parties. Premier MacDonald will speak at Glasgow Monday evening, and afterward will address a number of meetings during a tour of Northumberland, Yorkshire, Lancashire and the Midlands.

Stanley Baldwin has already arranged to make nine speeches in various parts of the country.

Mr. Lloyd George's plans are uncertain, but it is expected he will indulge in another of his "whirlwind tours."

It is too early yet to give any very definite figures as to the number of candidates, but every party is convinced there will not be the slightest difficulty in obtaining the required number. At the last election the Conservatives nominated 536 candidates in all, and present indications are that on this occasion they will have at least 450 candidates in England and Wales alone, besides those in Scotland and Ulster.

The number of Labor candidates last year was 427. Already 370 Labor candidates are before the electorate of whom 200 have been selected during the last ten days. The Labor Party is convinced that this year it will be able to put more than 500 candidates into the field.

Last year the number of Liberal candidates was 450. This year it may not be quite as large, for the first intention of the party is to concentrate on the seats which it holds and on seats where there is a reasonable hope of success.

Churchill Now a Conservative.

In view of the decision of the Labor Party Conference this week that no member of the Communist Party shall be eligible for endorsement as a Labor candidate for Parliament, there is a certain amount of confusion as to the present position. The policy of the Communist Party will be to run candidates wherever, in spite of the decision of the Labor Conference, the local Labor Parties or Trades Councils can be found to adopt them. They hope to have twelve candidates in the field, as compared with nine at the last election, but it remains to be seen whether even as many as twelve local Labor organizations will adopt Communists in defiance of the overwhelming vote of the party.

One of the candidates who will not be back in England in time for the election is the Prime Minister's son, Malcolm MacDonald, who is in America as a member of the British University debating team and who has been selected as the Labor candidate against Sir Ellis Hume Williams in the Bainstree division. The election will be fought on his behalf by his brother and sister, Mr. Alastair and Miss Ishbel MacDonald.

There will be a number of cases of father and son fighting on this occasion, though only in the case of Mr. Baldwin and his son, Oliver Baldwin, Labor candidate for Dudley, will father and son be fighting on different sides.

Arthur Henderson, the Home Secretary, and his two sons, Sir Alfred Mond and his son, and Mr. Lloyd George and his son will all be seeking re-election for their old constituencies, while the Labor list of candidates will include the son of J. R. Clynes, the Lord Privy Seal.

Mr. Asquith will have a strong Labor candidate against him in Paisley, and the Labor Party is determined to run a candidate against Mr. Lloyd George in Carnarvon, and against Winston Churchill, who is the Conservative nominee, at Epping. They consider that they have also scored tactically in inducing Oswald Mosley, one of their newest recruits, to carry their banner into the stronghold of Birmingham and to challenge Neville Chamberlain. Mrs. E. J. Hulse, widow of former Mayor of Derby, has been selected for recommendation as the second Conservative candidate for the constituency, in opposition to J. H. Thomas, the Colonial Secretary.

Speeches were made tonight by Viscount Grey and Sir John Simon for the Liberals, J. H. Thomas and John Wheatley for the Government, L. S. Amery and Winston Churchill for the Conservatives, and a score of minor politicians in different parts of the country.

Lord Grey said that as far as foreign affairs were concerned the Labor Government had made some progress toward greater peace and stability in Europe. He said the London conference was a considerable step forward, and personally he had been quite content with the way things were going in foreign affairs until the Russian treaty. In the case of any guarantee of a loan to Russia he would require the condition that the Government to which a loan was guaranteed should bring some evidence that it was supported by the free choice of its country.

The Soviet Government, he said, consisted of people who, when the Czar was a prisoner and defenseless, in their own words, "killed the Czar and every member of the royal family that they could manage to lay their hands on." These things did not predispose him to treat that particular Government more favorable than other Governments, he said.

Betting Favors Conservatives.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The Stock Exchange is betting on the following results as likely in the elections:

Conservatives to win 300 seats, Labor 205 and Liberals 105.

At the Labor headquarters it is estimated that Labor will gain at least twenty seats, which would give them a total of 213, and unofficial estimates put the Labor gain even higher.

Labor Publication Attacks Premier.

LONDON, Oct. 10 (Associated Press).—At the opening of the campaign for what universally described is an "unwanted" election, perhaps the most striking incident is the extraordinary attack on Premier MacDonald published in the intellectual laborite review, the New Statesman, organ of the Independent Labor Party. If the attack faithfully represents the feeling of any large section of the party, and is not the outgrowth of some personal feud, it is considered as implying a serious crisis within the ranks of the party.

Paying tribute to Mr. MacDonald's remarkable gifts as a parliamentarian and Foreign Secretary, the article says some of the highest officials in the Foreign Office consider that he has been the best Foreign Secretary Great Britain has had in a quarter of a century, and that if he is not mourned somewhere, he certainly will be mourned at the Foreign Office.

Yet the article proceeds to say that Mr. MacDonald alone is responsible for having brought the country into the present "absurd political predicament." That, while he has been an immense success as Foreign Secretary, as Prime Minister he has been an utter failure.

The writer then assails Mr. MacDonald because "he missed no opportunity of insulting or deriding those who placed him in power." This reference is in regard to the statement that Mr. MacDonald consistently refused "to eat out of Mr. Asquith's hand."

Complaining of Mr. MacDonald's intense personal feeling against Mr. Asquith, and his flouting of 4,000,000 Liberal votes, the article continues:

"But Mr. MacDonald lacks generosity. He is jealous of those whose personal competition he fears. * * * As Prime Minister he seems too thin-skinned to live."

With much more in the same vein, the article complains of what it terms Mr. MacDonald's ridiculous "amour propre, vanity and aloofness from his colleagues" and says:

"If he could sink his vanity and prejudices and admit the possibility of there being other men besides himself, he might be in power another year or two."

The article on the whole seems to lament Mr. MacDonald's refusal to cooperate with the Liberals. On this point, however, the New Statesman is not considered in political circles to represent the general view of the Laborites.

The utterances of the politicians and the comments of the press indicate that the coming election campaign, ending on Oct. 29, is likely to be one of the bitterest in recent years.

Sidney Webb, President of the Board of Trade, is quoted as saying that the campaign will be "an especially dirty one," and the angry tone already manifest in many declarations seems to justify the prediction.

Prime Minister MacDonald will have as his opponent Captain W. H. Williams, Liberal, in his fight to be returned from his constituency, Aberavon, in Glamorganshire.

SEND GREETING TO MACDONALD

Norman Thomas and Morris Hillquit Liken Him to La Follette.

The La Follette campaign was compared to the British labor movement yesterday in messages sent to Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Governor, and Morris Hillquit of the La Follette National Campaign Committee.

Mr. Thomas's message read:

"American labor and progressive movement sends best wishes for triumphant return to power of the British Labor Party in the coming election. We hope to duplicate British labor's wonderful achievement by the election of La Follette to the Presidency and the creation of a powerful American labor party."

Mr. Hillquit said:

"Socialists of the United States send congratulations upon the determined and dignified stand of the British Labor Government against the petty attack of its combined reactionary opponents. The forces of labor, socialism and progress on both sides of the Atlantic are now engaged in a simultaneous campaign for the rights of the people—social justice and world peace. May both be equally victorious and triumphant."

SHOTWELL LAUDS COMPACT.

He Thinks It Is a Big Step in the Direction of Outlawing War.

Dr. James T. Shotwell, Professor of History in Columbia University, who recently returned from the meeting of the League Assembly in Geneva and who is one of the experts who formulated the American plan for disarmament and security which furnished the basis for the protocol to outlaw war, said yesterday:

"The document drawn up in Geneva, while detailed and technical, so that I have not yet had time to study it carefully, seems from a first reading to accomplish what the statesmen of Europe have claimed for it.

"It is a Magna Charta or national security, based upon compulsory arbitration of international disputes. It embodies the main points of the American plan. Chief of these is the definition of an aggressor as a nation that refuses, first of all, to take its case into court. The protocol outlaws such an aggressor, and that is the equivalent of outlawing aggressive war.

"The question of the enforcement of peace, however, was extremely difficult, because police power can so easily be made a pretext for aggression. They had to avoid the creation of a super-State which should be charged with the maintenance of peace. Some critics in this country have thought they were in danger of erecting a super-State, but any one familiar with the Governments of Europe—and especially with the new ones set up since the war—knows that they are, at least, just as jealous of their sovereignty as we are.

"They met the problem by a compromise, stating that each State member of the League would cooperate in the maintenance of peace, but would determine the extent of that cooperation itself. In future, however, they are to study out together plans to meet known dangers and are to inform the League of what they propose to do when those dangers become real.

"The effect of this will be much stronger in preventing than in repressing aggression. They recognize that if war actually breaks out it frequently is too late to do anything. But if they can make a power hesitate and proceed by peaceful means to the settlement of disputes, then they will have increased their security instead of lessened it. On that basis they can then take up the problem of disarmament with some chance of success.

"There seems to be some misunderstanding in this country about the relation of the United States to all of this. The United States is not asked to join the protocol. These devices for preserving peace are limited to members of the League of Nations. They are the only ones asked to accept compulsory arbitration instead of war. The United States will simply receive an invitation some time in December to participate in a world conference next June. The other powers, members of the League, go to that conference having previously accepted a further obligation, but that is separate from the reduction of armaments. We are not asked to consider these other questions at all."

Complete Text of the Protocol to Outlaw War As Approved by the League of Nations Assembly

Here is printed, for the first time in this country, the full text of the much discussed Protocol for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes as revised by the drafting committee and presented to the Assembly of the League of Nations and there approved on Oct. 2 by the representatives of forty-seven of the member States. The Protocol reads as follows:

PROTOCOL FOR THE PACIFIC SETTLEMENT OF INTERNATIONAL DISPUTES.

Animated by the firm desire to insure the maintenance of general peace and the security of nations whose existence, independence or territories may be threatened;

Recognizing the solidarity of the members of the international community;

Asserting that a war of aggression constitutes a violation of this solidarity and an international crime;

Desirous of facilitating the complete application of the system provided in the Covenant of the League of Nations for the pacific settlement of disputes between States and insuring the repression of international crimes; and

For the purpose of realizing, as contemplated by Article 8 of the Covenant, the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety and the enforcement by common action of international obligations;

The undersigned, duly authorized to that effect, agree as follows:

ARTICLE 1.

The signatory States undertake to make every effort in their power to secure the introduction into the Covenant of amendments on the lines of the provisions contained in the following articles.

They agree that, as between themselves, these provisions shall be binding as from the coming into force of the present Protocol and that, so far as they are concerned, the Assembly and the Council of the League of Nations shall thenceforth have power to exercise all the rights and perform all the duties conferred upon them by the Protocol.

ARTICLE 2.

The signatory States agree in no case to resort to war either with one another or against a State which, if the occasion arises, accepts all the obligations hereinafter set out, except in case of resistance to acts of aggression or when acting in agreement with the Council or the Assembly of the League of Nations in accordance with the provisions of the Covenant and of the present Protocol.

ARTICLE 3.

The signatory States undertake to recognise as compulsory, ipso facto and without special agreement, the jurisdiction of the Permanent Court of International Justice in the cases covered by Paragraph 2 of Article 36 of the statute of the court, but without prejudice to the right of any State, when acceding to the special protocol provided for in the said article and opened for signature on Dec. 16, 1920, to make reservations compatible with the said clause.

Accession to this special protocol, opened for signature on Dec. 16, 1920, must be given within the month following the coming into force of the present Protocol.

States which accede to the present Protocol, after its coming into force, must carry out the above obligation within the month following their accession.

ARTICLE 4.

With a view to render more complete the provisions of Paragraphs 4, 5, 6, and 7 of Article 15 of the Covenant, the signatory States agree to comply with the following procedure:

1. If the dispute submitted to the Council is not settled by it as provided in Paragraph 3 of the said Article 15, the Council shall endeavor to persuade the parties to submit the dispute to the judicial settlement of arbitration.
2. (a) If the parties cannot agree to do so, there shall, at the request of at least one of the parties, be constituted a Committee of Arbitrators. The committee shall so far as possible be constituted by agreement between the parties.

(b) If within the period fixed by the Council the parties have failed to agree, in whole or in part, upon the number, the names and the powers of the arbitrators and upon the procedure, the Council shall settle the points remaining in suspense. It shall with the utmost possible dispatch select in consultation with the parties the arbitrators and their President from among persons who by their nationality, their personal character and their experience, appear to it to furnish the highest guarantees of competence and impartiality.

(c) After the claims of the parties have been formulated the Committee of Arbitrators, on the request of any party, shall through the medium of the Council request advisory opinion upon any points of law in dispute from the Permanent Court of International Justice, which in such case shall meet with the utmost possible dispatch.
3. If none of the parties asks for arbitration, the Council shall again take the dispute under consideration. If the Council reaches a report which is unanimously agreed to by the members thereof other than the representatives of any of the parties to the dispute, the signatory States agree to comply with the recommendations therein.
4. If the Council fails to reach a report which is concurred in by all its members, other than the representatives of any of the parties to the dispute, it shall submit the dispute to arbitration. It shall itself determine the composition, the powers and the procedure of the Committee of Arbitrators and, in the choice of the arbitrators, shall bear in mind the guarantees of competence and impartiality referred to in Paragraph 2 (b) above.
5. In no case may a solution, upon which there has already been a unanimous recommendation of the Council accepted by one of the parties concerned, be again called in question.
6. The signatory States undertake that they will carry out in full good faith any judicial sentence or arbitral award that may be rendered and that they will comply, as provided in Paragraph 5 above, with the solutions recommended by the Council. In the event of a State failing to carry out the above undertakings, the Council shall exert all its influence to secure compliance therewith. If it fails therein, it shall propose what steps should be taken to give effect thereto, in accordance with the provision contained at the end of Article 13 of the Covenant. Should a State in disregard of the above undertakings resort to war, the sanctions provided for by Article 16 of the Covenant, interpreted in the manner indicated in the present Protocol, shall immediately become applicable to it.
7. The provisions of the present article do not apply to the settlement of disputes which arise as the result of measures of war taken by one or more signatory States in agreement with the Council or the Assembly.

ARTICLE 5.

The provisions of Paragraph 8 of Article 15 of the Covenant shall continue to apply in proceedings before the Council.

If, in the course of an arbitration, such as is contemplated by Article 4 above, one of the parties claims that the dispute, or part thereof, arises out of a matter which by international law is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of that party, the arbitrators shall on this point take the advice of the Permanent Court of International Justice through the medium of the Council. The opinion of the Court shall be binding upon the arbitrators, who, if the opinion is affirmative, shall confine themselves to so declaring in their award.

If the question is held by the Court or by the Council to be a matter solely within the domestic jurisdiction of the State, this decision shall not prevent consideration of the situation by the Council or by the Assembly under Article 11 of the Covenant.

ARTICLE 6.

If, in accordance with Paragraph 9 of Article 15 of the Covenant, a dispute is referred to the Assembly, that body shall have for the settlement of the dispute all the powers conferred upon the Council as to endeavoring to reconcile the parties in the manner laid down in Paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 of Article 15 of the Covenant and in Paragraph 1 of Article 4 above.

Should the Assembly fail to achieve an amicable settlement:

If one of the parties asks for arbitration, the Council shall proceed to constitute the Committee of Arbitrators in the manner provided in subparagraphs (a), (b) and (c) of Paragraph 2 of Article 4 above.

If no party asks for arbitration, the Assembly shall again take the dispute under consideration and shall have in this connection the same powers as the Council. Recommendations embodied in a report of the Assembly, provided that it secures the measure of support stipulated at the end of Paragraph 10 of Article 15 of the Covenant, shall have the same value and effect as regards all matters dealt within the present Protocol, as recommendations embodied in a report of the Council adopted as provided in Paragraph 3 of Article 4 above.

If the necessary majority cannot be obtained, the dispute shall be submitted to arbitration and the Council shall determine the composition, the powers and the procedure of the Committee of Arbitrators as laid down in Paragraph 4 of Article 4.

ARTICLE 7.

In the event of a dispute arising between two or more signatory States, these States agree that they will not, either before the dispute is submitted to proceedings for pacific settlement or during such proceedings, make any increase of their armaments or effectives which might modify the position established by the Conference for the Reduction of Armaments provided for by Article XVII of the present Protocol, nor will they take any measure of military, naval, air, industrial or economic mobilization, nor, in general, any action of a nature likely to extend the dispute or render it more acute.

It shall be the duty of the Council, in accordance with the provisions of Article XI. of the Covenant, to take under consideration any complaint as to infraction of the above undertakings which is made to it by any State which is the State parties to the dispute. Should the Council be of opinion that the complaint requires investigation, it shall, if it deems it expedient, arrange for inquiries and investigations in one or more of the countries concerned. Such inquiries and investigations shall be carried out with the utmost possible dispatch and the signatory States undertake to afford every facility for carrying them out.

The scope and application of measures taken by the Council as above provided is to facilitate the pacific settlement of disputes and they shall in no way prejudge the actual settlement.

If the result of such inquiries and investigations is to establish the fact of infraction of the provisions of the first paragraph of the present article, it shall be the duty of the Council to summon the State or States guilty of the infraction to put an end thereto. Should the State in question fail to comply with such summons, the Council shall declare them to be guilty of a violation of the Covenant or of the present Protocol, and shall decide upon the measures to be taken with a view to end as soon as possible a situation of a nature to threaten the peace of the world.

For the purposes of the present article decisions of the Council may be taken by a two-thirds majority.

ARTICLE 8.

The signatory States undertake to abstain from any act which might constitute a threat of aggression against another State.

If one of the signatory States is of opinion that another State is making preparations for war, it shall have the right to bring the matter to the notice of the Council.

The Council, if it ascertains that the facts are as alleged, shall proceed as provided in Paragraphs 2, 4 and 5 of Article 7.

ARTICLE 9.

The existence of demilitarized zones being calculated to prevent aggression and to facilitate a definite finding of the nature provided for in Art. le 10 below, the establishment of such zones between States mutually consenting thereto is recommended as a means of avoiding violations of the present Protocol.

The demilitarized zones already existing under the terms of certain treaties or conventions, or which may be established in future between States mutually consenting thereto, may at the request and at the expense of one or more of the conterminous States be placed under a temporary or permanent system of supervision to be organized by the Council.

ARTICLE 10.

Every State which resorts to war in violation of the undertakings contained in the Covenant or in the present Protocol is an aggressor. Violation of the rules laid down for a demilitarized zone shall be held equivalent to resort to war.

In the event of hostilities having broken out, any State shall be presumed to be an aggressor, unless a decision of the Council, which must be taken unanimously, shall otherwise declare:

1. If it has refused to submit the dispute to the procedure of pacific settlement provided by Article XIII and XV of the Covenant as amplified by the present Protocol, or to comply with a judicial sentence or arbitral award or with a unanimous recommendation of the Council, or has disregarded a unanimous report of the Council, a judicial sentence or an arbitral award recognizing that the dispute between it and the other belligerent State arises out of a matter which by international law is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of the latter State; nevertheless, in the last case the State shall only be presumed to be an aggressor if it has not previously submitted the question to the Council or the Assembly, in accordance with Article XI. of the Covenant.
2. If it has violated provisional measures enjoined by the Council for the period while the proceedings are in progress as contemplated by Article 7 of the present Protocol.

Apart from the cases dealt with in Paragraphs 1 and 2 of the present article, if the Council does not at once succeed in determining the aggressor, it shall be bound to enjoin upon the belligerents an armistice, and shall fix the terms, acting, if need be, by a two-thirds majority, and shall supervise its execution.

Any belligerent which has refused to accept the armistice or has violated its terms shall be deemed an aggressor.

The Council shall call upon the signatory States to apply forthwith against the aggressor the sanctions provided by Article 11 of the present Protocol, and any signatory State thus called upon shall thereupon be entitled to exercise the rights of a belligerent.

ARTICLE 11.

As soon as the Council has called upon the signatory States to apply sanctions, as provided in the last paragraph of Article 10 of the present Protocol, the obligations of the said States in regard to the sanctions of all kinds mentioned in Paragraphs 1 and 2 of Article XVI. of the covenant, will immediately become operative, in order that such sanctions may forthwith be employed against the aggressor.

Those obligations shall be interpreted as obliging each of the signatory States to cooperate loyally and effectively in support of the covenant of the League of Nations, and in resistance to any act of aggression, in the degree which its geographical position and its military situation as regards armaments allow.

In accordance with Paragraph 3 of Article 10 of the covenant the signatory States give a joint and several undertaking to come to the assistance of the State attacked or threatened, and to give each other mutual support by means of facilities and reciprocal exchanges as regards the provision of raw materials and supplies of every kind, openings of credits, transport and transit, and for this purpose to take all measures in their power to preserve the safety of communications by land and by sea of the attacked or threatened State.

If both parties to the dispute are aggressors within the meaning of Article 10, the economic and financial sanctions shall be applied to both of them.

ARTICLE 12.

In view of the complexity of the conditions in which the Council may be called upon to exercise the functions mentioned in Article 11 of the present Protocol concerning economic and financial sanctions, and in order to determine more exactly the guarantees afforded by the present Protocol to the signatory States, the Council shall forthwith invite the economic and financial organizations of the League of Nations to consider and report as to the nature of the steps to be taken to give effect to the financial and economic sanctions and measures of cooperation contemplated in Article 16 of the Covenant and in Article 11 of this Protocol.

When in possession of this information the Council shall draw up through its competent organs:

1. Plans of action for the application of the economic and financial sanctions against an aggressor State.
2. Plans of economic and financial cooperation between a State attacked and the different States assisting it.

And shall communicate these plans to the members of the League and to the other signatory States.

ARTICLE 13.

In view of the contingent military, naval and air sanctions provided for by Article 16 of the Covenant and by Article 11 of the present Protocol the Council shall be entitled to receive undertakings from States determining in advance the military, naval and air forces which they would be able to bring into action immediately to insure the fulfillment of the obligations in regard to sanctions which result from the Covenant and the present Protocol.

Furthermore, as soon as the Council has called upon the signatory States to apply sanctions, as provided in the last paragraph of Article 10 above, the said States may, in accordance with any agreements which they may previously have concluded, bring to the assistance of a particular State, which is the victim of aggression, their military, naval and air forces.

The agreements mentioned in the preceding paragraph shall be registered and published by the Secretariat of the League of Nations. They shall remain open to all States members of the League which may desire to accede thereto.

ARTICLE 14.

The Council shall alone be competent to declare that the application of sanctions shall cease and normal conditions be re-established.

ARTICLE 15.

In conformity with the spirit of the present Protocol, the signatory States agree that the whole cost of any military, naval or air operations undertaken for the repression of an aggression under the terms of the Protocol, and reparation of all losses suffered by individuals, whether civilians or combatants, and for all material damage caused by the operations of both sides, shall be borne by the aggressor State up to the extreme limit of its capacity.

Nevertheless, in view of Article X. of the Covenant, neither the territorial integrity nor the political independence of the aggressor State shall in any case be affected as the result of the application of the sanctions mentioned in the present Protocol.

ARTICLE 16.

The signatory States agree that in the event of a dispute between one or more of them and one or more States which have not signed the present Protocol and are not members of the League of Nations, such non-member States shall be invited, on the conditions contemplated in Article XVII. of the Covenant to submit, for the purpose of a pacific settlement, to the obligations accepted by the State signatories of the present Protocol.

If the State so invited, having refused to accept the said conditions and obligations, resorts to war against a signatory State, the provisions of Article XVI. of the Covenant as defined by the present Protocol, shall be applicable against it.

ARTICLE 17.

The signatory States undertake to participate in an international conference for the reduction of armaments which shall be convened by the Council and shall meet at Geneva on Monday, June 15, 1925. All other States, whether members of the League or not, shall be invited to this conference.

In preparation for the convening of the conference, the Council shall draw up with due regard to the undertakings contained in Articles 11 and 13 of the present Protocol a general program for the reduction and limitation of armaments, which shall be laid before the conference and which shall be communicated to the Governments at the earliest possible date, and at the latest three months before the conference meets.

If by May 1, 1925, ratifications have not been deposited at least a majority of the permanent members of the Council and ten other members of the League, the Secretary-General of the League shall immediately consult the Council as to whether he shall cancel the invitations or merely adjourn the conference until a sufficient number of ratifications have been deposited.

ARTICLE 18.

Wherever mention is made in Article 10, or in any other provision of the present Protocol, of a decision of the Council, this shall be understood in the sense of Article XV. of the Covenant, namely that the votes of the representatives of the parties to the dispute shall not be counted when reckoning unanimity or the necessary majority.

ARTICLE 19.

Except as expressly provided by its terms, the present Protocol shall not affect in any way the rights and obligations of members of the League as determined by the Covenant.

ARTICLE 20.

Any dispute as to the interpretation of the present Protocol shall be submitted to the Permanent Court of International Justice.

ARTICLE 21.

The present Protocol, of which the French and English texts are both authentic, shall be ratified.

The deposit of ratifications shall be made at the Secretariat of the League of Nations as soon as possible.

States of which the seat of government is outside Europe will be entitled merely to inform the Secretariat of the League of Nations that their ratification has been given; in that case, they must transmit the instrument of ratification as soon as possible.

So soon as the majority of the permanent members of the Council and ten other members of the League have deposited or have effected their ratifications, a procès-verbal to that effect shall be drawn up by the Secretariat.

After the said procès-verbal has been drawn up, the Protocol shall come into force as soon as the plan for the reduction of armaments has been adopted by the conference provided for in Article 17.

If within such period after the adoption of the plan for the reduction of armaments as shall be fixed by the said conference, the plan has not been carried out, the Council shall make a declaration to that effect; this declaration shall render the present Protocol null and void.

The grounds on which the Council may declare that the plan drawn up by the International Conference for the Reduction of Armaments has not been carried out, and that in consequence the present Protocol has been rendered null and void, shall be laid down by the conference itself.

A signatory State which, after the expiration of the period fixed by the conference, fails to comply with the plan adopted by the conference, shall not be admitted to benefit by the provisions of the present Protocol.

In faith whereof the undersigned, duly authorized for this purpose, have signed the present Protocol.

Done at Geneva, on the 2d day of October, nineteen hundred and twenty-four, in a single copy, which shall be kept in the archives of the Secretariat of the League, and registered by it on the date of its coming into force.

ASKS CHURCH TO BACK LEAGUE'S PROTOCOL

Federal Council Committee Acts on Report by Bishop Cannon on Geneva Assembly.

Following an address by Bishop James Cannon Jr., Resident Bishop of the Methodist Church South in Washington, D. C., on the League of Nations at Geneva, from whose session he returned yesterday on the steamship Berengaria, the Administration Committee of the Federal Council of Churches yesterday afternoon unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"That the Commission on International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America be instructed to consider promptly the advisability of making an appeal to world-wide Christendom to give prompt and earnest support to the Protocol adopted at Geneva for the prevention of future wars."

Bishop Cannon left last evening for Washington, stopping for a brief visit with his son at Princeton University.

In his address Bishop Cannon said he had been present at every Assembly of the League of Nations through five years, and that since the beginning he had been interested in the work of the League on social and humanitarian questions. He attended this year to make a report concerning the spirit and activities of the Assembly and the commissions of the League.

"On my trip abroad I have met the leaders of Protestant Church bodies in Northern and Central Europe, as well as in Great Britain, and I have found that the Christian Churches look expectantly to America for leadership in the Christian life of the world," said Bishop Cannon.

"The representatives of the fifty-five nations assembled at Geneva were consumed with a purpose, almost a passion, to devise some feasible and effective plan for the prevention of future wars.

"The delegations were not willing to adjourn at the regular time because they were not satisfied with the details of the proposed protocol, and so continued in session for some days longer until a plan had been wrought out which all the delegates could support.

"The amazing fact is that the representatives of fifty-five nations have adopted a protocol which, if ratified by the countries which they represent, will certainly be the greatest step which has ever been taken to secure a warless world.

"If the Christian churches throughout all the nations earnestly advocate the adoption of the protocol it will have tremendous effect upon the respective Governments. Surely, when all the world is struggling to put an end to war, the great Christian forces of America cannot sit quietly by.

"In view of the confidence of the Christian churches of other nations in our leadership, we should not hesitate to meet our moral responsibility, regardless of what action may be taken in the political spheres."

Later Bishop Cannon said the first proposal of Japan was rejected by the Commission, as impossible of general acceptance. But so determined were all, including Japan, to obtain an acceptable effective plan, that after conferences extending over several days an agreement was finally reached satisfactory to all parties.

He said an examination of the protocol would show that it definitely provided for "consideration," not for final arbitration by the Council, of matters claimed to be of a purely domestic nature, such as immigration.

The Bishop said that if our own people would heartily cooperate, the Geneva protocol would be accepted by all the nations.

COOLIDGE IN CLOVER CLUB.

Follows Other Presidents on Philadelphia Group's Rolls.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—President Coolidge has accepted an honorary membership in Philadelphia's Clover Club.

This became known today when each member was informed by James S. McCartney, Secretary, of the President's acceptance.

The Clover Club was started forty-five years ago by a group of newspaper men. It has made levity its aim and has played host to many prominent visitors to the city.

In accepting membership President Coolidge has followed the precedent of Presidents Cleveland, McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson.

BOMB WRECKS BLIMP; LIEUT. MARTIN DIES

FOUR OTHERS ARE INJURED

Helium Gas Saves Aircraft From Exploding While at Height of 150 Feet.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Oct. 10.—Lieutenant Bruce N. Martin received fatal injuries today and Lieutenant Alfred Purrear and three enlisted men were hurt when the army blimp TC-2, the largest non-rigid lighter-than-air craft built in the United States was wrecked over Langley Field, Va., when a bomb she was carrying exploded.

Lieutenant Martin died at midnight in an army hospital.

Hope was held out for Lieutenant Purrear, who comes from Hendersonville, Tenn. Of the others injured, Master Sergeant Fitch was said to be in a serious condition while Sergeants Wells and Jenkins were said to have sustained only minor injuries. All were in the basket of the craft when the accident occurred.

The explosion broke the gas bag of the ship and she crashed to the earth so quickly that the crew had no time to take to their parachutes. She was badly wrecked and how much can be salvaged out of the tangled mass was undetermined tonight. Beyond indications that the explosion was a premature one during target practice there was no explanation of the accident.

For the first few seconds the craft fell slowly, but spectators below soon saw a puff of smoke, heard a muffled roar and then the hiss of gas. The "blimp" hurtled plummet-like to earth. She did not catch fire, but struck the ground with great force.

As she crumpled all in a heap she appeared to be a mass of tangled wreckage.

The explosion of the bomb broke the gas bag and the non-inflammable helium with which the bag was filled escaped. The blimp itself did not explode but still kept its shape.

Lieutenant Martin's wife flew from Aberdeen to Langley Field to be at his bedside.

All five of the injured men were rushed to the base hospital at Fort Monroe by airplane and ambulance for examination.

The TC-2 had a length of 196 feet and an over-all height of fifty-nine feet. She was constructed for training purposes under the supervision of an improved pattern and forty feet in length with two 150-horsepower motors set on a platform aft. She had a speed of sixty miles an hour, and an endurance capacity of 36 hours in air at that rate. Her total lifting capacity was close to 12,000 pounds and her useful load 4,000 pounds.

The airship had been sent from her station at Aberdeen, Md., to participate in air service manoeuvres at Langley Field and had taken on her cargo of four bombs this morning.

WORKERS TO AID STUDENTS.

Will Speed New Dormitory for Victims of Seminary Fire.

Twenty-five students of Mount Melchisedech Roman Catholic Seminary in Oakland, N. J., who found themselves forced into makeshift homes last Wednesday when the old building of the institution was burned, with the destruction of virtually all the personal effects of teachers and students, will have a new dormitory in an unexpectedly short time because of the interest of a group of New York workmen. These men, plasterers, plumbers and steamfitters, heard of the plight of the future priests, and decided to do a record job of finishing on a new dormitory that was nearing completion when fire destroyed the old one.

The men, all of whom are members of the Anchor Club and Knights of Columbus, went to Very Rev. P. J. O'Callaghan, formerly rector of the Apostolic Mission House in Washington and before that pastor of St. Mary's Church in Chicago, who founded the institution a year ago. They told Father O'Callaghan they were willing to devote their week-ends to pushing the new structure to readiness and that they would not ask one cent for their services. The offer was accepted, and today a group of plasterers will go to Oakland to remain through the Monday holiday at their voluntary labor.

It is expected that within ten days or two weeks the dormitory will be habitable and very soon thereafter it will be finished.

GERMANY TO PAY RUMANIA.

Will Send Railroad Materials on Reparation Account.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 10.—Germany is about to resume deliveries in kind to Rumania on the reparation account, an approximately 12,000,000 gold marks worth of railroad material is expected for the months of September and October.

A commission of three engineers is being sent to Berlin to make arrangements for shipments of the material while the General Manager of Railroads is going to Paris to settle the details of delivery with the Reparation Commission.

POLITICAL NOSTRUM VIEWED AS A PERIL

J. J. Davis Says It Challenges American Common Sense and Will Be Defeated.

CITES REPUBLICAN ACTS

Insists Workmen Have Benefited Greatly by National Progress in Last Four Years.

By WILLIAM M. CRAWFORD.

As a result of an interview with J. J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, a few days ago in Washington, he forwarded to me yesterday the following statement, taking up the questions discussed by us:

"The prosperity of the man who works in the United States stands out in startling contrast to the conditions which surround the workers of other countries. Abroad, the great powers, with the war five and a half years behind them, are just beginning to emerge from economic chaos, and even this is largely due to the help of American economic and financial genius as represented in the Dawes plan.

"The American wage earner is today receiving a higher wage, working the shortest hours and under the best working conditions ever known in industrial history. This has raised the wage earners to a standard higher than he has ever occupied anywhere on the globe.

"The worker in the United States is not only earning wages from two to five times greater than the wages paid workers in foreign countries, but the dollar which he earns has a purchasing power exceeding the purchasing power of money abroad. Foreign currencies are generally depreciated, and the workers paid in these currencies find it difficult to maintain themselves.

Cites Progress Since 1921.

"No American citizen can disregard the progress made by the American people politically, economically and socially as of 1921. In that year we were still technically in a state of war. We were confronted with a public debt of $24,000,000,000 and $11,000,000,000 in unliquidated debts, due us from foreign countries. Financial and industrial distress was everywhere; 5,000,000 American workers were without employment; we were threatened with an influx of immigrants from the weary nations of Europe and our working people faced with the possibility of a great increase in the importation of cheapened products from abroad, which would have still further increased the unemployment problem facing our country.

"The Administration came into control of the Government with a clear understanding of the existing conditions and with a constructive remedial program of legislation and policy which it felt assured would soon solve our economic, industrial and international problems efficiently and satisfactorily and in the interest of all our people.

"This program has done its work. The results anticipated stand achieved.

"Another grave situation fraught with most serious danger to the United States and other great nations of the world was that the people were still being overtaxed to build competitive armaments.

"Step by step the Administration took up and solved these problems.

War Ended, Budget Adopted, Debt Cut.

"The state of war was ended by a series of treaties. A budget system was instituted that for the first time in our history placed the Administration of the Federal fiscal affairs upon a strict business basis. The direct result was a reduction in the annual cost of government of $2,041,000,000 between 1921 and June 30, 1924. The public debt has been lowered by two and three-quarter billions of dollars in the same period. Internal Revenue taxes have been twice reduced and in the present fiscal year the taxpayers will be relieved of a burden equal to approximately $6,000,000 a day as compared with the year 1920.

"To protect the American worker from the cheapened products from abroad an American tariff law was enacted. This beneficial law, supplemented later with the restrictive immigration legislation, has restored American industry and agriculture and put back at work millions of idle workers who sought in vain for employment in 1921.

"Restrictive immigration legislation enacted under Republican leadership is the greatest aid ever extended to American working men. It has safeguarded their home standards as well as their pay envelopes and working conditions.

"President Coolidge justly says: 'We have protected our own inhabitants from the economic disaster of an invasion of too many foreign people or too much foreign merchandise, and the Washington conference relieved the peoples of the world of competitive naval armament building.'

"The passage of the child labor amendment to the Constitution and its submission to the States of the Union for ratification is another accomplishment of the Administration. Through the activity of President Harding and Coolidge the twelve-hour day and the seven-day week have been practically abolished in our country. Collective bargaining and voluntary conciliation and arbitration in our industrial enterprises have been encouraged and extended.

Tax Reforms Relieve Burdens.

"Tax reform and reduction of taxation, with a pledge of further reduction, will lift a heavy burden from all our people.

"The tremendous progress which America has made as a nation, and the prosperity which has come to every American, have been gained in the light of the great truths which our forefathers wrought into the fundamental law of the land when they founded this Republic. The real spirit of America and American progress lies in the principles of the American Constitution, and it is well for us to remember these facts in these days of the campaign when so many wild and misleading political and economic theories are being advanced for the purpose of inducing our people to endorse radical and socialistic candidates advocating Government ownership of industries of similar nostrums. They would rob America of that freedom of opportunity for the individual which has developed our industrial enterprises and wrought so successfully for our growth and prosperity as a nation. Individual responsibility and individual initiative have been the moving force which built from a few millions of struggling colonists scattered along our Atlantic Coast to a nation of 110,000,000 of people, with almost unlimited wealth.

"Let me quote from a recent paper by President Emeritus Arthur Twining Hadley of Yale University, speaking of the Government ownership of railways. He said: 'In the first place, State railroads have habitually proved unprofitable. Though every great country, with the exception of Great Britain, has made experiments in State railroad operation, only two, Prussia and South African Dominion, have succeeded in earning the full amount of interest on the capital invested. Some others, like Sweden or New South Wales, have pretty nearly succeeded in doing it; but in general State railroads have constituted a large and increasing burden on the taxpayers.' Again, he says: 'No operating improvement of importance has ever had its origin in a Government railroad system; telegraph train orders, interlocking switches and signals, air brakes, automatic couplers, all had their origin in the private railroads of England or America. * * *

Progress Due to Initiative.

"'Prussia and New South Wales have been content to handle their business in the old-fashioned way, even when the new one was less expensive and more useful to the public. This absence of initiation in method is peculiarly striking in the case of Prussia, because it was manifested at a time when every form of private business was getting ahead of the rest of the world thanks to initiative lodged in them.'

"This statement bears out the conclusion that our tremendous progress industrially has been due to the energy, freedom of action and initiative of American enterprise, supported by American business genius and American labor.

"The American workman is a thinking workman. It takes more than words to convince him of the expediency of a changed political situation. He judges from the record of past achievement rather than place his faith upon the promises of experiments tried out in other countries which have proved to be utter failures. When he delivers his vote he delivers it according to his own judgment and not at the dictates of any boss. The American workman will endorse no assault of American States and will not be misled by the label under which any organization of that character operates.

"The constitutional guarantees granted to him nearly a century and a half ago are a sacred heritage. He could not more profitably spend his time on the eve of the election than to study that historical document and compare the wisdom of its provisions with the idle promises of the champions of those problems who would cast it aside to follow into chaos those Governments of other countries who have tried and failed in a similar experiment. The common sense of the American people is challenged, but they will accept that challenge and show their colors."

BORAH AGAIN LAUDS COOLIDGE'S VETOES

Comments His Record as He Explains Reports That He Did Not Mention Him.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 10.—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho took cognizance today of dispatches that in his address at Idaho Falls, Tuesday, he had not mentioned President Coolidge, and in a telegram to The Associated Press said that while some of his phrases might have been somewhat exaggerated, he not only had mentioned the President, but had lauded him for his courage in combating waste.

"My reference to President Coolidge was in connection with the discussion of economy in Government and the extravagance and waste which have been going on in Washington," he said. "After discussing this at length I then said:

"'Well, my friends, we had a test upon this question last Winter. Some of us have been harping on this question for a long time, but we have not been able to get much of a hearing. It was not long after Calvin Coolidge was made President of the United States until he announced he must have economy and then more economy.

"'It was not long until he announced that so far as the building of bureaus was concerned, his opinion was that it ought to cease. To my mind it made one of the great issues of the twentieth century, and it presented a problem of government that no other President—and I do not wish to speak disparagingly of those who have gone before—had the courage to raise and stand upon. He vetoed bill after bill, popular bills, bills which might have drawn to him hundreds of thousands of votes, bills which, as a mere politician, he would have signed. He vetoed them because he proposed to stand between the people of the country and those who were attempting to make unjust and unnecessary demands upon the people.

"'And whatever you may do in this campaign, you cannot take that issue away from Calvin Coolidge. Those who are in Washington, Democrats, Republicans or Progressives, know how he stood on that issue, and the fact that Mr. Coolidge refused to sign bills that he considers unjust and unnecessary will always greatly redound to his credit.'"

Senator Borah said he then referred to the fact that he vetoed the Postal Employes' bill but made no other reference to the President.

"This, in my opinion," said the Idaho Senator, "is quite accurately what I said. In looking over the stenographic report, it doesn't seem to me that it is wholly accurate, but it is reasonably and substantially so."

BROOKHART OPPONENT WITHDRAWS IN IOWA

L. A. Brewer Urges Regular Republicans to Support the Democratic Nominee for Senate.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 10. (Associated Press)—Luther A. Brewer, Republican, running as an Independent for United States Senator against Smith W. Brookhart, today withdrew from the race. At the time he announced his candidacy Mr. Brewer declared that Senator Brookhart did not merit Republican support, because of his denunciation of the national ticket.

Mr. Brewer's withdrawal had been forecast in political circles here. Statements have been in circulation that a considerable group of "regular" Republicans in Iowa planned to throw their support in the Senatorial campaign to Daniel F. Steck, the Democratic candidate, rather than to Senator Brookhart.

In the statement announcing his withdrawal Mr. Brewer, who has been active in Republican politics for many years, urged Iowa Republicans to vote for the Democratic nominee, declaring that Senator Brookhart had renounced the Republican Party.

Mr. Brewer declared there was "only one thing for a Republican to do: to cast his vote for the Democratic candidate, a man who we know possesses patriotic ideas of government."

"On two very dangerous propositions," he declared, "Brookhart and La Follette are one. The issues are abolition of the Supreme Court and Government ownership of railroads. Patriotic and loyal citizens are against both these dangerous propositions."

Senator Brookhart's comment on Mr. Brewer's withdrawal was as follows:

"I am sorry to hear it. It shows that the 'stand-patters' will not stand together. I was in hopes Brewer's candidacy would enable them to take a census in the forthcoming election."

LENROOT SCORES 'RADICALS'

Says La Follette's Ideas on Supreme Court Are Unsafe.

BELOIT, Wis., Oct. 10.—Senator Irvine L. Lenroot in an address today attacked the La Follette-Wheeler ticket as composed of "radicals." He declared that the real campaign was between the Coolidge-Dawes and La Follette-Wheeler tickets and that the aim of the "radicals" was not to elect La Follette and Wheeler, but to throw the election into Congress.

"Perhaps the most dangerous of the radical issues is their attack upon the Constitution of the United States," he said. "It proposed to amend the Constitution so that if the Supreme Court decides an act of Congress is unconstitutional and Congress again passes the bill it shall be valid and the law of the land. The effect would be to destroy the Constitution, for it would have no binding effect upon Congress.

"The radicals, in effect, say that they are willing that the right of religious freedom, of free speech, of trial by jury and all other rights guaranteed by the Constitution shall be placed in the hands of a so-called Wall Street Congress, with power to destroy them.

"I hope that I shall never live to see the day when Congress shall have the power to deny to any man the right to worship God according to the dictates of his conscience, to deny to any man the right to hold an office because he is a Catholic, a Jew or a Protestant. The radicals favor giving Congress the power to abolish every parochial school in the nation."

'TIPTOE DIPLOMACY' MAKES HULL LAUGH

Tennessee Representative Says Democrats Should "Thank God for Pepper."

SENATOR HITS OPPONENTS

Insists Heads of Both Rival Tickets Would Be Sure to Disagree.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—While Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania was telling newspapers today that he had said to Chairman William M. Butler of the Republican National Committee, "the outstanding issue of this campaign is the ability of the American people to appreciate character and capacity in public office," Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, former Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was issuing a statement the burden of which was that "Democrats ought to thank God for Pepper."

The Tennessee Representative's use of these words was meant to indicate that Senator Pepper was helping the Democratic Party in the political campaign by some of the things he had been saying.

Mr. Hull's remarks about Senator Pepper were based on interviews with the Senator which appeared in newspapers this morning about what he had observed in a speaking tour through Missouri, Minnesota and Indiana. Mr. Hull had not seen a statement of Senator Pepper's this afternoon in which he spoke of having told Chairman Butler of the outstanding issue of the campaign, and contended that the people would not "intrust their all to Wheeler and La Follette, or to Bryan and Davis if they were able to obtain Coolidge and Dawes." He was satisfied, Mr. Pepper said, that if the voters "will apply to government the same good sense they use in their own business affairs, this campaign would end in the well-nigh unanimous election of Coolidge and Dawes."

Pepper's View of Candidates.

According to Senator Pepper, if either group of the rivals of President Coolidge and General Dawes for public office was placed at the head of a great business concern, "Bryan and Davis would disagree and fall out, La Follette and Wheeler would take speculative chances and blow up, Coolidge and Dawes would lead the enterprise to honorable prosperity."

After making his statement that "Democrats ought to thank God for Pepper," Mr. Hull went on:

"If there's anybody entitled to the palm for saying the unhappiest thing at the worst time, it is the senior Senator from Pennsylvania.

"New York papers of this morning quote Senator Pepper as saying, on his return from a speaking tour through Missouri, Minnesota and Indiana, that the Coolidge Administration's foreign policy is one of 'tiptoe diplomacy,' and that the Coolidge backers favor 'tiptoe diplomacy.'

"'Tiptoe diplomacy' is the sort that tiptoes up to the door and peeks through the keyhole, and that is the very kind of diplomacy that has been practiced throughout the Coolidge Administration. It is the sort of diplomacy by which the urchin sees a ball game by peeking through a knothole. It is the sort of diplomacy that sent unofficial observers to Europe, with an advance denial that they represented the Government, and then sought, after adoption of a reconstruction plan by the nations of Europe, to claim that the Administration did it.

"Senator Pepper also once made a 'keynote' speech in Maine. He said, in effect, that, after all, the Harding-Coolidge Cabinet was only 30 per cent. dishonest, implying that an Administration that could assemble seven honest men in a Cabinet out of ten ought to be given a vote of confidence. That speech wrecked Senator Pepper's chance to 'keynote' at the Cleveland convention, and from that time until this the Pennsylvania Senator has been wrapped in a mantle of almost complete silence, finally to emerge with the admission that there is a 'tiptoe diplomacy.'

Suggests Making Davis Votes.

"If Senator Pepper has been as unfortunate in the statements he has made in the States in which he has been campaigning as he is in this instance, or was in his 30 per cent. honest speech in Maine, he ought to make nearly as many votes for John W. Davis as General Dawes has in the Middle West and Northwest by his speeches on agriculture and reclamation.

"Senator Pepper also ventures the opinion that Davis is 'slipping.' Supporting an Administration which will be best remembered for its dealing in oil, Senator Pepper ought to be the last man to talk about any body 'slipping' or 'skidding.'"

Senator Pepper said that the record of the last four years was proof of his assertion that Coolidge and Dawes would lead any business enterprise to honorable prosperity.

"In finance alone," he continued, "the people have ample justification for holding to the present Administration. When we first came into power we cut nearly $4,000,000,000 from Democratic estimates, and still emerged with great surpluses at the end of the year. That is a sum greater than will be spent during the present fiscal year. We have cut the public debt more than $5,000,000,000 and are saving $135,000,000 in interest.

"We have cut the number of Government employes in classified services by 137,000 since July 31, 1920, a date nearly two years after the close of the war. A tax reduction bill was passed in 1921, reducing the public tax bill by $300,000,000 a year, and this last Congress has just cut $450,000,000 more from the annual bill of the American taxpayer.

"With such a record to be proud of, there can be but one result in justice to all, and I am satisfied the result will exceed what are our now fondest expectations."

HYLAN GIVES WAY TO 10-CENT BUSES

num five-cent fare principle, at the end of sixty days.

Following the approval of the resolution, M. P. Stein, Chairman of the Bronx Citizens' Bus Committee, made a brief speech of acknowledgment to the Mayor, in which he said:

"As you know, we have been coming down here for more than a year now, requesting that this board give us relief on the Concourse. We now wish to thank you for your action."

Although there was a throng of franchise seekers in the board room, no others were heard except the Fifth Avenue people and the representative of the Third Avenue lines.

John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, explained that his report on the general bus situation was not yet completed, but would be ready for consideration next Monday, in time for the public hearings on Oct. 23. There are thirty-seven applications pending.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company, through a recent reorganization, announced that it no longer held the bonds of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company. John T. Hertz, head of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company, is the President of the Omnibus Corporation of America, which now controls the Fifth Avenue Coach Company and mobile transportation systems in other cities.

The Fifth Avenue Coach Company has pending before the city a huge plan of comprehensive transportation service by means of motor buses.

DAWES IN NEBRASKA REPLIES TO CRITICS

Says the La Follette Court Issue May Be a 'Straw Man,' but It Has a Punch.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 10.—Charles G. Dawes, making his third campaign trip to this State today, was met by the advice of the leading Democratic newspaper that he had set up a man of straw in his attacks on Senator La Follette's proposed check on the powers of the Supreme Court. In his addresses delivered at various towns from the platform of his special train the Republican Vice Presidential nominee declared:

"If this is a man of straw, he has a pretty good punch. Don't tell me that this is not an issue. It is the whole issue. If it succeeds it means chaos. Let even there be the first intimation of success and see what it does to that confidence upon which all prosperity is based.

"But what is more than a question of prosperity, more than a question of wages, price of farm products or anything else, is the question of our patriotism—where we stand as American citizens."

General Dawes at Grand Island told the story of one of his early fights in Nebraska for lower railroad rates.

"They wanted to keep Nebraska all a cornfield and all a wheatfield upon which they could get the freight tariff for the long haul," he said. "And then they didn't want to let any industries spring up in the interior which would produce products for your home markets which could be shipped 543 miles from Chicago to Omaha.

"Now, how did we meet that question? Not by politics; not by oratory; not by trying to go around and please everybody. It was a fight.

"Questions of that sort are not settled by oratory any more than the question of reparations ever in France at the beginning of this year was settled by oratory. You can't adjust conflicting demands in a solution which is constructive of any problem and please everybody. Here in the State of Nebraska that rate adjustment was made because it was taken up by business men and by farmers who knew their business and who were intelligent men and who stuck to facts, and the proper deductions to be made from these, and fought and got a solution.

"Over there in France, Germany and Italy for five years after the war they had tried to solve the reparations by preaching this doctrine and that doctrine in the various countries, for votes, and they went along until Europe faced the abyss.

"Then what did they do? Just what we as a people have got to do in a great many of these problems—frankly admit that the solution is not to be reached as a matter of politics, but as a matter of good common sense. And they relegated the politicians, the nationalistic demagogues, and got a few uninfluenced men, not swayed by motives of political expediency, to take a dose of good common sense. That is what we need out here. That is the only way we will get anywhere.

"Now, back there is where I learned what the radicalism of the West was—because I was called a radical. We used arguments, and the farmers presented their case from an economic and business standpoint, and we won, but we were called radical."

General Dawes spoke here tonight at the City Auditorium and departed later for Kansas.

COOLIDGE SEES DANGER TO THE CONSTITUTION

Appeals to Californian Veterans to Rally to the Support of It and of the Supreme Court.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10.—Confidence that the ex-service men of America will rally to the defense of the Constitution and the Supreme Court at a time when these institutions are being assailed was expressed by President Coolidge in a telegram of greeting read to the Republican Voters League, an organization of World War veterans, here last night.

"I feel perfectly confident," the message said, "that now, when the Constitution is in danger, when the rights of the weak, of the individual, are proposed to be put in jeopardy by destroying the Supreme Court, when the property of the weak is in danger of confiscation by the same process, the service men will resist all such proposals.

"They have demonstrated in the years of peace the same high loyalty and devotion to their country that they gave in the years of war. To all who have been entrusted with the administration of public affairs it has been an inspiration to know that they could be confident of ready and unqualified support from this important quarter.

"So I send all good wishes for the veterans of the Southwest, with the assurance that the American people and their Government are fully resolved to render every testimony of continued appreciation and gratitude for the services and sacrifices of those who defended their country in its time of most pressing necessity."

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—President Coolidge, in a letter read today at the reunion of the Fourth Division Association, assured the veterans of his "continued devotion to the best interests of all veterans," and praised them for "keeping fresh the patriotic inspiration which moved veterans to their great service in the World War." Such gatherings, he said, stood for "far more than a mere pleasure which the members have in renewing friendships and recalling their experiences."

MOSES RIDICULES 3D PARTY CLAIMS

Admits La Follette Will Poll Big Vote, but Asserts He Cannot Win.

POINTS OUT "REAL DANGER"

Says Progressive Bloc May Elect Enough Congressmen to Cause Another Deadlock.

Admitting that Senator La Follette would poll a big vote on election day, Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire said in an interview at Republican Eastern headquarters yesterday that even if La Follette gets seventy-six electoral votes, Coolidge can still be elected. Senator Moses ridiculed the claims of the La Follette managers that he could get more than seventy-six electoral votes.

"The only mystery of the campaign in the West is the aggregate strength of the La Follette party, and his campaign may be properly described as an attempt to take a census of the radical strength in the country," said Senator Moses.

"There is no doubt that the La Follette ticket will secure many votes. However, it is possible to concede to La Follette the seventy-six electoral votes which his managers at first claimed for him and yet elect President Coolidge by a comfortable margin.

"The later claims of the La Follette managers are ridiculous. They cannot possibly carry Oregon; they will not carry California; they will not carry Idaho; the chances are that they will be unable to carry either Minnesota or Iowa. Subtract the votes of these States from the number which the La Follette managers have now set as their mark, and the result is obvious.

"The real danger of the La Follette movement, as I see it, is in the Senatorial and Congressional elections. In some States, notably Colorado, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Montana and possibly Illinois, where there are sitting Republican Senators, where an aggressive Republican campaign is being carried on against Democratic Senators, the La Follette movement has complicated the situation. The danger is that we shall find a situation in Washington after March 4 exactly such as exists now at the mercy of the La Follette bloc."

Former Governor Edward C. Stokes of New Jersey, who visited New York headquarters, predicted that New Jersey would go Republican by 150,000 and would send at least nine Republican members to Congress. He said the speech of General Dawes in Newark on the night of Oct. 24 would be a big event.

"The Socialist third party," he went on, "will pull heavily in our State from the Democrats, radicals and Socialists. Our big fight in New Jersey is against the third party and the radical candidate. We have not forgotten his attitude when this country was entering the World War. His position at that time caused the late President Roosevelt to call him a 'copperhead.'"

The German, Polish and Lithuanian speaking vote in Connecticut and Massachusetts will go Republican, according to William A. Scully, director of the Republican Foreign Language Bureau.

SECRET RAIL CONTRACT IS DENIED BY DR. WORK

Declares Wheeler Is 'Misinformed' as to Alaska Steamship and Alaska Railroad Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—A denial was made today by Secretary Work of the recent charge by Senator Wheeler that he had made a "secret agreement" between the Alaska Steamship Company and the Alaska Railroad, a Government-operated concern.

"Senator Wheeler seems to have been misinformed about this matter," said Mr. Work in a statement given out today. "The joint tariff contract between the Alaska Steamship Company is not a 'secret agreement.' It is on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and any one who wants to see it may do so by simply making the request.

"Moreover, the contract is not an exclusive contract made between the Alaska Steamship Company and the Alaska Railroad. There is another steamship line with which the Alaska Railroad has the same identical contract, both in wording and in the division of rates. This company is the Pacific Steamship Company, a competitor of the Alaska Steamship Company.

"Yesterday representatives of this department went over to the Interstate Commerce Commission and asked to see the joint freight rate contract between the Alaska Steamship Company and the Alaska Railroad. They were immediately presented with it. This contract, as well as the other made between the Alaska Railroad and the Pacific property, is accessible at all times to any citizen of the United States.

"As a matter of record, it was announced by the management of the Alaska Railroad at the time these contracts were made that a similar arrangement is open to any other transportation line which desires to enter the Alaska trade."

JERSEY DRYS FAIL TO GET ON BALLOT

But Voters May Write in the Name of Dr. Day, Candidate for U. S. Senator.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 10.—Dr. Grafton E. Day of Collingswood, chosen Wednesday by the Prohibition Party as its candidate for United States Senator after the Rev. James E. Shields of the Anti-Saloon League had withdrawn at the last minute in favor of Senator Edge, will not have his name on the official general election ballot.

The Prohibition Party had until today to file petitions bearing 800 signatures and notified Secretary of State Martin that instead of doing so it would content itself with an informal campaign to have dry voters write in Dr. Day's name.

Despite Mr. Shields's formal retirement from the race his name may appear on the official ballots in several counties. The Secretary of State's office had already certified his candidacy to the various County Clerks before notice of his withdrawal was filed. The Secretary will now notify the clerks of the withdrawal, but he has no authority to direct that the name be left off the ballots. It is believed by wet followers that the dry may attempt to make a show of strength by voting for either Shields or Day. If they do so, Mayor Frederick W. Donnelly of Trenton, the Democratic candidate for Senator, and a wet, will be the winner.

George L. Record of Jersey City is also running for Senator on the La Follette-Wheeler ticket, but is not expected to draw votes from either Edge or Donnelly.

DRYS ASSAIL ROOSEVELT.

Anti-Saloon League Organ Says He is Still "Wet."

The Anti-Saloon League made public yesterday an editorial which will appear in The American Issue today charging that Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is still "wet" despite his remarks on law enforcement in his acceptance speech at Oyster Bay on Oct. 1. The article says that a casual reading of his speech might lead one to believe that he favored a "real prohibition enforcement law," but that he actually did not propose anything more than a law requiring State officers to report to Federal officers whatever they might discover about violation of Federal law.

According to the editorial, the reason for the declaration was that Senator Wadsworth, Roosevelt's political sponsor, was "perturbed at the effect of Roosevelt's wetness."

"The net result of Mr. Roosevelt's statement," it adds, "has been to a degree to accomplish what it was intended to accomplish—that is, to fool the drys."

LABOR IN CAMPAIGN TO ELECT DAVIS

York City had called personally upon a Presidential candidate between the time of his nomination and Election Day.

Coming directly on top of Judge Olvany's visit to Mayor Hylan to secure the Mayor's active support for Davis and Smith, the Tammany leader's call on Mr. Davis was regarded as not only another example of the new political methods of Tamany Hall, but as evidence that the Democratic organization in New York would throw itself strongly into the fight for the national candidate as well as for Governor Smith's re-election.

Others who called at Democratic headquarters were Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey; Major Gen. Henry T. Allen, who commanded the American Army of Occupation on the Rhine; Frank L. Polk and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

Mr. Davis and his associates were greatly cheered by the developments and expressed renewed confidence in the result. The workers at headquarters redoubled their efforts to set up a militant fighting machine to work in New York and New England while Mr. Davis is in the Middle West. Wherever Mr. Davis went on his recent up-State tour, they said, he left a lasting determination to "win" among the local leaders. Governor Smith, they went on, did the same in his New England trip. While Mr. Davis is touring the Middle West and Governor Smith is carrying the fight through the upper part of New York State, the Democratic strategists said, they intended to send some of their most seasoned speakers to cultivate the "will to win" which the Democratic candidates have inspired in New England.

Clem L. Shaver, Democratic National Chairman, said that Mr. Davis "put new and tremendous energy into the New York State campaign by the tour just ended," and that Governor Smith had done the same in Massachusetts and New Hampshire. "Everything possible would be done, he continued, "to increase the conflagration Governor Smith and Mr. Davis have started in those States."

Mr. Davis left on his invasion of the Middle West on the 6:05 o'clock train from Pennsylvania Station last evening, about the same time that Governor Smith arrived at the Grand Central Terminal from Boston. The candidate for President will deliver the first speech of his trip at Richmond, Ind., this afternoon, and will speak at Indianapolis tonight. He will centre his trip on Indiana, but will also speak in Illinois, Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee. He will go as far West as St. Louis and as far South as Nashville. He will return to New York on Oct. 23.

Before leaving for the West, Mr. Davis telephoned to Locust Valley, L. I., and asked B. W. Downing, a lumber dealer, to register for him today, which will be the first day of registration at Locust Valley. Mr. Davis explained that, under the law a resident of a rural community did not have to appear in person to register, but could make arrangements over the phone to have some one appear for him.

Mr. Downing, who said he intended to carry out Mr. Davis's instructions, is one of the few Democrats besides the candidate for President in Locust Valley. He said that although the community is normally Republican by an overwhelming majority, he thought this year it would go Democratic.

George White, Democratic National Chairman in 1920, spent Thursday night at Mr. Davis's home, returning to New York in the morning. Colonel Edward M. House had luncheon with Mr. Davis yesterday. Asked what he thought of the situation, Colonel House said he was sure that Davis would make a good run, and that conditions were becoming much brighter in the West.

"I'd rather have Davis's chances than Coolidge's," said Colonel House.

USES SMITH ILLNESS IN ATTACK ON DAVIS

Arthur Hays Says Nominee Should Get "Health Insurance" for His Speakers.

DERIDES DEMOCRATIC CLAIM

Cites Newspaper Polls to Show They Haven't Any Chance to Carry New York State.

Discussing the illness of Governor Smith and William G. McAdoo, Arthur Garfield Hays, State Chairman of the La Follette-Wheeler campaign in New York, suggested yesterday that John W. Davis take out "health insurance" for prominent Democrats who are scheduled to speak for him.

"A few weeks ago, with a great flourish of trumpets," Mr. Hays said, "it was announced at Democratic headquarters that both W. G. McAdoo and Governor Smith would make extensive stumping tours for Davis. Just before Mr. McAdoo was supposed to start, it was announced that he had entered a hospital in Baltimore, and Mr. Smith had no sooner ventured out of this State than he was seized with a mysterious malady which compelled him to cancel his tour. Some special form of health insurance apparently should be invented for prominent Democrats who are announced to speak for Mr. Davis."

Mr. Hays also ridiculed the claim by Mr. Davis and Clem L. Shaver, Democratic National Chairman, that Davis would carry New York State. He said:

"Two newspapers in this city are conducting polls, in both of which Davis is running a poor third in the city. In one poll Davis has 20 per cent. of the votes, Coolidge 42 per cent., La Follette 38 per cent. In the other poll Davis has 26 per cent., Coolidge 32 per cent., La Follette 42 per cent. Apparently Mr. Davis expects to get his plurality up the State, thus putting us back in the age of miracles.

"This claim is about as well founded as the recent announcement by Chairman Butler of the Republican National Committee that the Progressives and Democrats were in a deep conspiracy to throw the election into Congress. Apparently the leaders of both parties are in such a state of panic that they are somewhat irresponsible."

Mr. Hays announced a renewed effort to carry New York State for La Follette and Wheeler. Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, who is campaigning for her husband in the East, will take an active part in the New York drive. She will make a fifteen-minute radio address from Station WJZ at 11 o'clock next Friday morning. It will be specially designed to appeal to women voters.

Mrs. La Follette will also speak at meetings in New York City on Oct. 20 and 21. The La Follette headquarters announced it has received hundreds of requests from farmers' wives throughout the State that they be allowed a chance to hear Mrs. La Follette on the radio. Toward the end of the campaign she will make a five-day tour up-State.

Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch is also using the radio to reach the wives of farmers in her ten-day tour up-State for La Follette and Wheeler. Yesterday she delivered a radio talk at Buffalo. Tonight she will address an audience at Rochester and tomorrow will complete her schedule in this State with a meeting at Port Jervis, after which she will stump Connecticut.

Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota will open his Eastern speaking tour for the third party ticket tonight with speeches at Lockport, Niagara Falls and Tonawanda. Congressman Frear of Wisconsin is due here for a speaking tour on Oct. 20. Frank P. Walsh on Oct. 26 will begin an up-State tour with speeches at Albany and Troy.

Maud Swartz, Rose Schneidermann and Mary Dreier, representing the Women's Trade Union League, left New York yesterday to organize women in industrial centres up-State for La Follette and Wheeler.

COOLIDGE AND TABER TALK FARM PROBLEMS

Head of National Grange Fears Throwing Proposed Commission Into Politics.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—President Coolidge today discussed a farm legislation program for the next session of Congress with Louis J. Taber of Columbus, Ohio, Master of the National Grange.

Mr. Taber, who took luncheon with the President and accompanied him to the closing game of the world's series, said after leaving the White House that he had told the President that the farmer was on the up grade toward a more real prosperity than he had experienced in many years.

"We did not talk politics," said Mr. Taber, who went to the White House wearing a Coolidge button. He declined to comment on the political situation, other than to say that it is a mistake to think that the third party appeals more to the farmers than it does to other sections of the population.

"The President is not worrying about politics at present," Mr. Taber said. "I found the President wonderfully conversant with every phase of the agricultural situation; so much so that he must have given a great deal of attention and study to the factors in the situation that legislation can aid.

"The situation is improving. This is particularly the case in the one-crop section, although the dairy situation is still somewhat behind. The farmers are seeing a little light around the corner and it would be a crime to inject the proposed commission into politics."

The last remark of Mr. Taber had reference to the commission which the President contemplates appointing to formulate a program of agricultural legislation. Mr. Taber has been mentioned as a possible member of the President's commission.

OWEN DENOUNCES WALTON.

Urges Defeat of Ousted Oklahoma Governor for Senator.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 10.—The Democratic candidacy of J. C. Walton, ousted Governor of Oklahoma, for United States Senator from Oklahoma was denounced in a letter yesterday by Senator Robert L. Owen, Democrat, voluntarily retiring.

"He has already done the State enough harm," Senator Owen wrote from Lenox, Mass. "Walton's election would discredit, demoralize and injure the Democratic Party and impair the high standards of Oklahoma in the United States Senate."

Justice Marvin Sworn In.

Municipal Court Justice Benjamin Marvin, appointed by Mayor Hylan a few days ago to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Edgar M. Hazelton, was sworn in in the Fourth Municipal Court of Queens at Jamaica yesterday. Five hundred men and women, many of them lawyers and Judges, attended the ceremonies. Justice Marvin, who is 43 and one of the youngest men on the bench in this city, was formerly Public Works Commissioner in Queens.

WHEN, in the Paris manner, a black satin-moire bow is added to a black felt hat, the sum is a miracle of smartness,

Or, when a great velvet bow poises its graceful wings on a tilted brim, the result is very smart.

JONES AIDS ATTACK ON DIGEST'S POLL

Senator Says Ballots Were Sent to 2.8 Republicans to One Democrat.

CALLS THE METHOD UNFAIR

Asserts "Anybody Could Be Elected to Any Office Under Such a System."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Senator Jones, of New Mexico, Chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, joined today other prominent Democrats in criticising the presidential poll of The Literary Digest. He contended that the poll had been discredited, and estimated that for printing and postage alone The Digest was spending $435,000, and intimated that the publication had been prejudiced in favor of the Mellon tax reduction plan because of its large profits.

Senator Jones's attack on The Digest poll was in the form of a prepared statement given to newspapers by the Democratic National Committee.

"There are two pertinent questions that might be asked The Literary Digest about its presidential poll," said Senator Jones. "The first is, how, if a poll is intended to be fair and accurately reflect public opinion, can The Digest afford to send, as its own tabulations show it has sent, ballots to voters in the ratio of nearly three Republicans to only one Democrat? The second is, how can The Digest afford to spend approximately $1,000,000 a year in two such polls as it has conducted on the Mellon tax plan and the Presidential election?

"If The Digest's profits are so huge that it can afford to take out of its earnings in one year substantially $1,000,000 to conduct only two polls, then it is not surprising that The Digest strongly favored the Mellon tax plan, as did most all individuals and corporations with large annual incomes.

Calls Poll Unfair and Unreliable.

"The Digest's straw vote on the Mellon plan was thoroughly discredited before it was completed, and was shown to be not only unfair in the way it was conducted but utterly unreliable as reflecting the opinion of the American people on that question.

"The Digest says it is sending out 15,000,000 ballots. They go out under one cent postage, with a prepaid one-cent return postcard enclosed, making the postage item, at two cents on each ballot, $300,000. An experienced printer has given me an estimate of about $135,000 for the cost of printing the cards on which the ballots are printed, the explanatory four-page letter accompanying it, and the 15,000,000 envelopes in which these are mailed out.

"This estimate, I was advised, was conservative, and brings the cost of printing and postage up to about $435,000. It includes no estimate of the work of tabulating the 15,000,000 ballots, a large expense in itself, or any overhead expenses. Of this work THE NEW YORK TIMES quotes the editor of The Digest as saying: 'It has taken many weeks in preparation and many weeks in execution, with an enormous staff of employes, working day in and day out, to effect what has been the largest return on a Presidential vote ever taken throughout the nation.'

"This 'enormous staff of employes,' of course, was paid for its work, and must have brought the total cost of the poll up to around $500,000.

"The Digest announced that it was sending out the same number, 15,000,000, of straw ballots on the Mellon tax plan, so that cost as much, making $1,000,000. The Digest has expended in the last ten months on two straw polls.

Suggests a Biased View.

"Of course, I do not know how much The Digest's annual profits are, but if they are so great that they can afford to spend $1,000,000 a year in two polls to further the causes in which the very nature of the polls shows it is prejudiced, it is not to be wondered at that The Digest favored the Mellon tax plan, which placed the major burden of taxation on small taxpayers at the expense of the great, and would like to see retained in power an Administration committed to that sort of principle on taxation. I am assuming, of course, that The Digest is paying all of the expense of these polls out of its own funds.

"The Digest's own tabulation showed that those to whom the ballots had been sent were in the ratio of 2.8 Republicans to 1 Democrat. I am told one Republican woman in the City of Washington has received and mailed in five of these straw ballots for Coolidge. Anybody could be elected to any office under such a ballot system as that.

"Another reason why such a vote is discredited is that a Digest poll taken in a given community will show a heavy majority for Coolidge, while a ballot taken in the same community by a supporter of Senator La Follette shows a majority for the Wisconsin Senator. Trick figures can be made to produce any given result the manipulator may wish to arrive at."

In answer to a question asked by Representative Connally of Texas in a recent speech, William Sever Woods, editor of the Literary Digest, said:

"The Congressman wants to know who is paying our bill for this straw vote. The answer is that the bill is paid by The Literary Digest. It is a business proposition. Attached to each postcard sent for balloting is a subscription blank for the magazine. The returns in subscriptions have been enormous and they have paid the expenses of the poll."

NEW DURATION RECORD MADE BY SEAPLANE

CS-2 Stays Aloft in the Air for Nearly Twenty and One-Half Hours.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—All known duration records, official and unofficial, for a single-motored seaplane were surpassed when the new navy CS-2, combined bombing, scouting and torpedo plane, landed near Quantico, Va., after a 20 hours and 38 minutes non-stop flight this morning.

The giant navy plane took off from the naval air station at Anacostia yesterday with a load of 600 gallons of gasoline, weighing about 3,600 pounds. During the afternoon the CS-2 flew on a course between Washington and the mouth of the Potomac River.

At dusk the pilots headed for Washington and flew in the vicinity of the air station until 1 A. M. this morning when a fog obscured landmarks. The plane was then headed for Hampton Roads and flew over the latter station until early this morning. On the return to Washington the gasoline supply was exhausted near Quantico, and the pilots landed at 7:58 A. M.

An average speed of seventy-three miles per hour was maintained throughout the flight, and a total distance of approximately 1,500 miles was covered.

The pilots, Lieutenants Andrew Crinkley and Ross C. Lyons, U. S. N., carried sandwiches and coffee and alternated in sleeping when off watch.

The plane got off with its heavy load in a run of about three miles down the Potomac River. Three pontoons supported the plane when it took off, but one of these was detached by a mechanical releasing gear as soon as the plane was in the air and was recovered undamaged by the air station personnel.

The CS-2 was constructed by the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company, and is powered with a single Wright T-3 engine of 650 horsepower. It was specially designed for naval use, being quickly convertible from a seaplane to a landplane and capable of operating from the deck of an aircraft carrier.

Its weight is about 4,000 pounds. It is constructed of steel and duralumin, except for the wings, which are of wood and fabric, and so designed that they can be folded back to effect a marked saving in space for stowage on shipboard.

The CS-2 is the first plane that has been produced which combines the three functions of bombing, torpedo carrying and scouting. The Navy Department recently placed production orders with American manufacturers for a number of this type.

BOY SLAYER SAVED FROM THE GALLOWS

Second Degree Murder Verdict Against 18-Year-Old Killer of Woman's Husband.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLEBURG, Pa., Oct. 10.—On the eighteenth anniversary of his birth today, Ralph H. Shadel received the greatest birthday gift he can ever hope to get. The jury before whom he was on trial for his life brought in a verdict of second degree murder, after only two hours' deliberation. The young sweetheart of Mrs. Annie S. Willow, 38, was accused of slaying the woman's husband, Harvey C. Willow, whom he confessed he shot to death on a hunting expedition last December in Monroe Township, Snyder County.

Judge Potter ordered that the boy be brought to court at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning to be sentenced. The maximum sentence is imprisonment for twenty years, with release in ten years for good behavior.

Thus was written the first chapter in the tragedy, which has brought thousands to this village to hear the sordid details of illicit love between the youth and a woman who was 21 years old when he was born. The second chapter will be started on Monday, when Mrs. Willow will go on trial in the same Court.

When the verdict was read to the Court, Ralph merely smiled. Apparently he was as dazed over the excitement as he had been over the recounting of the harrowing details of the killing of Willow. His mother, sitting by his side, took him into her arms and burst into tears. His father joined in the embrace.

Judge Potter had admonished the jury to disregard pity, but to remember that the pauper was to have the same justice as the millionaire. He referred to the defense's contention that Ralph lacked self-governing power, and declared that if the jury agreed he was irresponsible there could be no verdict of first degree murder.

A. Francis Gilbert of Middleburg, chief counsel for the defense, quoted to the jury from Ralph's confession, which recounted how for five months the youth had resisted the advances of Mrs. Willow.

ENRIGHT LIBEL JURY UNABLE TO AGREE

stressed the fining of policemen and their retention on the force after convictions for extorting money from bootleggers. These instances were cited as evidence of corruption on the force under the Mullan-Gage State Enforcement law. Magistrate Corrigan, on the stand, said he did not have any evidence that Enright was a grafter. Mr. Cuvillier refused to testify, insisting he was privileged as a legislator.

Summing up for Magistrate Corrigan, Attorney Arthur L. Hurley asked the jury, "What harm has been done Commissioner Enright? He is still the Commissioner and is still the head of the International Police Conference. Citizens have the right to criticize officials.

"Ninety-nine per cent. of the police are doing their duty well. They are God-fearing, industrious men. There are, however, a few rogues in the department who smirch the others with infamy and disrepute. There is nothing to show Magistrate Corrigan had any malice toward Commissioner Enright. Magistrate Corrigan was trying to do away with a law which had become a joke. We all know the Prohibition law is not being enforced. Must a man be penalized for saying the liquor law is not being enforced in this city?"

Conboy Accuses Enright.

Martin Conboy, counsel for Mr. Cuvillier, summed up in part as follows:

"Law can be used by the police to line their pockets and feather their nests and to make discrimination between lawbreakers. It would be a terrible thing if we had a Police Commissioner who was participating in the discriminatory administration of the law. Enright did not take action against high police officers against whom charges were made. It was Assemblyman Cuvillier's duty to take up a study of the administration of the law and to see whether the liquor law was being enforced. Magistrate Corrigan had heard 10,000 cases a year for seventeen years, all relative to police work. Hence, he was picked by Assemblyman Cuvillier as the one to whom a letter about police conditions should properly be sent.

"The rank and file cannot continue a period of corruption without the connivance of the high officials. The proof shows the officials were cognisant of what was going on. Men were permitted to remain in the department who were known to be crooks and who were charged with the safety of your lives."

Stepping to within a few inches of Enright, the attorney pointed a finger at the Commissioner and said:

"He was recreant in his trust to the people of the City of New York and he should have been dismissed from office."

Mr. Conboy said the majority of policemen were honest. "There are brave men in the department," he went on. "But the Commissioner never got lame treading the streets as a patrolman. He seems always to have had a pretty good job as stenographer or something else at Headquarters."

Charges Plot to Ruin Enright.

In summing up for Commissioner Enright, Harry A. Gordon said:

"Large fees come from the people who are interested in ruining Richard E. Enright. You do not think Louis A. Cuvillier had money enough to retain Martin Conby! I'll tell you who retained Conboy. It was the men to whom it was worth millions of dollars to see Richard E. Enright destroyed.

"There were only twenty-seven cases of alleged graft brought before Commissioner Enright in two years out of 13,000 policemen on the force."

In his charge Justice Callaghan reminded the jury that the action was merely one of libel, and not an attack on the city or its inhabitants. "The telegram," he said, "is libelous on its face. Unless the libel charge is justified by the testimony, then the plaintiff is entitled to your verdict. There is nothing to show justification for sending or publishing the telegram. The fact that one of the defendants is an Assemblyman furnishes him no immunity. Unless the truth of the libelous statement has been shown there should be a verdict for the plaintiff. There is no liability if you find the charges are true."

Taking up the phrase "Enright and his graft collectors," Justice Callaghan said:

"This is libel. It charges that Enright retained men in the Police Department who collected graft. That is a charge which no decent man wants to have made against him. Does the evidence here satisfy you that the charges are true? Does it prove Enright a grafter or that he had graft collectors?"

In the event of a verdict for the plaintiff, said the Court, both defendants were liable equally.

TWO MISSIONARIES ATTACKED IN BURMA

Prof. and Mrs. Gleason, Americans, Victims of Assault by Buddhist Monks.

OTHERS HURT IN DISORDERS

Infuriated Religionists Start Reprisals After Arrest and Conviction of a Leader.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RANGOON, Burma, Oct. 10.—Seven Buddhist monks have been arrested in connection with a murderous assault on Professor and Mrs. Gleason.

Both victims, who are Americans, were severely injured but are progressing favorably.

After the forcible breaking up of a Fytche Square meeting, following the conviction of U. Ottoma, a prominent Buddhist monk and a leader of the Extremists, the Buddhist monks were alleged to have vowed to wreak vengeance on the police. This threat was not taken seriously, but on Wednesday night the monks assaulted a native police patrol, who were told they would be killed if they failed to resign from the police force.

This assault was not very serious and was regarded as an isolated affair, but last night a gang of some twenty monks savagely assaulted Professor and Mrs. Gleason of Judson College while they were walking along the street. Both were badly cut about the head and were removed to a hospital. Military police surrounded the monastery where the monks reside, and an inquiry is proceeding, while seven monks have been arrested in connection with the assault.

Both the victims, though severely wounded, are progressing favorably.

Assaults with knives are also reported on a young European named Newman and on a British soldier.

The assembly of the Buddhist monks at Moulmein telegraphed to the Governor demanding the immediate release of Ottama on the ground that his arrest was unlawful and interference with the Buddhist religion, offering themselves for imprisonment with Ottama and demanding repeal of the section of penal code under which Ottama was convicted.

The Government replied denying interference with their religion and insisting that all citizen monks or otherwise, must obey the law or suffer the consequences. It also points out that it is against the tenets of Buddhism to stir up hatred and contempt of the established Government and urged the monks to use their influence in the cause of peace and harmony.

The fury of the monks now seems to be directed against the Europeans, but the authorities have taken all necessary precautions, especially in connection with the end of the Buddhist Lent festival on Sunday and Monday next, when there will be an enormous gathering of Buddhists at the shrine of the Dagon Pagoda.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—U. Ottama, prominent Buddhist priest and Extremist leader, was found guilty on October 8 of attempting to bring the Government into hatred and contempt by violent speeches, and was sentenced to three years imprisonment with hard labor. The announcement of the sentence was followed by a demonstration in Fytche Square which the police had to disperse.

The Guide Book for 1924-1025 of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, the headquarters of which are in the Holland Building, Fifth Avenue and Thirtieth Street, gives the names of P. R. Gleason and Mrs. Gleason as members of the staff of Judson Baptist College at Rangoon, India.

Professor and Mrs. Gleason went to Burma only last year. Professor Gleason is from Corona, Cal., and is a member of the First Baptist Church there. Mrs. Gleason was originally from West Somerville, Mass.

Dr. R. L. Howard is principal of Judson College, and G. S. Jury is Vice Principal. Aside from Professor and Mrs. Gleason the other members of the Faculty are the Rev. Dr. D. Gilmore, Dr. Wallace St. John, Dr. C. E. Van Horn, Dr. G. E. Gates, R. N. Crawford, Miss Helen K. Hunt and Miss Marian E. Shivers.

The college is the centre of a great Christian mission carried on by American Baptists. Rangoon, which is the capital city of Burma, was only a village of mud huts when the Rev. Adoniram Judson, the first Baptist missionary to Burma, landed in 1813 and began his now famous work.

Judson College consists of four residences, and four residences with dormitories above or beneath; Cushing Memorial, with dormitories, labratories, library, classrooms and offices, three other dormitories and another with dining hall attached; Memorial Chapel and a teachers' house.

ANATOLE FRANCE LOW.

He is Unconscious and Takes Very Little Nourishment.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—The long agony of Anatole France seems drawing to a close. Only rarely in these last few days has he awakened from unconsciousness, and this morning during one of such moments, seeming to feel the end approach, he whispered: "It will be for today."

But late tonight the news came through from La Bachellerie that he is still alive.

During the morning he was given some sips of champagne. He said: "How good it is. I shall have some more."

Then he lapsed back into unconsciousness.

He is not dying of disease. The doctors declare that both heart and lungs are quite sound. There is no lesion anywhere. The other day one of his closest friends declared: "His life is flickering out like a candle which has burned down to the socket."

And so it is.

Tomorrow it is almost certain the end will come, for the doctors have great difficulty in giving their patient any nourishment.

During his life, it is being said of him now, he never talked of death.

The bulletin issued today by the doctors is interpreted as giving no further hope and it is no exaggeration to say that all France is already in mourning.

BANK BANDITS GET $20,000.

Hidden in Oklahoma Building, They Surprise Employes on Arrival.

BRISTOW, Okla., Oct. 10.—Two bandits, hiding in the Olitan State Bank at Olton, surprised three employes when they opened the bank for business today, forced them to open the vault and escape with $20,000.

The employes arrived at 7:20 o'clock. After they had opened the vault, they were forced by the robbers to lie on the floor, while the marauders leisurely rifled the vault. They remained until after 8 o'clock and then joined a third man who had waited outside in an automobile.

CARLYLE, Ill., Oct. 10.—Four robbers early today held up the night operator at the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad station here and escaped with a pouch of first class mail and $30 in cash.

"His Reasoning Was Always Geometrical and his opinion angular," said Dr. Sangrudo, "and he never could understand why his arrogant views did not meet with favor."

The facts are, that some men are so overloaded with book-learning that they are seldom practical in the common affairs of life.

To see ourselves sometimes as "ithers" see us would do us a lot of good.

EDUCATION NEEDS PUT BEFORE SOVIET

TEACHERS GET $13 A MONTH

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Oct. 10.—In an eloquent plea for greater attention to educational problems, M. Lunacharsky, People's Commissioner for Education, told members of the Russian Central Executive today that the educational situation in the country was causing his department apprehension.

He said there was a great difference between the educational problems of the country and those the Soviets sought to solve. In a three-hour speech he drew a pathetic picture of a general craving for education among the masses of the population, and laid special stress upon the assertion that school teachers and professors long ago had made peace with the Soviet and, though being poorly paid, they stood heart and soul for the advancement of the Soviet educational program.

He spoke feelingly of elementary schools in the rural districts and State homes deserted by children. Since 1922, he said, the general level of education showed a great decline, and the number of schools diminished. Before the war Russia had 62,000 elementary schools, with 4,500,000 children. During the first years of the revolution the number of schools was increased to 76,000, with 6,000,000 children, but beginning with 1922 their number fell off, with the result that now there are only 49,000 places providing education for only 3,500,000 children.

The secondary schools also diminished in that period by 1,500, although in comparison with the pre-war period their number increased twofold. Still greater was the havoc wrought among institutions of the kindergarten type. Out of 4,600 institutions created in the early days of the revolution, only 700 now remain. This, M. Lunacharsky attributed to lack of funds and the dependence for upkeep upon local expenses.

He said the situation was critical, and urged the Government to instruct local authorities to abstain from a further closing of schools.

According to a recent investigation undertaken by the Commissariat of Education, said M. Lunacharsky, rural schools were sparsely attended. People do not send their children to school because they are barefooted and the schools themselves are badly equipped and unheated and the cost of textbooks and writing utensils is beyond the means of the peasantry. A pencil costs five pounds of rye, a writing book five and a textbook from 40 to 120 pounds of rye.

The total sum assigned this year in the budget for education is 60,000,000 rubles, which is nearly 20,000,000 more than last, but this, said M. Lunacharsky, was hardly sufficient to raise the salaries of the teachers to $13 a month in the towns and $8 in the rural districts. Professors who before the war were in receipt of salaries of 500 rubles upward monthly, now are getting 40 or 50 rubles.

A resolution, comprising twenty-one points, urging the consolidation of elementary and higher education and recommending raising the salaries of teachers to $15 a month was sent to the commission for further discussion.

SAY PARIS MURDERESS FAILED AS A COQUETTE

Newspapers Seize Chance, Missed by the Judge, to Lecture on Silk Stockings.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—During a hearing this morning of the Countess de Kernion, who is in the prison of Lannion accused of murdering her husband, the defendant suddenly turned on the sweetheart of the late Count and cried:

"I have never worn silk stockings myself."

The Judge, with magisterial dignity, passed over this remark. For the oversight the Paris newspapers this afternoon condemn him for missing a very apt opportunity for a social discourse. One of these newspapers, the Paris Soir, suggests that the following lecture would have been suitable:

"You have never worn silk stockings! You made a great mistake, madame. If you had worn silk stockings, fine lingerie, stylish robes and the things that go with all these, perhaps your husband never would have deceived you and you would never have had a motive to kill him.

"Whatever one thinks in honorable but somewhat backward circles, coquetry is the first duty of a woman to whom God and man have given the care of a husband. It is also the first duty of all women, married or single, if they be like you—rich, idle and of no particular usefulness—to gladden the sight of their fellow-creatures."

It should be added that relatives of the murdered Count charge that the Countess has given all her late husband's wealth to her own son by a former marriage.

SINCLAIR GETS CONCESSION.

Accepts Oil Grant in Persian Province—No Provision for Loan.

TEHERAN, Persia, Oct. 10.—A representative of the Sinclair Oil Company has telegraphed the Persian Government, accepting the oil concession in Northern Persia. No provision is made for a loan to Persia.

The concession in question was authorized under legislation adopted by the Persian Parliament in June, 1923, which, according to a statement given out by the Persian Minister in Washington, provided that the concessionnaire arrange a loan of at least $10,000,000 for the Persian Government through American banks.

A preliminary agreement with the Sinclair interests was reported to have been signed last December.

CELLS FOR SEEKERS OF PARIS DIVORCES

Court Finds It Necessary to Avoid Clashes in 'Reconciliation' Meetings.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Divorce seekers in Paris henceforth will have to make a short sojourn behind bars and under lock and key. On the second floor of the Paris Court House workers are installing iron and steel gates—built along the lines of cell doors—at the entrances of waiting rooms where the men and women await their turn to appear before the Judge.

According to French law, when suit is entered for divorce the Judge, in a final effort at conciliation, summons before him both husband and wife. This is known as the meeting "in extremis."

Two waiting rooms, separated by a corridor, have in the past sheltered respectively women and men until their particular case was reached. The corridor, however, proved woefully inadequate to separate the estranged pairs, as daily some wife could not resist the temptation of creeping over to the men's waiting room and telling her husband what she thought of his character. Sometimes it was the husband who invaded the women's room and in bitter terms reproached the unfaithful spouse.

The result was continuous disputes and other shows. Many a hand left the court house bearing the marks of madam's fingernails and several women departed with half dishevelled and headgear torn.

From now on husbands and wives desirous of severing the matrimonial tie will be ushered into the courts and the steel gates locked behind them to be released one by one when their names are called.

REPORT HUMBERT ENGAGED.

Rome Hears Crown Prince Will Wed Marie Jose of Belgium.

ROME, Oct. 10.—Unofficial reports that a marriage engagement had been arranged between Crown Prince Humbert of Italy and Princess Marie Jose, daughter of the Belgian King and Queen, have caused showers of congratulations to be cabled to the Crown Prince, now on his way home from his extended trip to South America.

No official confirmation of the engagement has been made, but in well-informed circles it is stated that an official announcement of the engagement is expected on Oct. 20, immediately after the Prince's return to Italy.

PHILIPPINE TYPHOON KILLS 30 IN CAGAYAN

Hundreds of Homes Are Swept Away—Province Is Completely Isolated.

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 10 (Associated Press).—Thirty persons are dead and many are missing, as the result of a typhoon which swept over the Cagayan Valley, according to a telegram received today from the Cagayan provincial constabulary commander.

The report added that although the typhoon occurred a week ago, many sections of Cagayan Province remain shut off from communication, and the death list may be increased largely when complete reports are received.

The typhoon sank many launches and gallboats, and hundreds of small houses were torn from their foundations and carried away.

Total damage done by the disturbance will reach several hundred thousand dollars according to reports.

Washington Wins Its First World's Series, Beating Giants in Final Game, 4-3

turned handsprings for joy. Other staid citizens danced and skipped around the field, throwing their hats into the air, caring not where they fell. In front of the Washington dugout fully 5,000 persons pushed and elbowed. The air was full of flying cushions and torn programs. Pieces of newspapers floated down like snow from the upper tier. Hats and canes and overcoats departed abruptly from their owners as the massed thousands stood and cheered in a paroxysm of ecstasy.

You may talk of your college celebrations, but there has been none to compare with this demonstration. If there had been coal pots, all of Washington would have marched under them and then marched again. When they had thrown their hats over the crossbar, they would have torn down the posts, ripped them to pieces and kept them as souvenirs.

New Haven, after a Yale football triumph, was a deserted village compared to Washington. Cambridge or Princeton never saw the riotous enthusiasm that the capital is seeing tonight.

The story of this game will be told and retold for days and weeks and years. In the main it is the story of two evenly matched teams staking on the fortunes of one contest the highest honors in baseball. Into three hours of the best baseball ever played were compressed the hopes and aims of a whole season. Six months of preparation and hard play hung in the balance in a single afternoon. A misplay here, an error there and a championship would be decided.

It was a game that either team might have won. All the ifs and buts of this contest, if piled end on end, would make a mass higher than the Washington Monument. The Giants may mourn because of the errors of Gowdy and Jackson, but on the other hand two Washington mistakes in the sixth sent the Giants into a two-run lead that looked impregnable.

Breaks of Game Decide.

In the end it was the breaks of the game that told. Twice a ball rolled toward Lindstrom, struck hard ground and bounced freakishly over the third baseman's head. On the last occasion the sun, streaming through the rear of the stand, struck Lindstrom's eyes and blinded him just as he was set for McNeely's ground drive.

If either ball down the third-base line had bounded truly, if the sun had been higher or lower, the Giants would have won.

Harris's home run in the fourth, which scored the first run of the game, was also a vagary of fate. When the coin was tossed to determine where the deciding game would be played, Clark Griffith called the toss and won. If the game had been played at the Polo Grounds, Harris's drive would have been caught. On the flip of a coin, as much as on anything else, the 1924 championship was decided. That was the kind of series it was.

In the sixth the Giants, playing with the precision of a machine, scored three runs and seemed to have the game won. Mogridge, then pitching for Washington, gave Young a base on balls and got into a jam. Enter George Kelly. At the count of three and one Young was away for second and Kelly swung. The ball went to centre for a single and Young raced to third.

At this point McGraw sent Irish Meusel to bat for Bill Terry because a left-hander was in the box, but Harris could be just as strategical himself. He met the move by withdrawing Mogridge and calling Fred Marberry from the bullpen. Meusel immediately drove a long fly to Rice, and Young scored after the catch with the tying run.

But the Senators weren't out of the woods yet. Wilson bounded a single over the pitcher's head to centre, and Kelly, by daring base running, made it third. Here were runners on first and third, with only one out, yet the Giants wouldn't have scored another run but for the same thing that beat them later—the breaks of the game. For when Jackson rolled an easy grounder to Judge, the first baseman fumbled. Even worse than that, when he got the ball he stood with it in his hand while Kelly sprinted to the plate and Jackson ran past Judge to first.

There was one unearned run, and another developed when Gowdy cracked a grounder to Bluege. An easy double play was in sight, but Bluege let the ball roll through him to the left, and Wilson hurried in from second.

The next act in the great drama took place in the eighth. Virgil Barnes, pitching with marvelous skill and superb confidence, had allowed only three hits up to that time.

Washington on the Way.

When Bluege, the first batter in the eighth, lifted a foul which Gowdy caught, the crowd groaned in deep misery. Nemo Liebold, short and squatty, appeared at the plate to bat for Taylor, and it was Liebold who started Washington on a tie score. He caught one of Barnes's first offerings squarely on the end of his bat and slapped a two-bagger which grazed third base as it passed.

Even now there wasn't much hope in the situation. Muddy Ruel was at bat, and Muddy hadn't made a hit in the series. But the slim little catcher could deliver this time. He punched a swift grounder toward right, and Kelly was lucky to break it down. On the hit Liebold went to third, and Tate was sent to the front to bat for Marberry.

Barnes's control deserted him in this crisis and he walked Tate, filling the bases. But when McNeely lined squarely into Meusel's hands, the Giants breathed easier. There were two out, but Harris, who was at bat, had made two hits already. Still, the New York camp was somewhat worried. Gowdy stopped the game while he ran over to the bench and talked with McGraw. Whatever the Little Napoleon said to him have been wise, but it couldn't cope with the workings of fate. Harris didn't hit the ball hard, but just as his grounder hit in front of Lindstrom the pellet took a sudden leap, cleared the fielder's head by a foot and rolled on out to left field.

Miller and Ruel, of course, scored easily, and the winning run was on second base with Rice up. In this critical situation McGraw again turned to Nehf, and from the bull pen walked the little southpaw, who yesterday had been beaten by the Senators. It was an efficacious move, for Rice sent a grounder spinning to Kelly and was out easily at first.

Johnson Comes to Rescue.

Walter Johnson walked to the mound as the ninth inning started, and from that moment on the Giants were a beaten team. Hit him they did on Wednesday, and hit him they did in the four innings today. But here was a different Johnson, a Johnson something like the great pitcher who this season contributed twenty-four victories to Washington's pennant effort. Here was a Johnson cooler and fitter than he had been at any time in the series, with a curve ball better controlled and a fast ball that twice struck out Kelly when a hit would have spelled victory.

After all, there was still something in Johnson's good right arm. His baseball epitaph was not written after Wednesday's game. He had failed twice, but the glorious moment came when he tried and won in the supreme crisis of the series.

True, he wasn't the Johnson of old. The Giants got a man on base in every inning against him. Walter probably would have given ten years of his life to have turned the clock back ten years. The Johnson of 1913, the Kansas Cyclone and the Speed King, would have mowed the batters down as fast as they came up. But with what he had in this hour and day, 37 years old and a veteran of eighteen years' service, Johnson performed one of the heroic achievements of his career.

Frisch tripled to deep centre in the ninth, a mighty blow, and again it looked as if the Giants would win. However, Johnson, calling on strategy, passed Young intentionally, fanned Kelly on three pitched balls and made Meusel go out on a grounder to Miller.

The Washington half of the same inning throbbed with action. It was a dark and sombre crisis for the Giants. Following Frisch's pretty falling stop at Goslin's grounder, Judge singled to centre. Bluege hit to Kelly, who threw too quickly to second, which was uncovered because of Jackson's slowness in covering. When he got the ball in his glove Jackson dropped it, and the pill rolled several feet behind him, with Judge scurrying to third and Bluege safe at first.

All long fly meant the game, and so McGraw again switched pitchers, sending Nehf out and ordering Hugh McQuillan to the little hill. The crowd was in a frenzied uproar now. Nerves were stretched to the breaking point. But the Giants were still cool, as manfully they fought to stem the tide. Taylor made a sparkling play on Kelly's bounder and retired him at first, Young going to second. Marberry took Meusel's bounder and tagged him out on the base line. No runs. No hits. No errors.

SENATORS—Harris got a hit to Jackson. Rice hit into a double play on a grounder to Kelly. Long George picked up the ball, touched first, then threw out Harris to Jackson. With the count three and two, Goslin crashed a single to right. Judge lifted an easy fly to Wilson for the final out. No runs. Two hits. No errors.

Eighth Inning.

GIANTS—Marberry struck out Wilson with three pitched balls. Jackson was safe at first on Bluege's error. Goslin caught Gowdy's fly, Jackson holding first. Barnes struck out. No runs. No hits. One error.

SENATORS—McGraw started warming up Nehf and McQuillan when the Senators came to bat. Gowdy caught Bluege's foul fly. Nemo Liebold batted for Taylor. Liebold doubled down the third base line. Muddy Ruel got his first hit of the series when he singled off Kelly's glove, Liebold reaching third. Tate batted for Marberry. The first pitch to Tate was a ball. He fouled the next one. Dinneen called the next one a strike. The next was low and far inside. The next one was also a ball, and the count was three and two. Tate walked, filling the bases. Bryan came in and talked to Barnes. Shirley ran for Tate. Barnes's first pitch to McNeely was too low. On the next one McNeely fled out to Meusel, all three runners holding their bases. As Harris came to bat Gowdy went over to the Giants' dugout to talk to McGraw. Harris singled over Lindstrom's head, scoring Liebold and Ruel with the runs that tied the score. Play was stopped while the Giants conferred in the centre of the field, and the crowd cheered and booed. Barnes walked off the mound and into the Giants' dugout and Nehf took his place. With Shirley on second and Harris on first, Rice came up to bat. Rice drove a long foul down the third base line. Rice grounded to Kelly, who retired him at first, unassisted. Two runs. Three hits. No errors.

Ninth Inning.

GIANTS—As Johnson came through the centre of the field to pitch for the Senators the crowd gave him perhaps a greater ovation than he ever received. The Senators had Miller at third base in place of Taylor. Lindstrom was the first batter to face Johnson. He lifted an easy fly to Miller. Frisch tripled to deep centre. Johnson passed Young intentionally, and the Senators' infield dropped back for a double play. Johnson struck out Kelly with three pitched balls. Young stole second base. With the call two balls and one strike on Meusel, Irish grounded to Miller and was out at first, and Judge saved the latter a bad throw with a great stretching catch. No runs. One hit. No errors.

SENATORS—Frisch made a nice play on Goslin's grounder and got his man at first. Judge singled to centre. Nehf made three unsuccessful trys to pick Judge off first. Bluege hit to Kelly, and on the latter's toss to Jackson to force Judge at second the shortstop dropped the ball. Judge went on to third while Bluege was safe at first. It was Jackson's error. McGraw took out Nehf and sent Hughie McQuillan to the mound. McQuillan was smiling when he took the slab. His first pitch was a ball, but on the next one Miller grounded straight to Jackson and into a double play which cut short the Senators' rally. No runs. One hit. One error.

Tenth Inning.

GIANTS—Wilson walked. Jackson was called out on strikes. Gowdy hit into a double play, Johnson to Bluege to Judge. No runs. No hits. No errors.

SENATORS—Frisch went back to take Ruel's grounder and threw him out to Kelly. Johnson drove deep to Wilson in left centre. McQuillan struck out McNeely. No runs. No hits. No errors.

Eleventh Inning.

GIANTS—Heinie Groh batted for McQuillan. Groh singled between Harris and Judge. Southworth ran for Groh. Lindstrom sacrificed Southworth to second, Judge to Harris. In one of the tensest situations of the game Johnson struck out Frisch. Once more Johnson passed Young purposely to get at Kelly. And once more he struck out Long George, while the nerve-worn and tense fans again went mad. No runs. One hit. No errors.

SENATORS—Bentley went to the mound for the Giants. Harris hoisted a fly to Young. Rice drove Wilson back in deep left center to catch his fly. Goslin dropped a Texas leaguer between Wilson and Frisch which went for a double. Judge received an intentional pass. Young and Meusel changed fields, Young going to left and Meusel to right. Bluege hit to Jackson, whose toss to Frisch forced Judge at second. No runs. One hit. No errors.

Twelfth Inning.

GIANTS—Meusel singled to right. Johnson struck out Wilson. Jackson forced Meusel at second, Bluege to Harris, the latter's throw being too late to catch the Giants' shortstop at first for a double play. Gowdy lifted an easy fly to Goslin. No runs. One hit. No errors.

SENATORS—Meusel and Young returned to their former places. Frisch came tearing in to take Miller's bounder and tossed him out at first. Gowdy dropped Ruel's foul pop for an error. Ruel tripped a double past third. Johnson hit to Jackson, who fumbled the ball, the big pitcher being safe at first and Ruel holding second. McNeely bounded a single over Lindstrom's head, scoring Ruel and winning the game for Washington. One run. Two hits. Two errors.

THE JOHNSON OF OLD TOO MUCH FOR GIANTS

'Comes Back' Just Long Enough to Sweep McGraw's Men to Their Bitterest Defeat.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Dreams came true in the twelfth—Washington's dream and Walter Johnson's—and when the red September sun dropped down behind the dome of the Capitol the Senators were the baseball champions of the world.

Washington waited twenty-five years for a world's series, but when it came it was the greatest one in history, and the king of pitchers waited eighteen years for the sweetest victory of his career.

For just long enough to beat the Giants, 4 to 3, in the seventh and deciding game of the Old Master was the Johnson of old, the Kansas Cyclone, sweeping the proud champions of the National League down to their bitterest defeat.

"The team that won't be beaten, can't be beaten." Today that team was Washington. But the Giants did not deserve to lose. Chance and fate turned against the gray-clad team from the banks of the Hudson, but they went down fighting in the only way they knew and New York may still be proud of them.

Fate made a mark after the name of John McGraw in the eighth and closed the book. It was in that inning that the Little Napoleon of the Diamond met his Waterloo. With the dogged, silver-haired Senators six all but beaten team and victory hovering over the Giants' bench, Bucky Harris hit a lucky bounding single over the head of young Lindstrom which scored two runs, tied the count and stemmed the tide that at a moment before had been sweeping his team to defeat. It was not a hard hit, nor a clean one, but it counted and the Giants never quite recovered from it.

When the Senators took the field it was behind the broad shoulders of Walter Johnson, and this time their hero did not fail them. In danger in every one of the four innings that he worked, he rose superbly to every emergency. In each succeeding crisis he became a little more the master, a little more the terrible blond Swede of baseball fable. Twice he struck out Long George Kelly when one hung by a thread so fine that thousands in the tense, silent throng turned their heads away with every pitch.

Somewhere, perhaps, in that little patch of sunlight that was filtering through the shadowy stands and down in front of the pitcher's mound the once mightiest arm of all was finding the strength to do the thing that twice before had balked it. In those four innings the grand old man struck out five batters, and when his need was direst he was best. Twice he turned McGraw's team back with two runners waiting to score and two other times with one.

In the very first inning that Johnson pitched Frisch, the second batter to face him, tripled and then staged the third to first and home while the calm Kansan passed Young intentionally, struck out Kelly and then made Meusel roll to the third baseman for the final out.

Again in the tenth, Wilson, first to face him, drew a pass, stayed on first while Jackson fanned and then died in a double play, Johnson to Bluege to Judge.

But it was in the eleventh that Johnson reached his greatest heights. Here it was that McGraw made his most desperate bid for victory. He sent the crippled Heinie Groh up with his bottle bat to bat for McQuillan when the inning began, and Heinie delivered a difficult single to right. Southworth scurried down to first to run for Groh, and no sooner was he there than Lindstrom moved him on to second with a perfect sacrifice bunt. The winning run was on second, there was only one out and Frankie Frisch was at bat.

Here was a situation to make any pitcher quail. That is, any pitcher but Walter Johnson. Frisch was captain of his team, but not of his fate, as it turned out; that was in the big, broad palm of the man he was facing. Up and down went that right arm. There was a prayer on every pitch, but there was something else on them, too. Frisch will tell you that. He swung three times, missed three times and sat down.

But the danger was not over yet. Young and Kelly were still to come. Young came, and went to first on four pitched balls. Kelly came, and went to first on three strikes, but the rest of the Giants went with him, and the Senators came in to bat. Long George had paid dearly for that home run he hit off Johnson last Saturday. He knows now why they call Walter the Old Master.

Once more in the twelfth the Giants put the Big Train in the hole at the start when Irish Meusel singled to right, but this time the lower end of the batting order was up and Wilson fanned, Jackson grounded to Bluege and Gowdy flied to Goslin.

Johnson not only saved the game with his arm, he also helped to win it with his bat. In the tenth he nearly turned the trick all alone. He drove a mighty fly to deep left centre, but it lacked a few feet of being long enough for a home run, which would have turned a great game into an epic.

Wilson was under the ball and Sir Walter was out, but not down. He came back in that fierce and final rally in the twelfth. With Miller out on a grounder to Frisch, Gowdy made a $50,000 muff of a foul pop off Muddy Ruel's bat when he stumbled over his mask and let the ball get away from him. It was baseball history repeating itself. McGraw and Christy Mathewson lost the 1912 championship when Fred Snodgrass dropped a fly ball in the twelfth.

Granted this reprieve little Muddy from the Big Muddy hammered a double over third base and Washington's first baseball championship was in the making. Johnson jabbed a hard grounder at Jackson and Travis made the second error of a bad afternoon. Ruel wisely clung to second while Jackson scrambled for the ball.

McNeely's Winning Blow.

With first and second occupied, Earl McNeely hit another hopper over Lindstrom that was twin brother to Harris's hit of the eighth except that it was a little harder and, therefore, a more legitimate hit. As the ball rolled into left, Ruel, running as he had never run before, rounded third and charged home for the plate. Meusel, galloping in from deep left, picked up the ball, but didn't even throw it. It would have been the proper gesture, but neither one of the Meusel boys are given to gestures.

Irish knew, as did the joy-mad crowd, that the game was over. He kept running on in toward the plate with the ball in his hands. The rest of the Giants stood motionless and stunned and in the next instant the crowd swirled over the diamond and picked out the quiet men in gray and leaping ones in white.

Many in the roaring throng that came piling on the field like college boys after the victory of their football team thought that it was Pep Young who carried off the field the ball that beat the Giants. With two out and two on, in the Senators' half of the eleventh, and Bluege, a dead left field hitter at bat, McGraw had shifted Young and Meusel to get the faster man into left, but they went back to their regular positions in the twelfth.

This jockeying about of players was typical of the entire game, for it was a battle of wits as well as bats and balls. Bucky Harris tried to cross his veteran rival on the New York bench even before the game started. He announced that he would pitch Curley Ogden, a right-hander, and actually sent him to the mound, although he planned to have him pitch to only one batter. The idea was to induce McGraw to name the line-up he had been using against right-handers and then to send Mogridge, a southpaw, to the mound.

The New York manager could, of course, shift his team to meet the change, but if he did he could not change back again if Mogridge was knocked out and Marberry, another right-hander, sent in. In other words, Terry's being named in the line-up actually put him in the game and he could not be withdrawn and then sent back.

McGraw Counters Neatly.

Ogden struck out Lindstrom and then started walking toward the Washington bench, but Harris showed himself to be a shrewd leader by calling him back and having him pitch to Frisch also. If Ogden was going to have a great day—and that would have been wholly possible in the face of his record—Bucky wanted to take advantage of it. He worked the same trick in Detroit near the end of the American League race, and successfully, but against the canny McGraw he derived no great benefit from it.

McGraw allowed Terry to stay in until the pinch in the sixth, when he substituted Meusel. Harris met the change by waving in Marberry to replace Mogridge, but Meusel hit the Texas right-hander for a fly that travelled long and far to right and Young scored with the tying run. So that while there was no very decisive and far-reaching effect from the strategy one way or the other, what little there was came to McGraw.

Just prior to this, and in the same inning, McGraw had introduced a bit of strategy on his own part which had far more effect on the game. With Young on first, Kelly at bat and Mogridge patently nervous, McGraw called for the hit and run, with the count three balls and one strike on Kelly. The obvious story of course, would have been to let Kelly take the next one in the hope that it would be a fourth ball. But McGraw seldom does the obvious thing. He figured that Mogridge would try for the heart of the plate, and that was just what Mogridge did. Kelly singled over second and Young easily reached third. It was from that point that he counted on Meusel's fly, and it was smart baseball that had put him there.

From the eighth on both teams were threatening each time they came to bat, and any one of a hundred things might have changed the result completely.

"It might have been" were sure to be the saddest words, no matter which team lost. Many a Washington fan who had more gray hairs in his head tonight than he had this morning could testify to the chances that the Giants had and missed. Time after time any kind of a hit or any kind of a play but the one which was forthcoming would have settled the issue for good and all. When the break came finally, it came to Washington. Washington had waited 50 years, watched for it, and deserved it, but all the heroes did not wear spotless white.

There was Virgil Barnes of Centerville, Kan., for instance. Virgil proved that while all the great pitchers may come from his state they do not all come to Washington. For seven and two-thirds innings Barnes was a master pitcher. Until Harris hit a long fly which just did drop over the temporary bleachers wall, for a home run in the fourth, the Senators had got not a single ball past the Giants infield. Only three batters faced Barnes in each of the first three innings, four in the fourth, three in the fifth and three in the sixth, and four in the seventh again, making only twenty-three batters to face him in seven innings.

In those seven frames he yielded only three hits, a homer and fluky single by Harris and a single by Goslin. Even in the eighth, when he was taken out, he did not break completely, but he faltered, and that was enough to let the Senators break through and cause his downfall. That blow of Harris's, which a high bound and the sun in Lindstrom's eyes helped to make a hit, was the one that ruined him. Until then he had furnished the most brilliant bit of pitching seen in the series. Besides Barnes, there were Frisch, Kelly and Wilson, all three of whom made sparkling plays in the field and timely hits at bat.

But to the victor belong the spoils. When future generations are told about this game they will not hear about Barnes, or Frisch, or Kelly, or even about Harris or McNeely. But the boy with his first glove and ball, crowding up to his father's knee, will hear:

"Tell me about Walter Johnson."

CAPITAL IN TUMULT IN HOUR OF TRIUMPH

Washington's Wildest Scenes Since Signing of Armistice Attend Senators' Victory.

JOHNSON HERO OF THE DAY

Thousands Wait for Glimpse of Idol After Game—Celebration Continues Far Into Night.

CITY A BEDLAM OF NOISE

Cannon Roar, Firecrackers Bang and Sirens Screech as Downtown Street Crowds Make Merry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The national capital echoed and re-echoed to joyous shouts of triumph today and the celebration of the Senators' victory in the world's series continued far into the night—continued uninterrupted until the last throat had gone hoarse, the last weary eye had closed and the last game of the world's series had been threshed out over and over again.

Washington voices burst into the greatest shout that had rang through the city since the armistice was signed, a month less than six years ago, when little Muddy Ruel crossed the plate with the winning run in the twelfth inning, and peace and quiet didn't settle over the city for hours.

The 35,000 Washington fans who jammed Griffith Stadium, filling its thousands of temporary seats and spacious passageways, fought as grimly to the end as did the Senators on the field. Not once did the throng give up hope, and not once did it let down in its cheering. The noise started when Ogden struck out the first man, and it kept up undiminished until the last run had crossed the plate in the twelfth inning, and even after.

President and Mrs. Coolidge were present, but the ball game was the thing—the world's championship would be won or lost in a day, and the crowd had no interest in politics. The President and the first lady of the land attracted less attention than did the youngest recruit on the Washington team and far, far less than did Walter Johnson and the rest after the game was over.

Crowd Comes Early.

The great throng came early, eager for the battle that would decide whether or not Bucky Harris and his men would gain the greatest honor in baseball. Before noon the stands were half filled and the bleachers were a mass of humanity, even then strained and tense as the zero hour approached.

There was no laughter at that stage. Every one waited and wondered in silence—waited for the sound of "Play ball!" as the signal to go over the top with the Washington team. And when the shout came there was not a man who lagged behind.

Ogden threw over a strike on Lindstrom, the first batter to face him, and the torrent of sound bubbled forth. He threw another over the heart of the plate and it increased. He threw a third and the cheering was on in earnest, pouring in a steady stream, growing in volume with each succeeding inning and reaching its greatest height when Ruel dashed over the plate with the deciding run.

The innings passed, one after another, and Barnes's right arm waved back the Senators with precision and regularity. But the crowd did not falter. Then Harris hit the first ball out of the infield for the Senators. It floated upward and onward until it dropped into the left-field bleachers and tumult reigned. But the climax was still to come. In the sixth inning the Giants shoved three runs across the plate, took the lead and looked like winners, but the cheers never diminished. The crowd was fighting with the team.

Wild Uproar in Eighth.

When the Senators finally tied the count in the eighth inning there was an outburst that halted the game for several minutes. Confetti was thrown from the upper tiers of the grand stand and streamed out onto the field. Papers were torn to bits and hurled from the bleachers, covering the outfield with a white mass that looked like the first snow of Winter. Hats, coats and everything else that the fans could lay their hands on for hurling purposes were showered out on the diamond.

On the roof of the Senators' clubhouse two wild-eyed, hoarse-voiced fans grabbed each other and danced in glee. Horns were blown, bells were rung and whistles shrieked above the din that was raised by 40,000 voices, all yelling at the top of their lungs. It was a scene that has seldom been seen in any baseball park. Washington has waited a quarter of a century for a world's championship, and it had seen it nearly snatched away only to be recovered again. From then until the end the din was terrific.

Washington's idol tonight is Walter Johnson. The crowd had gone down cheering for him twice, but it still believed in him. When he went out to the bullpen to warm up he was given a mighty ovation from the right-field bleachers as he passed. When he went into the box to relieve Marberry the entire throng stood up as one man and welcomed him, their belief and faith still flaming high, despite the fact that the Old Master had failed them twice. This time it was no failure, and Johnson came through with the victory.

Yells for Johnson Rock Stadium.

As the great pitcher continually got himself in trouble and then whipped the ball across the plate with the blinding speed that was his a decade ago, pulling himself out again, the structure rocked to the yells of the multitude.

"We'll go down fighting with you," they seemed to shout to their idol.

Then came the grand finale, as the winning run skimmed over the plate in the twelfth. Across the field rushed the crowd, the bleachers pouring out their human stream in a great flood that raced across the turf and tried to drown the players, retreating hurriedly to the dressing rooms. Thousands didn't move. They just stood with eyes closed, faces raised to the roof and cheered lustily, mad in the thrill of triumph. They regained their equilibrium after awhile and rushed around to the exit of the clubhouse, there to wait for over an hour for a glimpse of the new world's champions.

As each player left the dressing rooms he was caught in the eddies of humanity and congratulated with shouts. He had to fight his way through the mass, but he did it laughingly. An hour after the game was over there were still thousands waiting for Johnson to appear.

"We want Walter! We want Walter!" was a cry that went up from a thousand throats at once.

But Walter was made calmly discussing plans for a hunting trip with Paul Zahniser, taking victory with the same calm he always has.

City Like a College Town.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (Associated Press).—The nation's capital tonight celebrated the winning of its first baseball championship with as much noise and racket as it greeted the news of the end of the World War.

From every street in the city rose the din of thousands cheering the arrival of the Senators in baseball's promised land.

The firing of small cannon, the crack of pistols, the bang of firecrackers, the honk of autos and the overworked lungs of half-crazed baseball fans were blended into a deafening roar. Drums and sirens were coupled with racket makers, and all of Washington was out to promote the noise.

From the Capitol up Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House, a cheering, howling mob surged. King Baseball had conquered the city, and in turbulent fashion led his followers in endless parade. Like a college town wild over a football victory, Washington behaved, but on a larger scale.

Traffic police were lost in the mêlé as thousands of automobiles became twisted in a honking jam in the downtown streets of the city, while machines almost ceased to move as occupants climbed out on running boards to yell.

Washington had lived to see its first world pennant—for a while many thought it would not live through it.

CROWDS HERE CHEER VICTORY OF SENATORS

Demonstration Greets News That Johnson Was Credited With Game When Series Is Over.

Scoreboards and the radio served thousands here yesterday who were unable to see the deciding game of the world's series at the Griffith Stadium in Washington. The crowd which was attracted to City Hall Park, where two large mechanical scoreboards were recording the play by play, was the largest since the world's series started, and more police were called out to keep traffic open. The subway entrances were blocked for a time and passengers were forced to emerge from the subway or enter it by other kiosks than those in the park.

Radio sets with loud speakers were placed in many windows through the city. Between Ninety-fourth and Ninety-fifth Street on Broadway a loud speaker was placed in the window on the second floor of a small store and the crowd it drew was so large that it welled into the streets, stopping traffic. Few police were stationed in this section, but before the fifth inning was over a number of bluecoats were in evidence and restored traffic to normal. Similar conditions were reported in many other parts of the city.

Both the Senators and the Giants had large followings and the partisanship apparently was equally divided. This was especially noticeable in the vicinity of City Hall, where, on the whole, the crowds applauded every good play by each team. When Manager Harris made his homer there was a big demonstration, but it did not equal in volume the outburst when the Giants took the lead in the sixth inning. There was another outburst in the eighth when the Senators tied the count.

When the final returns were announced and it was known that Walter Johnson had been credited with his first world's series victory, regardless of whether it was the one that decided the world's title, the crowd broke loose in a thunderous demonstration. The Giants had lost, but they could not have lost to a more popular team, was the sentiment of the crowd.

Among the more than 2,000 persons that saw the game from the scoreboard at the 104th Field Artillery Armory at Sixty-eighth Street and Broadway was Jimmy O'Connell, former member of the Giants who was blacklisted a little more than a week ago, charged with causing the recent baseball scandal. O'Connell, who was accompanied by his wife, was recognized shortly after his arrival, but there was no demonstration.

O'Connell followed every play closely and it was apparent from the start that he was rooting for the Giants. In the ninth he made this quite clear, for when McQuillan relieved Nehf and stopped the Washington rally, he exclaimed, "Great work, Hughie! I knew you could do it!" But it was a crestfallen O'Connell who left the armory when the final figures were posted announcing a Washington triumph.

A small crowd followed O'Connell on the short walk from the armory to his hotel.

CROWD SWAMPS LANDIS.

Joyous Fans Beseech Commissioner for His Autograph.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (Associated Press).—Judge Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, caught in the joyous crowd as it swarmed on the field after today's game, feebly attempted to advance as the throng, including many women, thrust programs and pencils into his face, beseeching autographs. There was almost panic in the eyes of the "Czar of Baseball" as he gasped, "I'd love to, but I can't."

"Th' poor old soul," a woman said, "I touched him, anyhow."

Clark Griffith was brought out of the jam by friends and found his way to the small porch of the club's office. There he was met by his little daughter Thelma, who was crying. To calls for a speech, Griffith, lifting the little girl up, said:

"I'm too happy to make a speech, people, but it happened just as I wanted to, with Walter winning it for us."

CUPID LOSES ON SERIES.

Set Player's Wedding for Last Night and Had to Postpone It.

Cupid, it seemed, also placed a bet on the world's series. He set the wedding of Miss Dorothy Poinecke of 31 Linden Avenue, Brooklyn, and Rosa (Pep) Young, right fielder of the defeated New York National League team, for 8 o'clock last night. Cupid's best judgment was, apparently, that the series would not go past six games, and certainly not into twelve innings of a seventh.

Washington's suppertime victory in the twelfth inning yesterday finally convinced Cupid that he was all wrong, and he moved the wedding an evening ahead. The Rev. W. J. Gardner, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, Clinton Avenue and St. Paul's Place, Brooklyn, who was to have married the couple that night, received a wire from the Giant fielder in Washington stating that the ceremony must wait until 8 o'clock tonight.

4 of the World Series Games Were Decided by One Run

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (Associated Press).—Four of the world series contests this year were won by one run, the first, which went to the Giants by a score of 4 to 3; the second, which the Senators captured by the same score; the sixth game, which the Senators took 3 to 1, and the deciding game, which went to the American League champions, 4 to 3, in twelve innings.

The first and deciding contests had identical scores and each went into three extra innings.

TEAM'S SPIRIT WON, SAYS BUCKY HARRIS

Washington's Boy Manager Can Hardly Realize That Battle for Title Is Over.

JOHNSON HAPPY AT LAST

"They Got the Breaks," McGraw Comments, but He Gives Praise to Young Leader of Victors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Triumph danced through one door while defeat stalked grimly through another under the grandstands of Griffith Field today. The Senators, victorious and jubilant, laughed and shouted like schoolboys on a holiday, while the Giants, beaten and downcast, were silent.

"I can't realize that it is all over and that we are the world champions," said Stanley Harris, the boy manager, who had outguessed the great strategist McGraw. "It was a hard fight and a bully one—it was the greatest fight I have ever won and the most worth winning. But, somehow, I can't seem to realize that we don't have to go out there and play ball again tomorrow.

"We paid $50,000 for McNeely and he repaid us today. He certainly came through at the right time. I knew I could count on Ruel to hit when it came right down to the place where he had to hit, and I had confidence in every one of the others. But the greatest thrill I got out of the whole thing is that we won for Walter Johnson. He pitched wonderful ball, especially when he was in the hole. He has pitched wonderful ball for Washington for eighteen years and if ever any one deserved to win it was Walter. Every one felt the same way, and with him in the box I think we were fighting just a little bit harder, if that were possible.

Praises Giant Youngsters.

"The Giants put up a great battle and they deserve all the credit and praise I can give them. Their youngsters especially—Lindstrom, Terry, Wilson and Jackson—came through the fire in fine style.

"It was a closer series than I anticipated even, but I predicted right along that we would win. We may not have the better players, individually, but we have a fighting team that doesn't know when it's licked. It was the spirit more than anything else that pulled us through."

"We may not have Walter with us again next year, but we will be right up there around the top of the race and I wouldn't be surprised if we came through again."

Johnson was congratulated on all sides. He was slapped on the back, on the arms and on the shoulders until his body literally glowed with the red marks of victory.

"It's all right now," he said. "This makes up for everything and it doesn't make any difference whether I won or lost those other two games so long as we won the deciding one and the championship. I don't know how I could have stood it if I had been blamed for the loss of the championship, and I would have been the one responsible if we had lost today, just as I was responsible for the loss of the first and fifth games of the series. But winning today makes everything all right. If I never pitch another ball game, I will have this one to remember and I'll never forget it."

Johnson a Changed Man.

Johnson, victorious, was a different man from Johnson loser. Defeat was a tragedy, but victory was just another ball game won. Losing, there was only himself to blame, but winning he gave the credit to the other fellows. Johnson takes the responsibilities of defeat but refuses the glory of triumph. The rest of the players danced around all over the room. There was no doubt about how they felt. Judge yelled, "A great end to a great season, boys," and the echo answered, "It couldn't have been different."

Across the hallway, however, there was a different scene being enacted. There the mighty Giants were dwarfed. They took the defeat seriously, sadly and in silence. Not a remark was to be heard, either of praise or of blame.

"Well, they beat us," said McGraw. "They got the breaks, but breaks are part of every ball game and we would have had to get them to win. The two teams were well matched and there was little difference in their respective strength. I don't see how Washington can be called a better ball team than the Giants.

Says He Doesn't Feel Bad.

"It was one of the greatest series I have ever seen. I would have liked to win and the boys would have, too; but it doesn't mean anything to me now that it's all over with. I have had plenty of winners in my time. I don't feel bad about it. Defeat is just something that must be taken in its stride, it's part of life. You can't win all the time.

"I think Harris deserves a lot of credit for the way he handled his team, not only in this series but throughout the entire season. He's still young and he ought to have lots of winners before he is through with baseball. I hope he has as many as I have had. Johnson deserved to win today. He had waited a long time and if anybody had to beat us I would rather have him do it than anyone I know. He pitched pretty fair ball at the end. He got himself into holes in every inning, but he managed to pull out. The breaks helped him stop us and the breaks helped Washington beat us."

The rest of the Giant players had nothing to say at all. They dressed in silence and made ready to start their trip around the world. But there was little joy shown in the prospect of the long trip. Instead, the players thought of the game that was just behind.

Commissioner Landis visited the clubhouses of both teams. He congratulated Manager Harris and said that he had seen a great series.

Praise for Senators.

"You deserve a great deal of praise, my boy," the commissioner said to the embarrassed youngster. "You have a fine ball team and you have played a fine game. I hope that you have had as much pleasure out of it as I have. I'm proud of my boys—every one of them."

The commissioner then made his way into the Giants' quarters and congratulated McGraw.

"There is no use sympathizing," he said. "You made a wonderful fight and I am proud of your team."

"The only difference between winning and losing," put in Hughey Jennings, with a grin, "is the sum of $2,000 per player."

"Oh, well," McGraw grinned back, "maybe the Judge here will make a ruling to give us the $2,000 anyway for putting up a good fight."

Frank Frisch and Jack Bentley both made their way across the hall after they had donned street clothes and congratulated Harris and Johnson.

PECK NEARLY MISSES GAME.

Outtalks Doctor Who Ordered Him to Bed for a Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Roger Peckinpaugh, the hero of yesterday's game, came close to missing today's game altogether. When Peck was first examined by Dr. Edward Larkin, a former member of the Athletic Department at Cornell, the physician ordered him to bed and told him to stay there a week.

At the veteran's insistence that he must go to the ball park today, Dr. Larkin relented, but told the injured shortstop that he would have to stay quiet for at least a week after today's game.

Peck had planned to begin a hunting trip tomorrow.

Hot Time Is Had in Hamtown; Church Bells Ring for Bucky

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 10.—Baseball fans of Hamtown, a suburb of Pittston, which claims Bucky Harris as its chief citizen, broke loose today with the crash of McNeely's bat. An impromptu parade, headed by a band, immediately formed and marched to Pittston, amid the peal of all the church bells, the shrieks of the fire engine sirens, and the howl of locomotive whistles.

At 9 o'clock tonight the demonstration was still going, with apparently nothing but total exhaustion being able to stop it. Pittston has a population of about 10,000, and it appeared that all were celebrating Washington's victory.

GIFT OF FLOWERS BRINGS NO JINX

Griffith Prominently Displays Floral Piece Like That Which McGraw Banned.

HARRIS HANGS HORSESHOE

Frisch, Young and Jackson Wear Their Red Flannel Shirts in Vain.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Washington had plenty of good luck charms with which to win the world's championship today and they worked. A great floral horseshoe was sent to Clark Griffith before the game and he set it up outside the offices where every fan who entered the park might see it. It was still there when the game was over. The other day when McGraw's team won he had barred such a floral piece as a jinx.

Edward B. Eynon Jr., the Washington Club's secretary, received a letter with four four-leaf clovers in it before the game and a note saying that one had been found on each of the three days that the Senators beat the Giants and the other this morning. Bucky Harris received a polished horseshoe and hung it over the door to his locker.

All of these tokens might have had something to do with the Washington victory, but a little pebble in front of third base, washed smooth by the years, kicked around by the scores of players who have guarded the bag, probably was the greatest good luck piece in the entire collection.

The band struck up "Dixie" for the first time in the series as the Senators galloped out for fielding practice. It was hard to tell whether the crowd cheered for the anthem of the South or for the home team. Probably a little of both and it was a great roar that went up.

It was hard to tell what pitchers would appear in the box before Umpire Dinneen called "Play ball." Manager McGraw had Barnes, Bentley and Nehf all warming up while Manager Harris had Ogden warming up in front of the stands and Mogridge and Marberry working in the ball pen. The whole corps got in before the end with a few others thrown in for good measure.

A notable group stood up and was photographed by about thirty photographers before the game started. They were, reading from left to right, Dick Ricnards, part owner of the Washington Club; Mrs. Coolidge, Bucky Harris, the Boy manager of the Senators; President Coolidge; John McGraw, veteran leader of the Giants; Clark C. Griffith, President of the Washington Club, and Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

Washington, used to seeing persons of prominence, did not show any great interest in the appearance of President Coolidge. There was a straining of necks for a minute and then the crowd settled back into a discussion of the possibilities of the game.

The Giants came better prepared to hammer the Washington pitchers. There were more than thirty bats lined up in front of the New York dugout while there were less than half that number in front of the Washington bench.

Souvenir hunters were still busy after a week of industrious searching. Before the game and afterward members of both teams were busy putting their signatures on baseballs. More balls have been used for writing purposes during this series than have been used for pitching.

Ogden crossed up his manager. Harris had intended starting the right hander in the box, letting him pitch to one batter and then taking him out in an effort to make McGraw switch his lineup. But Ogden fanned the first batter to face him and Harris kept him in for one more inning. He went out after passing the second Giant batsman, however. Ogden has a record for the series of an even .500. Two batters faced him, one strike out, one base on balls.

Goose Goslin was hauled all around the park by a photographer before the game. The camera man wanted a picture of the Washington slugger shaking hands with Rogers Hornsby, the leading batsman of the National League, but Rogers wasn't to be found.

One member of the Giants was very popular before the game and a score of his admirers gathered around him to shake his hand. It was Pat Florence, the reserve catcher of McGraw's squad, who used to be an idol in Washington when he played end on the Georgetown University football team.

When Harris hit his home run Wilson and the ball disappeared together into the left field bleachers, the outfielder making a backward dive over the low front railing in an effort to reach the ball. Six Giants in the bull pen near by rushed to their team mate's assistance but the stocky little fellow came up unhurt, and on the very next batsman he made a forward dive to intercept the ball before it hit the ground. Shades of Alleen Riggen and Gertrude Ederle.

A bright sun was shining when the game started but Frisch, Young and Jackson stuck persistently to their red flannel shirts that looked like danger signals whenever they came to bat.

A dove of peace fluttered over the diamond in the second inning in an effort to quiet the multitude but there was no peace until the last run was scored and even then it was a noisy peace.

Scalpers were caught with many tickets on their hands and an hour before the game started the coveted pasteboards were selling for their regular prices.

The shadow of two defeats did not dim the glory of Walter Johnson. He walked down to the bull pen to advise Marberry, who was warming up, in the sixth inning and the right field bleacher fans arose as one man and cheered him. The Big Train waved back at them, his glove fluttering at the end of an arm that had failed twice.

Small Fire Near Grandstand.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (Associated Press).—There was a commotion during the Giants' half of the second inning of the game today when fire, evidently started by a cigar or cigarette, broke out in the tarpaulin against the front of the lower grandstand. Players rushed to the spot, tossing dirt on the blaze, until a volunteer fireman from the Washington dugout put it out with a bucket of water.

RECORD RECEIPTS; ATTENDANCE LESS

THE SENATORS GET $148,991

Only Other Series to Go Over a Million Dollars Was That of Last Year.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (Associated Press)—A new record for world series receipts was established by the Giants and Senators. Figures for the seven games, $1,093,104, exceed by $38,289 those of the only other million dollar series, the six-contest battle between the Giants and Yankees in New York last year.

Attendance figures were not shattered, however. The mark of 283,695 set in this series fell 17,735 short of the 301,430 who saw the classic last season.

Washington players will divide $148,991.63, of the total fund, and New York will split up $99,327.75. The remaining 25 per cent. of the total players' share will be divided among the second and third place clubs in each league.

The Washington melon will be split into twenty-six shares of $5,730 each. Manager Harris announced after a meeting of players which followed the game. Miller and Tayler, substitute infielders, and Al Schacht, coach, will each receive two-thirds of a share, and the remaining twenty-four portions will be equally divided among the other players, Coach Nick Altrock and Trainer Mike Martin. Lump sums will be donated by the players to Wade Lefler, outfielder who was ineligible for the series; to the clubhouse boy, Frankie Baxter, and to the Senator bat boy.

The Giants left hurriedly after the contest to catch a train and did not announce a division of their cut. The approximate figure for each of the twenty-six men on the Giants eligible list, including Coach Jennings, would be $3,820.

RESULT PLEASES DAVIS.

Democratic Candidate Congratulates Harris and Johnson by Wire.

ON BOARD THE DAVIS SPECIAL, EN ROUTE TO INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 10.—John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential candidate, heard with interest, just as he left New York tonight, of the victory of Washington in the world's series and sent telegrams of congratulation to Walter Johnson, winning pitcher, and Stanley Harris, manager of the Senators. The telegrams follow:

Walter Johnson,
Care Washington Baseball Club,
Washington, D. C.:

I am glad to have the opportunity, for which I have waited a long time, to congratulate you on being a member of the world's championship team and on your great contribution to its victory.

Stanley Harris,
Care Washington Baseball Club,
Washington, D. C.:

Congratulate you on your splendid victory in one of the greatest series in baseball history.

FANS TAKEN BACK 18 YEARS.

Altrock and Doc White of the Hitless White Sox Warm Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—There was a cutback of eighteen years when the Giants and Senators came out for practice before today's game.

Nick Altrock and Doc White, two of the famous pitchers of the 1906 White Sox team, the famous hitless wonders, warmed up in front of the Senators' bench.

It was a sight that would have drawn rounds of applause in the cold South Side ball park in Chicago, but in Washington it passed unnoticed. What the fans wanted to see was who was going to warm up for Washington.

HARRIS, 27, YOUNGEST TO LEAD TITLE TEAM

Pilot of the World Champions Also Is Youngest Manager in the Major Leagues.

Stanley Harris, who is 27 years of age, is not only the youngest manager in the two major leagues at the present time, but he is the youngest manager who has ever led a team to a world's championship. He was born at Fort Jervis, N. Y., and will be 28 years old on Nov. 8.

Harris now has been with the Washington club for five full seasons. He started his professional baseball career with the Pittston Club of the Eastern Pennsylvania League in 1915. He was given a trial by the Detroit Tigers in 1916 and he also played with the Scranton Club of the New York State League and the Muskegon Club of the Central League during that season.

Harris started the season of 1917 with the Norfolk club of the Virginia League but when that circuit was disbanded he joined the Reading club of the New York State League. He played second base in seventy-five games with the Reading team during that year and had a batting average of .250. At the start of the season of 1918 he signed a contract with the Buffalo club of the International League. He played at shortstop and second base while with Buffalo. During the season of 1918 he played in eighty-five games and had a batting average of .241.

Harris was the regular second baseman for the Buffalo Club during the season of 1919 and on Aug. 5 of that year he was sold to the Senators for a reported price of $4,000. In 1920 Harris played in 120 games with the Senators. Since then he has served as their regular second baseman.

The Senators' present leader was appointed manager of the club before the opening of the present season. He succeeded Donie Bush, who had replaced Clyde Milan as leader of the club a year previously. He is one of the five playing managers in the two major leagues. The others are Dave Bancroft of the Braves, Ty Cobb of the Tigers, George Sisler of the Browns and Tris Speaker of the Indians.

MACK PAYS $106,000 FOR LEFTY GROVES

Purchase of Oriole Southpaw by Athletics One of Baseball's Biggest Cash Deals.

HAS HAD BANNER SEASON

Star Twirler Won 26 Games and Lost Only 6 This Year—No Other Players Involved.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Robert M. (Lefty) Groves, star southpaw pitcher of the Baltimore club of the International League, has been purchased by the Athletics for $106,000, it was learned here today. With the possible exception of the amount paid by the Yankees for Babe Ruth, this is the highest amount ever known to be put up for a baseball player.

The deal between the Athletics and the Baltimore club was completed late last night. Jack Dunn, owner of the Orioles, Thomas Shibe, President of the Athletics, and Manager Mack attended the conference at which the deal was closed. No players were involved, according to the officials of both clubs.

Groves won twenty-six games and lost only six while with Baltimore during the past season. Manager Mack is enthusiastic over the purchase. The Athletics' leader figures that Groves will make his pitching staff one of the strongest in the American League.

Game Is Still Tied in Truckee.

RENO, Nev., Oct. 10.—Snow broke up the world series baseball game in the eighth inning so far as Truckee, Cal., was concerned yesterday. The storm, reaching at times the proportions of a blizzard, ended radio accounts of the game which the town had been receiving.

U. S. STARS OF TURF RACE EPINARD TODAY

Nine Are Entered Overnight to Meet French Horse in $50,000 International Special.

LADKIN IS NOT NAMED

Wise Counsellor, Lame, Is a Doubtful Starter—Zev Not Likely to Go to Post.

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED

Threatened Swamping of Stands and Lawn Causes Latonia Officials to Decide to Throw Open Infield.

Special to The New York Times.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 10.—On the picturesque course of the Kentucky Jockey Club here tomorrow afternoon Pierre Wertheimer's French four-year-old chestnut colt Epinard will fill the last of his three contract engagements when he meets some half dozen of the best American colts and fillies over the mile and a quarter route of International Special No. 3, a sweepstakes in which the added money will be $50,000. Of this sum, which, including the sweepstakes, will amount to more than $67,000, approximately $36,000 in cash will go to the owner of the winner, together with a gold trophy, while a valuable gold split-second watch will be the reward of the trainer of the victor.

How many racing enthusiasts will witness the race not an official of the Kentucky Jockey Club will hazard a guess. One official, however, did venture the opinion that more persons will pass through the gates than ever entered Churchill Downs for any running of the Kentucky Derby. Should it be fine tomorrow afternoon—and the sun went down tonight a blazing ball of gold in a cloudless western sky—it seems certain that the Latonia plant will be jammed to its capacity. Needless to say that every seat and box has been sold for many days.

At first it had been decided not to open the infield to the public; as it was believed that the stands, lawns and clubhouse would be ample to care for all who desired to witness Kentucky's first international contest. It became so obvious this afternoon that there would be an attendance that would swamp even the enlarged accommodations that it was arranged that all who could not find a place from which to view the race on the outside of the track would be permitted to select a coign of vantage anywhere within the infield, which will be adequately patrolled for the occasion. All in all, there is every promise that a crowd of more than 50,000 will see the race.

Wise Counsellor Joins Ladkin.

The overnight entry shows ten of the original forty-nine nominations. Not all of them will go to the post. It is almost a certainty that Wise Counsellor, which beat Epinard in the first international race of six furlongs, will not run. He was not taken from his box this morning for the customary pre-race breeze, and John S. Ward said this afternoon that the big chestnut son of Mentor and Rustle was in the same predicament as Ladkin, which beat Epinard in the second international race of one mile and which pulled up lame a couple of days ago. Wise Counsellor's condition was noted by the trainers when he pulled up lame after his work yesterday.

Louis Feustel did not even go through the formality of naming Ladkin, since Major Belmont's colt is hopelessly out of the contention. Zev, of course, may not be a starter. He won his purse in such an impressive style this afternoon that Sam Hildreth proposed to send him right back tomorrow afternoon in the Newport, also over the six furlong course. Hildreth generally tries to have two strings to his bow, and in that most improbable event of rain he will quickly shift Mad Play out and stand on Zev.

Altawood, too, is a questionable figure. He wants the mud, and it is very much of a question whether he will go to the post on a lightning fast track. There is no doubt that the Latonia course is as fast as a streak. It is so fast that during the training this morning the nail prints in the plates of the horses could be picked out after they had passed. Latonia today, despite some attempts to harrow deeply, is what is called a pasteboard course. The clay foundation is almost as hard as concrete and not a few horsemen during the training this morning declared it was unwise to run a good horse over it.

Epinard the Likely Favorite.

It is expected that Epinard will go to the post the favorite. He will carry the bulk of the Eastern money, already swelled to portly proportions through the victory of Zev in the Morehead this afternoon. The regal son of Badajoz and Espine Blanche has a lot of dividends to pay in return for those passed at Belmont and Aqueduct.

There is not a doubt in the minds of the French colt's stable connections, but that he will come home in front of his field. Conservative bookmakers place his chances at odds of 5 to 2, but those are likely to shorten decidedly in the mutuels.

Trainer Eugene Leigh was supremely confident this evening that Epinard would win and once more repeated the familiar slogan: "He's ready." Everett Haynes, the jockey, said that Epinard went well this morning. As a matter of fact, Epinard did not look so good in action simply because he is not a picture horse when Haynes has a strangle-hold on him and he wants to run. Epinard just cantered this morning, as did all of the other sincere candidates for the international race.

Epinard gained his greatest enjoyment while waiting for a bunch of two-year-olds schooling at the barrier. He was alive in every fibre and a lot of the trainers who have come West since the Saratoga and Belmont Park meeting remarked that the beautiful chestnut had not looked so well since he came across the Atlantic. Not a few, however, would like to see a few more ounces over his ribs.

Sarazen in Nervous Mood.

Max Hirsch and George Babin spent no little time today searching the skies for a portent of rain. They gained no hope for the little chestnut son of High Time and Rush Box, however, and were finally forced to admit that Sarazen would have to concede his opponents a lightning fast track. Mrs. Vanderbilt 2d's game little gelding was in one of his nervous moods this morning. "He's just a bundle of nerves," Hirsch reiterated when the little fellow disdained a lump of sugar before Babin was swung up.

Never was there greater contrast in equine temperament than in the two which stand out as the favorites for the final international contest. Epinard, regally superior, calmly surveying all that goes on about him and ready for any task that may be set for him, stands out as one of the greatest of his generation.

Sarazen is all that his mentor says of him—just a bundle of nerves. Nevertheless he is the poetry of motion in action, slow and fast. After he breezed this morning he calmed down a bit, took his sweets quietly and welcomed a bit of a walk.

In addition to the star of the east and the comet from overseas, there are others which have innumerable supporters. Max Hirsch modestly says that the horse which beats Princess Doreen will win the race. The only filly in the race is well set with 117 pounds. She is ready. The Western contingent, likewise, will not neglect Chilhowee, now that Wise Counsellor is out of the competition.

ZEV, EXTENDED, WINS SPRINT AT LATONIA

Colt, With Light Impost of 108 Pounds, Leads Field of Seven in Six-Furlong Dash.

Special to The New York Times.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 10.—Harry F. Sinclair's four-year-old colt Zev, which met defeat as a three-year-old in the Latonia Championship here last year, when he lost to In Memoriam, today led a field of seven in a six furlong dash which proved to be the feature of the program.

The brown son of The Finn and Miss Kearney drew the light burden of 108 pounds under the conditions of the race, and with Laverne Fator, now regarded as the Rancocas riding ace, in the saddle beat Snookale Bradley by a length in a driving finish.

Zev displayed the old-time speed and power of stride which made him famous as a three-year-old but was doing his best throughout the race. Columbia held on to the pace set by Zev in the first half mile, but then tired. Right on Time then took up the chase, and when he faltered it looked like smooth sailing for the Rancocas star until Snookale Bradley challenged for the lead. Zev responded to Fator's urgent call and drew away to win. The six furlongs was run in 1:11 1-5.

NANCY LANGHORNE WINS AT JAMAICA

Filly Gallops to Four-Length Victory Over Diogenes in the Caledonian.

OUTSIDERS SCORE UPSETS

Upsal, Sweetgrass and Vulcain Triumph at Long Odds—Gnome Girl Beats Martha Martin.

Nancy Langhorne, the Swingalong Stable's brown three-year-old filly, romped away with the Caledonian Handicap at the Jamaica race course yesterday, capturing the featured event of the card from a field of three others by four lengths. Of the field of four that faced Starter Mars Cassidy, Feysun was best liked at 13 to 10, while Wampee, which finished last, had many backers at 7 to 2. The winner was quoted at 9 to 2 and was vastly superior to any in the race.

Three choice morsels fell to the lot of the players yesterday. The first of these came home in the second race, a mile and seventy yards handicap, the Salisbury, in which a field of seven went to the post with Ten Eyck the outstanding favorite at 13 to 10. But the winner turned up in Upsal, an 8 to 1 shot. In the third race the choicest of the three triumphed. This was Sweetgrass, a chestnut filly owned by W. R. Coe. The filly was a 20 to 1 shot and just did last to take the race by a head from Carthage. In the fifth race Vulcain Park, at 7 to 1, came home first in a field of eight others and beat Invictus by eight lengths. The World, favorite, finished third, a length and a half back of Invictus.

Gnome Girl, in the sixth, was 3 to 1 and won an easy race, while the favorite, Martha Martin, which had been sold by J. E. Madden to the Swingalong Stable for $10,000, finished fourth, very tired and out of the head in front of Gamble. Blue Moon was another at a good price to win, being quoted at 3 to 1. Blue Moon took the first race in a hard finish. On the whole it was a poor day for the form players.

Four in the Caledonian.

The four which faced the starter in the Caledonian were Nancy Langhorne, Diogenes, Feysun and Wampee. Diogenes was the least liked of the field and was quoted at 3 to 1. Nancy Langhorne broke in front and was never headed, but was pressed all the way to the head of the stretch by Feysun, which tired in the last furlong and gave way to Diogenes, which came up with a rush to take the place by a nose. Wampee was never a contender and ran last all the way.

Thomas handled Nancy Langhorne well, and, once in front, kept her there in a safe position. Thurber tried hard to bring Feysun up, but Nancy Langhorne withstood every challenge and was full of running all the time. The winner took the lead at a tenth the first quarter and maintained that lead all the way, running easily. Feysun ran himself out trying to catch the Swingalong Stable's flashy filly, and, turning into the stretch, Nancy Langhorne stepped out and increased her lead by three lengths. Diogenes then came up with a rush and battled Feysun, and in the stretch drive Diogenes forged to the front, and the tiring Feysun did not have enough left to beat the Ballot-Smoky Lamp colt, and Diogenes just stuck his nose in first to take the place.

Upsal, in taking the second race, showed far the best speed of the six he opposed and was never headed after a good start. Gnome Girl had an easy time capturing her race, getting off first and staying there for the five and a half furlongs. At the finish Polly McWiggles was five lengths back of the winner, which finished going easily. Moonflower took third money.

Blue Moon Scares.

Blue Moon and Quarantine put up a pretty battle in the opening race at six furlongs, but Blue Moon, though ridden out to win, had enough left in the last furlong to shake off Quarantine, which also was ridden hard at the finish. Sweetgrass and Carthage furnished the closest finish of the day in the third. The Coe filly was off badly, the field getting away to a poor start. Sweetgrass showed well in the last furlong. Carthage came from nowhere in the stretch turn, and so did Transformer. Carthage had a lot left and fought every inch of the way with Sweetgrass, but was nosed out.

Ten Horses Burned to Death On Way to Horse Show Here

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Eight show and jumping horses owned by Regan McKinney of Wickcliffe, Ohio, and two owned by E. S. Burke of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, met death in a horse car in which they were being taken to the National Horse Show in New York late this afternoon. The car, included in a New York Central passenger train, caught fire three miles from Dunkirk. Among the horses destroyed were Brown Boy, Mind Sweeper, Naughty Girl, Black Watch, Alice Foreman and Blaze. S. Benfield of Wickliffe, Ohio, one of the attendants, was so badly burned about the hands and face that he had to be taken to the Brooks Memorial Hospital. The Dunkirk Fire Department was called to extinguish the blaze.

AILEEN GUY SCORES IN MAY DAY STAKE

Ellis Filly Trots Each Heat in 2:05½ in Taking Feature at Lexington.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 10 (Associated Press).—Aileen Guy, a chestnut filly owned by F. P. Ellis of Philadelphia and driven by Ben F. White, won the May Day Stakes today, trotting each heat in 2:05½, a record for the event. Second to her was David Look's Soubrette. The race was worth $11,000, of which $7,500 went to the winner.

As additional feature the program had the Castleton Stake, won by Etta Drulen, trotting the second heat within a quarter of a second of the stake record held by Peter Volo. The free-for-all pace was won by Hal Mahone. Single G. was not good enough today, making a bad break in the first and finishing second in the final heat. Ben White made a double by winning the 2:12 trot with Hurry Up.

CAVALIER VICTOR IN HORSE EXHIBIT

Triumphs at Piping Rock Show, but Throws Mrs. Hitchcock Later in the Day.

RIDER, NOT HURT, REMOUNTS

Polo Player's Mother Then Puts Horse Over All the Barriers—Oh Girl Takes Two First Prizes.

The Piping Rock Horse Show, which is being held for two days at the Piping Rock Country Club, Locust Valley, L. I., began yesterday with morning and afternoon sessions in which various classes were shown, having an aggregate of about three hundred entries. The Piping Rock exhibit, which serves this year as a sort of preliminary to the National Horse Show which starts at the Squadron A Armory on Monday, will be concluded with today's sessions, the big prizes of the day being the Meadow Brook Challenge Cup for hunters, and the hunters' championship for the Piping Rock Club Cup, both of which will be contested for in the afternoon.

Among yesterday's prominent exhibitors was Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, mother of Thomas Hitchcock Jr., the international polo player, who, after winning a blue in the class for ladies' hunters, suffered a fall later in the afternoon when contesting in the class for pairs of hunters. The test for these hunters included several stiff jumps, and Mrs. Hitchcock was riding Cavalier, the same mount with which she had won in the previous class.

Cavalier refused at the first jump and Mrs. Hitchcock was thrown over his head and across the hedge. Several grooms ran to her assistance, but beyond being badly shaken Mrs. Hitchcock was apparently not severely hurt. After being brushed off she pluckily resumed riding and then her mount cleared the remaining jumps without mishap. Earlier in the afternoon, while riding in one of his hunter classes, Miss Ruth Page also had a fall, but was unhurt outside of a shaking up.

Some noted horses took part in the first sessions of the show, among them being Silver Crest, which was ridden by Miss Sally Lanier, owner of the horse, in several of the events. Silver Crest was entered in the opening class of the show in the morning session, which was for jumpers and in which thirty-eight horses competed. Miss Lanier's entry could do no better than second in this event, being beaten for the prize by Oh Girl, a gray mare, which is the property of W. C. Langley. Oh Girl was a double winner during the day, also winning in the first class of the afternoon session, for qualified hunters.

In this class Oh Girl again had as runner-up Silver Crest, with G. Palen Snow's gray mare Pastime third. Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock was a winner in the morning session, taking a blue with her bay gelding Clansman in the class for novice winners. It was not until near the end of the afternoon session that Silver Crest finished in front, driving the honors of a blue with Boiling, also the property of Miss Lanier, in the class for pairs of hunters.

Another good winner of the day was the chestnut gelding Rajah, property of Miss Marjorie Heather, which not only captured the blue in the class for model saddle horses, shown in hand, but was the winner later in the day of a cup offered by Robert E. Tod for a class of saddle horses of 15 hands, 2 and over. The awards:

FOOTBALL TO HOLD THE STAGE TODAY

Season Is Well Under Way, With Many Important Contests on the Schedule.

HARD GAMES ARE EXPECTED

Eastern Elevens Will Invade the West, While the South Will Fight on Northern Fields.

As the world's series comes to an end football comes into its own with a program for today filled with interesting numbers. All of the college and university elevens have played at least one game and while many of the teams are still in the preliminary stage most of the coaches have been able to assay their material and get together smoothly working combinations to pit this early in intersectional and other interesting games of the day throughout the country.

It is only the second Saturday in October and already Brown has traveled a thousand miles to play Chicago, and Georgia has come north to tackle Yale again in the Bowl. These intersectional games are but the outstanding two of more than a half dozen. Marquette invades the Navy, traveling from Milwaukee with a record of consecutive victories since November, 1921; the Army is at home to another team from the Middle West, Detroit; Toledo comes to Carnegie Tech and in the West Louisiana State invades Indiana, and Nebraska meets Oklahoma in the Southwest.

While Yale holds the spotlight of the big three, both Princeton and Harvard will engage in contests that will bring out thousands. It is no set-up that either faces today when the Tiger engages Lehigh and Harvard tackles Middlebury. Lehigh has always had the reputation of putting out scrappy teams, but Coach Roper, with his attack well organized, better than it was at this time last year and with his men in good condition, has little to fear. Harvard has memories of a 6—6 tie with Middlebury last year. That score indicated to followers of the Crimson that they could not expect much of a season for Bob Fisher's team. From Harvard's rather unimpressive start last week against Virginia it was evident that Fisher has a lot of work ahead of him this season, and while it is not the policy at Cambridge to take the early games seriously, nevertheless the showing of Harvard today will be closely followed to see whether there is the foundation laid for a strong eleven.

Faces a Worthy Foe.

Yale overwhelmed Georgia last year by a score of 40 to 0. The team that will go onto the field against the Southerners today, however, has not given evidence of the power concentrated in Jones's great eleven of 1923, and it will meet a worthy foe that will have lost some of the nervousness of last year, a feeling natural to an eleven invading for the first time the lair of the Bull Dog. Coach Stegeman has consistently turned out well-developed teams and his 1923 machine still had enough confidence in itself after being crushed by the powerful Elis to defeat Virginia and hold Centre to a 3—3 tie. Yale will earn its touchdowns today much more than it did last year.

Brown invades Chicago to attempt to repeat the success of Princeton in 1922 against Stagg's eleven. The Bruins made a fine start last Saturday against Colby, while Chicago met with a setback at the hands of Missouri. The game promises to be one of the best fought of the day.

Outstanding among the games of the East is that between Pittsburgh and West Virginia. The Panthers will be out for blood. They lost to the Mountaineers in a close game last year and their defeat at the hands of Lafayette last Saturday will make them all the more anxious for a victory. Dartmouth, which looks to have its best team since 1920, will run into considerable opposition when it meets Vermont at Hanover. Tom Keady, a former wearer of the Green, always can be depended on to put a fighting eleven on the field, and the tradition of a hard-fought battle between the two schools is likely to be carried on. Dartmouth is clearly the favorite, but when one remembers the number of powerful elevens from Hanover that have run into a snag against Vermont it is the part of prudence to be prepared for a close struggle.

Columbia followers, elated over the decisive victory of the Lion over St. Lawrence last Saturday, probably will turn out in great numbers at Baker Field this afternoon to see the game with Wesleyan. The Connecticut team always has given Columbia a hard fight, but it will be a big disappointment to the supporters of Haughton's team if it does not win today by a bigger margin than last year, when the score was 12-6.

Tom Thorp's New York University team will face the fast backfield of Union College on Ohio Field; C. C. N. Y. will tackle St. Stephen's at Lewisohn Stadium, and Cooper Union and Manhattan will clash at Clason Military Academy Field at 3 o'clock. Fordham does not play until Monday, when it meets Boston College at Boston.

Cornell to Meet Williams.

Cornell, after a somewhat disappointing showing against Niagara last week, will make another start against Williams. Penn takes on Swarthmore and expects to do much better than last year, when the Blue and Red won by the margin of three points. Penn State will be opposed to Gettysburg, while Syracuse will try again to overwhelm William and Mary, as it did last year.

The big game in the West, aside from the one between Chicago and Brown, will be between Ohio State and Iowa, both contenders for the Western Conference title. It will be interesting to watch the results obtained at Iowa this year, with Howard Jones no longer in charge of the coaching. Minnesota faces an easy opponent in the Haskell Indians, who, with John Levi, showed against the Quantico Marines last year that they know how to play hard football.

The California Bears probably will make short work of Pomona, while the game between Stanford and the Olympic Club will be interesting to followers of Glenn Warner. In the South, Georgia Tech will tackle Florida, and Washington and Jefferson will take on a worthy opponent in Grove City. Centre, which made a disappointing showing last Saturday, faces Carson-Newman. Virginia, which showed so much fight against Harvard, meets Rand-Macon, and Washington and Lee takes on Wake Forest.

FORDHAM WORKS HARD.

Maroon Getting Ready for Game With Boston College Monday.

Coach Frank Gargan gave his Fordham football squad a long workout in the rudiments of the game yesterday. The practice consisted in falling on the ball, a session on the charging machine for the line and practice in other minor fundamentals. Signal drill was not included in the day's program, but the team will be put through an intensive practice on signals this morning. Gargan feels that a stiff drill will not do the team any harm, since tomorrow will be an off day.

This morning's workout is the final practice before the tilt with Boston College on Monday. Tomorrow morning thirty players, the team's manager and the coaching staff will depart for Boston. Zakszewski was the only player who did not take part in yesterday's practice, and it is doubtful whether he will be able to play on Monday. The rest of the team is in good playing condition, Gargan says, and will be able to oppose the Bostonians with practically his full strength.

COLUMBIA ELEVEN TO PLAY WESLEYAN

Will Face First Hard Test of Season This Afternoon at Baker Field.

What is expected to be Columbia's first hard test of the season comes this afternoon when the Blue and White eleven lines up against Wesleyan at Baker Field. The game is scheduled to start at 2:15 o'clock. Columbia has found the going easy so far this year, with sweeping victories over Haverford and St. Lawrence, but Wesleyan will probably bring out the real strength of Coach Haughton's squad. Last year Columbia won, but won by only a six-point margin, 12 to 6. In the nine annual meetings between the two teams the New Englanders have scored four victories to Columbia's five.

Columbia went through its regular final drill yesterday afternoon. Following a lecture in the drilling room, the players went outdoors and ran through the general fundamentals and the signal drill. It was the final resting up touch to the hard drill that they had stayed on Thursday. Trainer "Doc" Barrett said last evening that every player was in the best physical condition. The Wesleyan team will arrive in this city this morning.

The probable line-ups follow:

COLUMBIA.		WESLEYAN.
Tribonen	L.E.	Roberts
Smullen	L.T.	Lyman
Jackson	L.G.	Ensinger
Schmeltisch	C.	Dunn
Wibers	R.G.	Dabney
Price	R.T.	Studwell
Wagner	R.E.	Piper
Peass	Q.B.	Boyd
Koppisch	L.H.B.	Mackie
Scott	R.H.B.	Howard
Kriesel	F.B.	Cook

Wesleyan Meters Here.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 10.—Coach Martin left here this afternoon with a squad of twenty-two men in automobiles for New York where Wesleyan will play Columbia tomorrow. The squad will put up at a hotel in Greenwich over night and will go on to New York tomorrow.

Dr. Pauver, the physical director, is with the party. Martin says his charges are in good condition and he believes they are prepared to give Columbia a hard battle.

HARVARD WILL PLAY MIDDLEBURY TODAY

To Face Team That Held It to a 6-6 Tie Last Year—Both Hold Light Drills.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 10.—Harvard's football team went through a signal drill this afternoon in preparation for the combat tomorrow with Middlebury, the eleven that held Harvard to a 6 to 6 tie last year.

Team B opposed the varsity and then the scrubs in the drill today. The lineup tomorrow will be as follows:

Chase and Bradford, ends; Greenough and Lindner, tackles; Daley and Bradford, guards; Adie, centre; Cheek, quarterback; Gehrke and Zarasov, halfbacks, and Miller, fullback.

Spalding and Stafford will be substitute quarters with Samborski, Rogers and Maher as a substitute back field. Dean and LeFarge will be substitute ends with Theopold ready to get in at tackle.

Coach Morey's Middlebury squad held a light practice session this morning on Boston College's field.

NAVY TO FACE MARQUETTE.

191-Pound Line, Heaviest in Its History, Goes on Field Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 10.—With a line averaging slightly more than 191 pounds which will face Marquette tomorrow afternoon, the Naval Academy has the heaviest line of forwards in its history. In fact, a 190-pound line cannot be remembered at Annapolis. The average of the backfield is 171 pounds and of the whole team just below 184. The line-up for tomorrow's game, with the weight of each player:

Left end, Taylor (Captain), 178; left tackle, Wickhorst, 203; left guard, Lentz, 219; centre, Osburn, 194; right guard, Chillingworth, 181; right tackle, Stolz, 189; right end, Barnes, 174; quarterback, Shapley, 161; left halfback, Pflugen, 174; right halfback, Forsberg, 165; fullback, Wellings, 163.

RUTGERS' STARS CRIPPLED.

Terrill and Singer Unable to Face St. Bonaventure Today.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 10.—Rutgers will face St. Bonaventure here tomorrow, its third game, with several regulars on the side lines. Not only are Terrill, quarterback, and Singer and Chandler, backs, on the hospital list, but others will be reserved for the Cornell game next week. Hazel, Bender and Benkert probably will play only part of tomorrow's game. Bliss is Hazel's understudy as fullback and punter, and Coach Wallace also used Hunt, Anderson, Nelson and Morgan in the backfield during today's drill.

Robeson, former star end while at Rutgers, has joined the volunteer coaching staff.

The Rutgers freshmen will open their season tomorrow against the Muhlenberg yearlings as a curtain-raiser for the varsity contest.

BROWN IS ON EDGE FOR CHICAGO GAME

Three Sets of Backs Ready to Go on Field Against Western Rival Today.

OPPONENTS' LINE HEAVIER

Eastern Eleven Is Lacking in Reserve Material, but Places Hope in Fleet Ball Carriers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Brown, the first of the Eastern elevens to invade the West this Fall, is ready for its game with the University of Chicago at Stagg Field tomorrow. The Brown squad, under the direction of Head Coach Ed Robinson, arrived here this morning and had its final workout on the Maroon's field this afternoon.

In Chicago tonight the biggest gathering of Brown alumni ever to meet in this neighborhood dined at the Hotel La Salle and then listened to Coach A. A. Stagg of the Chicago eleven, Dean Otis E. Randall of Brown, who made the trip here as the special guest of the Brown Club of Chicago; Head Coach Robinson, Dr. F. W. Marvel, supervisor of athletics at Brown, and others. The announcement that the Brown cheering section in which will sit alumni of Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, Williams, Amherst and other Eastern colleges would be several thousand strong tomorrow created a wave of cheering.

The Brown squad is in fine condition. There is an admitted scarcity of good reserve line material, but Robinson has three sets of backs that he can send against the heavy Chicago line. He has not as yet fully decided on his starting line-up, but it seems certain that he will follow the precedent of the Colby game a week ago and begin with Captain Sheldon and Stifler, ends; Sayward and Roman, tackles; McDermott and Staples, guards; Eckstein, centre; Myers, quarter; Payor and Klump, halves, and Pohlman, fullback. This combination averages 183 pounds, as against a Maroon line that, from tackle to tackle, approaches the 200 mark.

The backfield quartet averages 165, the heaviest player being Pohlman, 178, and the lightest Myers, 147. The second Brown backfield, perhaps the best of the three in all-around ability, is lighter, averaging not quite 161. The players composing it are Richardson, quarter; Dixon and Keefer, halves, and Mishel, fullback. All four can carry the ball, and Dixon, Keefer and Mishel can kick.

The game tomorrow will be the third that Brown and Chicago have played. Chicago won the first, 17 to 6, in 1897, and Brown captured the second, 11 to 6, in 1900.

PENN FACES SWARTHMORE.

Football Teams Will Meet for the Twenty-seventh Time Today.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—With a number of important changes in its line-up, the University of Pennsylvania will meet Swarthmore College on Franklin Field tomorrow afternoon. The contest will be the twenty-seventh meeting between the two colleges, whose series of games started in 1878, when Pennsylvania won by 9 goals and 16 touchdowns to nothing. Over the long stretch of years Swarthmore has been the victor four times, in 1906, 4 to 0; in 1912, 6 to 3; in 1916, 6 to 0; and in 1918, 20 to 12. Three years ago, the Garnet tied Pennsylvania, 7 to 7.

Head Coach Young has changed his lineup considerably over last Saturday. Frank Dewhirst will start at left tackle in place of Willson, who was moved to right tackle, replacing the veteran McGinley. The backfield will start with Laird at quarterback in place of Flues and Douglas at one halfback post instead of Fields. Butler, freshman centre last year, may play left guard in place of Coleman, who is suffering from a bruised elbow.

The probable lineup:

PENNSYLVANIA.		SWARTHMORE.
Craig	L.E.	Korn
Dewhirst	L.T.	Goman
Butler	L.G.	Winde
Robinson	C.	Howard
Papworth	R.G.	Ogden
Willson	R.T.	Koehnline
Fleischlid	R.E.	Guttormsen
Laird	Q.B.	Shuster
Douglass	L.H.B.	Evans
McGraw	R.H.B.	Richards
Knox	F.B.	Wilcox

Referee—Harry Fisher, Columbia. Umpire—Dexter Very, Penn State. Linesman—Charles J. Eckles, W. and J. Field judge—E. H. Land, M. I. T.

Time of periods—15 minutes.

C. C. N. Y. SHIFTS LINE-UP.

Donstein and Tubridy Will Go in Against St. Stephen's Today.

Despite the fact that his team missed a day and a half of practice this week, Coach Parker stuck to the orthodox light Friday drill with his City College eleven. The session yesterday consisted of a long skull practice and an equally lengthy signal drill, in which every play was rehearsed. Only complete darkness put an end to the final practice for today's game with St. Stephen's, which opens C. C. N. Y.'s home season.

Two changes in the Lavender line-up have been made. Donstein, who showed so well in the Stevens game, will start as regular fullback, while Tubridy replaces Captain Bob Phildius, whose injuries have taken him out of the game for the remainder of the season. Lou Oshins, star player, who has just returned to the squad, is due to break in early at end.

The probable line-up:

C. C. N. Y.		ST. STEPHEN'S.
Tubridy	L.E.	Wilson
Nalman	L.T.	Jones
Seidler	L.G.	Havey
Dreiband	C.	Gruver
Packer	R.G.	Smith
Washor	R.T.	Liepke
Raskin	R.E.	Hardy
Plaut	Q.B.	Noble
Meisel	L.H.B.	Willard
Cohen	R.H.B.	Schaitz
Donstein	F.B.	Belorin

N. Y. U. TO MEET UNION.

Violet Will Play Schenectady Eleven Today at Ohio Field.

The real power of New York University's football team will be determined this afternoon when the Violet meets the up-State aggregation from Union College on Ohio Field. Although the visitors have met with two defeats in as many starts they are not a team to be trifled with, for any team that can hold the strong Middlebury College aggregation to a 3 to 0 score must be taken into consideration. Coach Thorp has taken every precaution just as though it were one of the more important mid-season contests.

The entire squad is in the best of condition and appears to be a much smoother-working team than at this time last week. In the long signal drill held yesterday afternoon the backs were off much faster. A new pass perfected by Thorp will get its first real trial this afternoon.

The team will line up as follows when the opening whistle blows on Ohio Field this afternoon at 3 o'clock: Ends, Howley and Hannigan; tackles, Naggie and Milan; guards, Scudin and Braunlik; center, Captain Treacey. Q. B. Hawes; half backs, Bolden and Pellitica; full back, Holden.

Dartmouth Freshmen Elect.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 10.—R. E. McPahll of Somerville, Mass., was elected captain of the Dartmouth freshman football team today. McPahll starred at fullback for Exeter for two years. He was the outstanding star of the freshman team in their game against Exeter last Saturday.

Penn Crew to Race Princeton On Lake Carnegie on Nov. 14

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Announcement was made today that Penn and Princeton crews will meet in a special match race on Lake Carnegie at Princeton on Nov. 14. Princeton invited the Red and Blue to come to Tigertown, and Coaches Joe Wright and Jim Rice readily accepted. Four Penn crews have been rowing on the Schuylkill for the last few weeks. A race will be held between these crews, and the best one will be sent to Princeton.

FORREST TO START IN TIGER LINE-UP

Will Be at Centre for Princeton in Game Against Lehigh This Afternoon.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 10.—Bill Forrest resumed his old place at centre in the Princeton line today with Howard and Davis flanking him at the guards, and it is expected that this combination will start against Lehigh tomorrow. Ed McMillan, who has been playing a top-notch game at centre, is not in shape to start as a result of a slight injury sustained in Wednesday's scrimmage, with the result that Forrest was shifted from guard. The balance of the team remains the same.

Today the Tigers had only light work and were sent to the showers early. Keene Fitzpatrick has the men in excellent condition for the strong opposition which Lehigh is expected to furnish. Jake Slagle will do the punting tomorrow, although he has failed to show the improvement this week that the coaches had expected, but Dignan may be put in the game long enough to see what he can do under fire.

Coach Baldwin sent the Lehigh boys through their drill in Palmer Stadium this morning.

PRINCETON.		LEHIGH.
Tillson	L.E.	Cannon
Beattie	L.T.	Merrill
Davis	L.G.	Lewis
Forrest	C.	Dietrich
Howard	R.G.	Heffman
Gates	R.T.	Yeager
Stout	R.E.	Burke
Slagle	Q.B.	Prior
Gibson	L.H.B.	Stevens
Weeks	R.H.B.	Mellenger or Hayes
Caldwell	F.B.	Greer

DARTMOUTH IN LAST DRILL.

Outweighs Vermont 20 Pounds to a Man—Teams Meet Today.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 10.—Coach Tom Keady and his squad of twenty-nine Vermont players arrived in Hanover this morning. For two hours this afternoon the players ran through a signal drill and exercises to limber them up for the stiff contest tomorrow. In spite of the fact that only two regulars remain from last year's team, Coach Keady states tonight that he expects an even battle. The Dartmouth team seems to have a decided edge, however, as the weight of the Green team averages about 185, which is twenty pounds a man heavier than Vermont.

The Dartmouth squad also ran through a long signal session today, putting emphasis on the passing game.

The probable line-up:

Dartmouth—Bjorkman and Tully, ends; Parker and Goldstein, tackles; Smith and Diehl, guards; Whittaker, centre; Dooley, quarter; Hall and Oberlander, halfbacks; Leavitt, fullback.

Vermont—Thompson and Bartholomew, ends; Winchesback and Burroughs, tackles; Minini and Hill, guards; Clark, centre; Ryan, quarter; Yarnall and Tarpey, halfbacks; Candon, fullback.

COLUMBIA FRESHMEN WIN.

First Eleven Beats Junior Varsity, Second Trims Poly Prep.

Coach "Doc" Cook's Columbia freshman squad opened its season with two victories yesterday afternoon on South Field. The first freshman eleven scored a 22 to 0 victory over the Columbia junior varsity and the second freshman team defeated Brooklyn Poly Prep, 21 to 0.

Alcoff, Madden and Norris each made touchdowns for the winners in the junior varsity game. These, added to two safeties, gave the freshman team its 22 points. Alcoff's score was made on a 40-yard run after he had picked up a fumbled punt. Madden crossed the line when he plunged through centre for an 18-yard gain.

Green, Wilson and Cariaftis made the touchdowns against Poly Prep. Wilson added two points after touchdown and Kaplan made one.

FORT HAMILTON IS VICTOR.

Reaches Polo Final by Beating Governors Island Four, 7-2.

The Fort Hamilton polo team reached the final round of the tournament for the Fort Hamilton Challenge Cup yesterday, when it defeated the horsemen from Governors Island by the score of 7 to 2 at Fort Hamilton. The game was played on the flat, Fort Hamilton declining an allowance of one goal by handicap. The winning combination will face the Crescent A. C. on Sunday at 3 o'clock for the trophy. The Crescents reached the final on Thursday when they defeated the Artillery Reserve Officers, 5 to 3.

Captain Pepper, number three, was the star of the game, which was an exciting one in spite of the score, tallying three times for Fort Hamilton. Captain New, back, scored twice for Fort Hamilton, while Lieutenant Fonda was responsible for the only two goals credited to Governors Island. Captain Pepper was considerably shaken up when he collided with Lieutenant Craw, No. 2 on Fort Hamilton, and his elbow and wrist were skinned up but he did not leave the play.

The line-up:

FT. HAMILTON (7).	GOV. ISLAND (2).
1—Captain St. John.	1—Lieut. Campbell.
2—Lieut. Fonda.	2—Lieut. Craw.
3—Captain Warren.	3—Captain Pepper.
Back—Major Rudd.	Back—Captain New.

Goals—Fort Hamilton: Captain Pepper (3), Captain New (2), Lieutenant Campbell, Lieutenant Craw. Governors Island: Lieutenant Fonda (2).

Referee—Major Poole.

Time—Six periods of 7½ minutes each.

GOLF TOURNEY CANCELED.

Play for Assistant Pros and Caddie Masters Is Called Off.

Owing to conflicts in dates, the American Golfer tournament for assistant professionals and caddie masters, scheduled to be played at the Garden City Country Club on Monday, has been called off for this year. The event, inaugurated last year at the Englewood Golf Club, where William Walker, brother of the national open champion, was the winner, originally was scheduled for last Monday but the holding of the Westchester open championship on that date caused a week's postponement to next Monday. That date, however, being a holiday on which practically every course in the district will be filled with golfers eager to get in their last few rounds before snow flies, necessitated another postponement and it was then decided to call off the event entirely.

YALE AND GEORGIA EAGER FOR BATTLE

Rival Elevens Run Through Final Drills in Preparation for Today's Game.

BOTH PARTIALLY CRIPPLED

Pitts, Cottle and Kline Cannot Play for Eli—Captain Fletcher Out of Invaders' Line-Up.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 10.—Two partially crippled elevens will meet here tomorrow in the Georgia-Yale game. The Eli coaches tonight expressed doubt of their ability to equal last season's score of 40 points against the Southerners. Captain Fletcher, 200-pound end, will be unable to get into the Georgia line-up because of bruises incurred in the engagement with Mercer, while Cottle, Potts and Kline have been injured during the week's preparation at Yale. The wholesale line-up changes ordered by Head Coach Jones following the Yale low score of 27 points against North Carolina University last Saturday will go into effect tomorrow.

Georgia's general make-up, it is felt here, is much stronger than that of last year. Keen interest is felt in the showing of Richards, Failing, Sturhahn and Allen, who will start their first game for Yale, and in the attempt of Fullback Bench to fill the field general's role for the first time. The Yale coaches said tonight that Yale would use substitutes liberally tomorrow, because of the Dartmouth game, which is scheduled for next week. Root, Stewart and Wortham are former freshman players groomed to be used in part of tomorrow's match.

Wadsworth, son of the New York Senator, will be used at quarterback one period, it is planned.

The Georgia eleven reached here at 2 o'clock and occupied the Bowl all the afternoon, while Yale was at Fruit Field. Both elevens limited their preparation to signal rehearsal and punting practice.

The line-up:

YALE.		GEORGIA.
Bingham	L.E.	Butler
Richards	L.T.	Taylor
Sturhahn	L.G.	Joselove

YALE BOARD DENIES MAKING BIG PROFITS

Athletic Officials Say Net Receipts at the Last Game Were Only $4,327.21.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 10.—The Yale Athletic Board of Control today published figures showing receipts and expenses of the Yale-North Carolina football game of last Saturday, expressing belief that the statement "will make it clearly evident that the game was not on a commercial basis and that the report so often heard—that the game netted the Athletic Association $5,000 or 10,000 admissions of 75 cents each—is not borne out by the facts."

The statement indicates an attendance of 23,103, showing 4,825 single tickets sold, 7,951 invitation admissions, 3,507 student and 6,820 public season tickets sold. The gross receipts were $8,051.75 from the single ticket admissions at 75 cents and public season book coupons at 65 cents. No credit is taken for student season books, which are based on a special rate equivalent to the price of one Yale-Army game ticket, the statement says, and admit to all games except the Yale-Harvard game.

The expenses, including a $3,000 guarantee to North Carolina, were $3,724.54 and do not include a pro-rata charge against this game for any other football expenses, such as team equipment, property investment and maintenance, coaching, salaries, etc.

The net receipts were $4,327.21.

Commenting on the statement, The Yale News editorially says:

"When even the more important games, admittedly the leading spectacles of the year, are lower priced than an orchestra seat at an average musical show, it can hardly be said that the Athletic Association is playing a highwayman's part. Moreover, what funds remain at the end of the season vanish into the ever-hungry budgets of other sports, most of which turn in huge deficits in spite of most careful management. It is not hard to imagine what 'popular prices' would be if the bowl should inadvertently fall into the clutches of any of our leading promoters."

W. VA. TEAM OFF FOR PITT.

Ekberg in Squad of 31 That Departs for Today's Game.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 10.—West Virginia's varsity football squad of thirty-one players left here this afternoon, after a short drill, for Pittsburgh, where tomorrow afternoon the Mountaineer and University of Pittsburgh elevens are to clash on the gridiron.

Gus Ekberg, veteran back, was with the squad, and Coach Spears announced that he would be in the line-up tomorrow.

WHITCOMBE WINS IN FINAL.

English Golf Star Beats Gadd in News of the World Match.

WEYBRIDGE, England, Oct. 10.—E. R. Whitcombe, crack English professional golfer, runner-up to Walter Hagen in the British open this year, defeated George Gadd of Roehampton, 3 up and 2 to play, in the final of The News of the World £750 tournament, played here today. The winner of this tournament is usually regarded as the British professional champion of the season at match play.

BILLIARD RESULTS.

Erich Hagenlacher, 18.2 balkline champion of Germany, made an unfinished run of 295 in the third inning of his afternoon exhibition game with C. E. White at the Fourteenth Street Academy yesterday. He won by the score of 300 to 72. In the evening he defeated Philip Maize, 300 to 42 in 5 innings, making a high run of 161.

Tadao Suganuma, former holder of the junior 18.2 title, defeated Thomas Hague in an exhibition match at Julian's Academy last night, 300 to 11. He went out in the fourth inning with an unfinished run of 80.

Joe Concannon, Brooklyn representative in the National Championship Pocket Billiard League, is practicing in preparation for the opening of the season, defeated William Becker and John Mills in exhibition games at the Recreation Academy, Brooklyn, yesterday. In the afternoon he ran 100 points against Becker's 24 in eleven innings and made a high run of 29. In the evening he defeated Mills, 100 to 75 in fourteen innings and made a run of 38.

Henry Frantzen divided two games in the Greater New York three-cushion tournament at the Hoppe Academy last night. He defeated Leonard Kenney at 35 to 30 in forty-four innings, making a high run of 7, to Kenney's 4. In the second game he lost to Columbia Univ. Offs. 4 V. 43 St. Co. Isaac Alt, Asst. Alex. Taylor, 22 F. 42 St.

KAPLAN KNOCKS OUT DIAZ IN THE THIRD

Meriden Featherweight Completely Outclasses Panama Boxer in Garden Bout.

ROSENBERG BEATS CURTIN

Wins Decision in Exciting Ten-Round Battle—Kramer Stops Farese in Five Rounds.

Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Meriden (Conn.) featherweight, made short work of Angel Diaz, Panama boxer, last night in the principal bout scheduled for ten rounds before a slim crowd at Madison Square Garden. Kaplan, with a wicked right to the jaw, knocked out Diaz in the third round, after the session had progressed 2 minutes 36 seconds.

Diaz appeared unfamiliar with the American method of counting, and seemed confused as the seconds were tolled off by the gavel-pounding of George Schweigler, knockdown time-counter. The Panama lad, after shaking his head vigorously, jumped to his feet after the count of ten as if eager to resume hostilities. But Referee Ed Purdy had counted him out and Diaz was waved to his corner, which was just as well, for the beaten boxer was as a toy in the hands of Kaplan.

Only a slim crowd saw the bout, which didn't really amount to a bout after all. As a matter of fact, Kaplan probably has been extended further in some of his gymnasium bouts than he was last night by Diaz. The olive-skinned lad from Panama was completely outclassed. Kaplan knocked his rival down twice in the second session, when the bell interrupted the finishing work of the Meriden boxer.

Kaplan Freezes Attack.

After outclassing his rival in the first round, Kaplan went after a knockout in the second session and with a hard left hook to the jaw floored Diaz for a count of six. Arising, Diaz retreated and covered in the face of Kaplan's assault, but the Connecticut boxer sent over a right to the jaw which dropped his opponent for a count of nine. For the rest of the round Diaz ran or held.

In the third round, as the lads were sparring at long range, Kaplan crashed over a right to the jaw and Diaz dropped flat, rolling over on his back and shaking his head as if to clear away the cobwebs. The count proceeded, and at eight Diaz raised himself to one knee. At nine he appeared waiting for a signal to get up, but the tenth second was counted over him before he came erect, and the bout was over. Kaplan weighed 126¼ pounds and Diaz 125 pounds.

Charley ("Phil") Rosenberg, Harlem junior featherweight, won the decision over Irish Johnny Curtin, veteran Jersey City boxer, in an exciting ten-round bout which served as the semi-final. It was a battle in which the cleverness and boxing ability of Rosenberg overcame the heavy-hitting ability which was Curtin's chief asset.

For the first half of the battle Curtin made the local lad extend himself and in many of the spirited exchanges which marked the battle Curtis gave as good as he received. From the start of the sixth session, however, Curtin weakened perceptibly and was clearly outboxed and out-slugged.

In the ninth session Rosenberg crashed over a left hook to the stomach and left to the jaw which sent Curti down, but the Jersey lad regained his feet without a count and fought back gamely through the rest of the round and through the tenth. Rosenberg weighed 123 pounds and Curtin 122¼.

Kramer Impresses Crowd.

Danny Kramer, Philadelphia southpaw, made a deep impression on the slim crowd in the first of the three scheduled ten-round bouts when he battered his way to victory over Harold Farese, Newark boxer, by a knockout in five rounds. The Quaker City portsider outclassed Farese from the start and twice floored the Newark lad before Referee Ed Purdy halted hostilities.

In justice to Farese, however, it should be stated that he took the bout on at a moment's notice, having been pressed into service to assist in the local début of Kramer only on Wednesday afternoon, when several other boxers to whom a bout with Kramer had been offered, declined to scrap with the hard-hitting Philadelphian. Under the circumstances Farese made a game showing.

Farese exhibited a brand of cleverness early in the bout, which enabled him to avoid many of Kramer's heaviest blows, but the body punching to which Kramer subjected his rival gradually weakened Farese, and he became a mark for the Philadelphian's lusty lefts. In the fourth round Kramer dropped his rival for a count of nine just before the bell with a wicked smash on the jaw. A terrific left hook to the jaw floored Farese again in the fifth, and when the count had reached four Referee Purdy waved Kramer to his corner the victor. Kramer weighed 125¼ and Farese 121¾.

In the six-round preliminary Jackie Snyder, Brooklyn junior featherweight, received the decision over Joe Souza, California boxer. The opening bout of four rounds was between Murray Layton, east side bantamweight, and Charlie (Kid) Kohler of Brooklyn. Layton received the decision.

Miss Wethered Easily Wins Golf Title Fifth Time in Row

SENNEHILL, England, Oct. 10 (Associated Press).—Miss Joyce Wethered, holder of the British women's open title, for the fifth consecutive year today won the English women's closed championship by defeating Miss D. R. Fowler of Burnham, 6 up and 7 to play in the 36-hole final over the Cooden Beach course. Throughout a week of 18-hole matches leading up to the finals, only one player, Miss Cecil Leitch, carried Miss Wethered within four holes of home before succumbing to the champion's superior shots. Miss Wethered, who is regarded as the world's best woman golfer, will not not be 23 until next month.

STATE BODY WARNS BOXERS OF FOULING

Brower Announces Fines and Suspensions Will Follow Future Disqualifications.

FLOURNOY IS REPRIMANDED

Garden Matchmaker Told He Should Not Have Signed Kaplan to Box at 130 Pounds.

Aroused over the frequent disqualifications for fouls occurring in ring battles under its jurisdiction the State Athletic Commission yesterday sounded a warning to boxers and their managers that a campaign is to be instituted which is expected to eliminate this cause for complaint with boxing. Chairman George E. Brower, following the meeting of the commission, announced that boxers disqualified in future bouts for fouling, will forfeit their share in the receipts, and also will suffer lengthy suspensions. In cases where flagrant fouls are committed, it was announced, licenses will be revoked.

This campaign will be conducted along similar lines to that of last year when the commission curbed the evil by drastic use of its powers for disciplining boxers. Chairman Brower called attention to the fact that the current outbreak is similar to that of last year and emphasized that the board is prepared to follow its course of last year in dealing with the situation.

Chairman Brower's announcement was made in connection with the case involving Joe Glick, Brooklyn boxer, his manager, Harry Alberta, and Joey Silvers of the east side. Glick was disqualified last week on a foul in his bout with Silvers, and the report of the commission's officials attending the bout stated that both boxers had been guilty of fouling.

Glick Is Reprimanded.

The report held, however, that there was no question but that Glick was responsible for the final foul. Under the circumstances the commission, Chairman Brower said, let Glick off with a reprimand, but served notice on the boxer and manager, and all other boxers and managers, that drastic action will be deal, out in future cases involving fouls.

Frank Flournoy, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, was another who was reprimanded by the commission. The board admonitioned Flournoy because the Garden official matched Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Meriden (Conn.) boxer, for a bout against Angel Diaz, Panama, at 130 pounds. Chairman Brower said the commission considered Flournoy's action as a violation of its recent edict against boxers going out of their classes for bouts.

The board, Chairman Brower said, pointed out that Kaplan only recently was clamoring as a featherweight for a championship match against Johnny Dundee, and declared that any matchmaker signing him for a bout above the featherweight class limit would be undoing all the good work the commission had attempted to do when it sought to force a meeting between Kaplan and Dundee.

Rink Club Issues Denial.

A report from the Rink Sporting Club, Brooklyn, denied the authenticity of an announcement sent out to the effect that Archie Walker, Brooklyn, light weight, was able to box Jack Zivic last Thursday night, despite the boxer's claim of illness. In the announcement it was said that an examination of Walker by Dr. Eugene Kenny failed to disclose any illness which would prevent Walker from boxing. Dr. Kenny's report, on the contrary, and a report of a commission physician, substantiated Walker's claim of illness and supported the Brooklyn lad's contention that he could not box Zivic.

Because Zivic scaled near 138 pounds for his bout at the Rink, Jimmy Bronson, the boxer's manager, petitioned the commission to raise the suspension now hanging over himself. Zivic and the rest of Bronson's boxers. Chairman Brower declared this request could not be granted, but the commission consented to modify the length of the suspension period and fixed Nov. 1 as the date on which the suspension will expire. Under this arrangement Zivic will be unable to accept a bout against Ray Mitchell of Philadelphia in Madison Square Garden on Wednesday night.

Larry Goldberg, local bantamweight boxer, appeared before the commission protesting against the failure of the Knickerbocker A. C. of Albany to give him a match against Bushey Graham, for which he claimed he contracted several weeks ago. The Albany club was notified to promote a bout between Goldberg and Graham or some other boxer at the first available date.

Mayberry Wins Canadian Title.

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—The bantamweight championship of Canada changed hands tonight when Howard Mayberry of Hamilton outpointed Bobby Eber of the same city in a ten-round bout.

ARGENTINA RETAINS NAVY RIFLE TROPHY

South Americans Defeat U. S. Navy Team for International Cup, 1,604 to 1,580.

ENSIGN VILLA IS HIGH GUN

Captain of Visiting Team Scores 340 Out of Possible 350 at Wakefield.

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Oct. 10.—The Argentine Navy rifle team today retained the International Marksmanship Trophy by defeating a team of the United States Navy, 1,604 points to 1,580, in the match shot here. Poor weather conditions hampered both teams. There was a strong cross wind, and low clouds caused constant changes in light.

Ensign Eliseo Villa, captain of the Argentine team, was high man with 340 out of a possible 350 points. The only perfect score made on any range was that of Ensign A. M. Morgan of the United States Navy, who scored 50 at 600 yards.

The Argentine riflemen used German Mausers and the North Americans the regulation Springfield in the match. Fifty rounds were fired, ten each standing, kneeling and prone at 200 yards and ten in any position selected by the man on both the 600 and 1,000 yard ranges.

The cup, which Argentina will retain for another year as the result of the match today, was first offered by the Argentine Naval Commission in 1914. It was won in September of that year by Argentina and was not challenged for until this year.

THOMAS OF ORIOLES BLANKS ST. PAUL, 4-0

Yields Only Three Hits and Baltimore Scores Fourth Victory in Little World Series.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 10 (Associated Press).—Fast balls that sped over the plate in bewildering array, the offerings of Alphonse Thomas of Baltimore, nullified the efforts of St. Paul batsmen, and the Orioles took the sixth little world series game, 4 to 0, here today. It brought the Orioles to within one game of the title, for tonight they had four games to their credit, while St. Paul had won only two. Five victories determine the series honors. The next game will be played here tomorrow.

Too much Thomas, four St. Paul errors and timely Oriole hits tell the story, for Thomas held the American Association champions to three hits, two of them by Christensen. He fanned eleven batsmen. On the other hand, Howard Merritt, who essayed to stop the International League titleholders, ran into difficult situations after the fourth inning, but stayed through the sixth, retiring them after four runs had been counted in the fifth and sixth.

In the fifth Jacobs singled and when Wade juggled the ball continued on to second. He went to third on Dixon's error and scored on Thomas's sacrifice fly. Johnson's triple, Porter's double and singles by Onslow, Jacobs and Thomas gave the Orioles three more runs in the sixth, but the two relief hurlers, first Roettger for two innings and McQuaid for one, turned them back without a hit.

DAUBERT FUNERAL MONDAY.

Body, Accompanied by Red Players, Shipped to Schuylkill Haven.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10.—The body of Jacob Ellsworth Daubert, late captain and first baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, was sent to his old home in Schuylkill Haven, Pa., tonight. It was accompanied by Mrs. Daubert, a daughter, Mrs. Louis Becker, Daubert's son, George, a brother, Irving Daubert and members of the Reds. The burial will be in the Daubert family lot in Schuylkill Haven Monday.

Members of the Reds who accompanied Daubert's body, were Ed Roush, who probably will succeed Daubert as captain; Wingo, Bressler, Duncan, Burns, Rixey and Benton.

EGG TO GET NEW PARTNER.

Swiss Cycling Star to Ride With Girardengo in Six-Day Races.

Oscar Egg, Swiss cyclist and holder of two world records as well as the prize of Europe, the Cup of Gold, will pair with Constante Girardengo for the six-day races in New York and Chicago this year, it has been announced in Paris. The French writers report that the Swiss star probably will make a tour of the United States in the Summer and that he also hopes to engage in several races other than the six-day events during the Winter.

Egg has been active for the last seven months on the tracks in Europe. He has been riding in Paris lately, where he proved as popular as ever, and has been seen on tracks in Belgium and Holland, where he is considered as great a hero as Mosskops.

The fact that he has selected Girardengo as a partner for his contemplated tour means that he expects to go to Italy upon his return from America, sports writers in Paris state. It has been some time since the Swiss star has competed there and it is expected that he wants to renew his acquaintanceship with Italian fans. His partner is well known in Italy and is one of the most popular riders there. He holds several national records and has impressed critics in other countries very favorably.

GIANTS PREPARE FOR TOUR ABROAD

Passports Arranged and New York Players Will Depart for Montreal Tonight.

WHITE SOX ALSO ARE READY

Comiskey Heads Party of 28 From Chicago Today—Squad to Sail From Quebec Monday.

The fact that the world's series went the full seven games slightly upset the original plans for the European tour of the Giants and the White Sox, but according to the new arrangement the Giants most likely will leave here tonight for Montreal, where the first game of the tour is scheduled to be played tomorrow. Had the world's series ended on Thursday the opening game of the tour would have been played in Ottawa today.

While the Giants were battling the Senators in Washington yesterday there was much activity around the Giants' offices at 15 West Forty-fourth Street. There Hans Lobert, one time third baseman for the Phillies and later baseball coach at West Point, was in charge and cooperating with an official from the United States Custom House who was getting passports ready for the party that will make the trip.

Lobert said that he expected at least eighty persons would make the trip. The list will include fourteen players on each team, the wives of most of the players, together with officials of both clubs, their friends and a few newspaper men. Manager McGraw, however, will be the man to make the official announcement, Lobert explained, and final plans, he said, doubtless would be announced by him this morning.

The tentative list of players for both teams already has been announced but the final selection of the Giants will be left to McGraw. The White Sox will be headed by Charles A. Comiskey, President of the Chicago American League club. According to a dispatch from Chicago yesterday, twenty-eight will be in the party which will leave Chicago today for Montreal.

The present line-up for the White Sox follows: Ruel, Washington, and Picinich, Boston, catchers; Clancy, Chicago, first base; Morehart, Chicago, shortstop; Willie Kamm, Chicago, third base; Rice, Washington, Falk and Mostil, Chicago, outfielders; and Faber, Robertson, Lyons and Foreman, Chicago, pitchers. A second baseman has not yet been named.

The make-up of the Giants team follows: Hank Gowdy, New York, and Butch Henline, Philadelphia, catchers; Stuffy McInnis, Boston, first base; Frankie Frisch, New York, second base; Travis Jackson, New York, shortstop; Heinie Groh, New York, third base; Emil Meusel and Ross Young, New York, and Casey Stengel, Boston, outfielders; Art Nehf, Claude Jonnard and Jack Bentley, New York, pitchers. Another pitcher remains to be selected.

Johnny Evers, manager of the White Sox, will be in charge of the playing end of the Chicago team. Hughey Jennings and McGraw will direct the Giants. Ed Walsh, former White Sox pitcher, and at present serving in the capacity of a coach for the Chicago team, will make the trip and act as one of the umpires for the American League. The National League umpire has not been chosen.

The new schedule, which as yet has not had the approval of McGraw, calls for the party to sail from Quebec on Monday. McGraw, however, may arrange to play one or two additional games in Canada before sailing.

Sox Sign Quebec Infielder.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Signing of a contract with the Chicago Americans by Frank Wojack, Quebec shortstop, has insured the youngster a place on the club which will tour Europe with the New York Giants. His acquisition recalled the entry of Urban (Red) Faber into the major leagues. Faber joined the White Sox on the last world tour of the clubs, and, the Giants being short of pitchers, used him. He demonstrated that he was capable of holding a job in the majors and was retained by Chicago.

The vanguard of the baseball touring party, numbering twenty-eight, and headed by President Charles Comiskey, will leave Chicago tomorrow. The European trip, which will take the tourists to Ireland, England, France, Belgium, Italy and Germany, will start from Quebec Oct. 13.

BELGIUM NAMES OFFICIALS.

Central Body to Govern National Soccer Play This Season.

Although Belgium has been holding a national championship tourney at soccer for a great many years, the present season is the first that a national organization has been in charge of the play. In previous years there has been no one to whom the clubs could appeal in case of a dispute or in a desire to straighten out a technicality or a rule. Now the clubs have united and have appointed a central committee which is to be supreme in all matters.

The schedule has been changed completely around under the direction of the national organization so that teams in one part of the country meet those from other parts early in the season, thus creating more interest in the sport than otherwise would arise. This manner of play also gives an early indication of where the strength in the country lies and what games will be important ones in the series.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, OCT. 11, 1924.

THE LAST REGISTRATION DAY.

This week's registration in New York City has shown an increase over four years ago, but the percentage of gain for the first two days was not maintained later. Indeed, the total number, up to yesterday, did not represent an increase much if any greater than the natural enlargement of the voting population during the past four years. Thus there is reason for redoubled efforts to secure a full registration on this last day when citizens may get their names on the lists. The Saturday hours are from early morning until late at night, so that nothing but the most imperative reasons of sickness or absence from the city can justify those who fail to take the first step necessary to qualify themselves for voting.

Figures for registration by sex are not yet available, but there is every warrant for believing that too many women voters are not living up to their privilege and obligation. In 1920 various suggestive comparisons were made between the woman vote and the male vote. The ballots of the two sexes were tabulated separately in Illinois, where it was found that the women voted 46 per cent. of their possible electoral strength, as against 74 per cent. for the men. A prominent leader among the woman suffragists has made an estimate, which may be a little optimistic, that, on the average, three women vote to every five men who do. Such a disparity ought to be wiped out. Women eligible to vote should be at least as conscientious and eager as men in discharging their civic duty. Today's registration will show whether the unusual exertions put forth this year to secure a large registration in New York have succeeded in their object.

TO MAKE CONGRESS SUPREME.

In his speech in Detroit yesterday, Senator LA FOLLETTE spoke with indignation of what he called "misrepresentations" of his proposals regarding the Supreme Court. He declared that he had never suggested that power should be taken from it to declare unconstitutional and set aside an act of a State Legislature. He would leave that function of the Supreme Court in full vigor. All that he would deprive it of, is the power finally to hold null and void an act of Congress. If both houses should repass the bill over the Court's veto by a two-thirds vote, then it should become law, the objections of the Judges notwithstanding.

The distinction which the Wisconsin Senator makes is justified by the terms of his platform. He seems to have accepted a dictum which has been attributed to Justice HOLMES of the Supreme Court. It is to the effect that the country might get on if the power to hold acts of Congress unconstitutional were taken from the Supreme Court, but that our institutions could not possibly be made to work unless the Supreme Court had that power in regard to legislative acts in the several States. But if Senator LA FOLLETTE thinks to make his plan more acceptable by keeping it narrowed to a contest between Congress and the Supreme Court, he will find himself much mistaken. In the first place, he will further irritate and alarm the States, which will see themselves left under what Mr. LA FOLLETTE has called the tyranny of the Court, and more and more subject to be overridden by Congress in their own police powers and their statutes governing in questions of crime, divorce, education and the whole range of personal liberty. Furthermore, Senator LA FOLLETTE will only have succeeded in calling attention more sharply to the fact that if he were to succeed in making Congress supreme over the Court, the whole Bill of Rights would be exposed to the whim of Congress and might be torn up without the possibility of its judicial protection from destruction. To the thoughtful mind, the explanation of his project which Senator LA FOLLETTE gave yesterday, instead of making it seem better, causes it to appear far worse.

Those who follow Senator LA FOLLETTE in his enterprise against the courts speak often of the popular complaints which have been made of certain of the decisions of the Supreme Court. But any such outcry from the people is as a penny whistle compared to a gigantic megaphone when it is a question of matching disapproval of the Supreme Court with denunciations of Congress. It is Congress which is truly the unpopular body. Protests against its action, or lack of action, contemptuous characterizations of its members, have come in unprecedented volume during the last few years. It might seem that Congress had touched bottom in public esteem. Yet this is the moment which Senator LA FOLLETTE would seize upon to make it supreme over both the courts and the President. He will have to try again.

WASHINGTON'S DAY OF GLORY.

After the dramatic ending of the seventh game in the championship contest of 1924 baseball is more the national game than ever. WALTER JOHNSON, whose pitching in the regular season had lifted the Senators to first place in the American League, seemed to be the sport of a cruel destiny when he failed to pitch his team to victory in two of the earlier games of the world's series. He was a hero taken from his pedestal, and Pity covered her face. But JOHNSON was put in to pitch in the ninth inning of the last game to save the day, and gloriously he redeemed himself. His stature is now comparable only to the Washington Monument. RUEL, the diminutive catcher, shares the renown of JOHNSON, for it was he who made the winning run. ZACHARY, who stopped the advance of the Giants on Thursday by his steadiness in the box; HARRIS, the manager and second baseman who would never say die; PECKINPAUGH, the shortstop who contributed so much to victory by his indomitable spirit when crippled—all of them helped to exalt Washington as the invincible team that humbled Napoleon MCGRAW and conquered his brilliant players. In STANLEY HARRIS a new star of the first magnitude has risen in the constellation of baseball managers. New York congratulates Washington upon its well-earned laurels. Never was victory snatched from the jaws of defeat in a more gallant and sportsmanlike spirit.

WALTER JOHNSON and his men scored a popular victory. Sympathy prevailed over local pride in a contest between the capital and the great metropolis. The Washington pitcher, a veteran of many battles, had a host of admirers here. He and his fellow-players had had an uphill fight to get to the top of the American League. They conquered the Yankees and did not quail before the famous Giants. Also, they had to make an uphill fight to win the championship. They had casualties, too. It seemed as if the fighting Senators must be overwhelmed. Their wonderful infield was bent but not broken. With their first-string pitcher stopped in his tracks, the last curtain was about to fall. So it was thought, but there was one more rally in WALTER JOHNSON. New York has reason to be proud of the Giants in their defeat. The record shines with mighty plays, timely batting and perfect fielding. The box scores show that the teams were evenly matched. Every game was sharply contested. But this is Washington's day of glory. It was a great victory.

GERMANY SINCE DAWES.

Chancellor MARX has not given up hope of bringing the leading political parties of the Reich together into a Grand Coalition. The outlook is not promising. Formerly his difficulties were with the Nationalists, who are only a little more than one-fifth of the Reichstag, but who had acquired the habit of behaving like the owner of 51 per cent. of the stock. Today the Nationalists are willing, but it is the Socialists who have just informed Herr MARX that they will never sit in the same Cabinet with HERGT and WESTARP. Thus the probabilities are strong that Germany will soon have a general election of her own.

Something more than principle enters into the Socialist refusal to cooperate with the parties of the Right. Like the other parties making up the present governmental bloc of moderates, the Socialists have reason to look forward to a better showing than they made in the May election. That poll of the German people was taken at a time of bitter anti-French feeling and serious economic distress. Perhaps the decisive factor in the balloting of May 4 was the thought that the French elections were coming a week later. The Nationalists made effective play of the argument that the way to force POINCARE out of power was to confront the French electorate with a militant spirit of German resistance. The French people, whether because of such a display of German strength or because of weariness with POINCARE, did put a radical bloc into power. Had the German elections come after the French instead of before, it is doubtful if the Nationalists would have done so well as they did. The argument would have been on the side of the German Democrats and Socialists, who could point to HERRIOT as justification for a policy of conciliation instead of bluster.

That is the argument which the Government parties at Berlin can now bring before the people, and with greatly enhanced force. The policy of conciliation has brought the Dawes plan into operation, and for the first time since the armistice the German people has been given something like firm ground to stand on. It was the German moderates who made this possible. The Nationalists, on the other hand, have the not very brilliant record of shrieking against the Dawes plan and then accepting it; a record which scintillates neither with wisdom nor with courage.

It is not unlikely that a wave of general elections, emanating from London, may sweep into Germany. It will mark the passing of the post-war era and the ushering in of the Dawes era. Foreign affairs will cease to monopolize the consciousness of Western Europe. There will be a concentration on home problems hitherto neglected or delayed by trans-frontier preoccupations.

TEACHERS' SALARIES.

The goal of the National Teachers' Association, embracing in its membership a large proportion of the teachers of America, is not "a seat for every school child," but a "trained teacher for every schoolroom." That is a slogan of real progress. It puts the emphasis upon the greatest need in our schools, both public and private. Comfortable seats are desirable in a school; trained teachers are essential. There are 760,000 class-room teachers in the United States. According to the report of the Salary Committee of the N. T. A., just published, the majority of them are "young, inexperienced girls" with little professional training. Yet upon them is placed the responsibility of training our future citizens.

Three out of five of our teachers, taking the country over, have not had two years of professional training beyond the high school, and in many places even the completion of a high school course is not required. In some States where the statutory standards of certification have been raised, they have been disregarded because of teacher shortage. This is due primarily to the fact that teachers' salaries are relatively so low that young men and women cannot afford to make the investment required for an adequate training. In this and several other States, increases of from 60 to 80 per cent. were made during the period 1918-20; but even these lagging increases did not catch up with the heightened cost of living. At present the salaries have about the pre-war purchasing value, but they were admittedly too low before the war.

There is a general pressure to lower taxes. This is felt especially in respect of local taxation. As most taxes for the support of schools are of this nature, they are one of the first objects of attack. The total amount spent for schools is always a conspicuous item in every community budget. Hence there is needed a centring of a special effort of all citizens who have a concern for the schools in resisting cutting down that item which has to do with the salaries of teachers. Lower salaries will inevitably mean slackened supply of adequately trained teachers, and the use of substitute teachers or of those who make teaching a transient vocation instead of a life profession. The fundamental consideration in school budget making and budget revision must be the effect on the teaching service. Mr. H. A. L. FISHER, the Minister of Education in England, said even in the midst of the war that that nation would make the greatest progress which best paid its teachers. No nation can better afford to pay its teachers well than our own.

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN RELATIONS.

ZAGHLUL Pasha left London after an extremely brief stay following upon a prolonged journey that gave rise to much speculation. His hurried visit and the complete disagreement recorded in the British official paper strongly suggest that the Egyptian Premier came to London dead set against conciliation. He asked for everything that Egyptian nationalism could apparently think of, including two demands on which he must have known that MACDONALD could never yield. These are the surrender of the Sudan and of the safeguarding of the Suez Canal to the Egyptian Government. The strong stand taken by the British Prime Minister on these two subjects several months ago is now reiterated with vigor. The Suez Canal is a vital link in the defenses of the British Empire, one which cannot be entrusted to the guardianship of "even an ally." On the Sudan the British answer is, if anything, even more emphatic. Rejection of ZAGHLUL'S demands is coupled with a warning: "I must adhere to the statements made in the House of Commons. About that neither in Egypt nor in the Sudan should there be any doubt. If there is, it will only lead to trouble."

Nationalist feeling in Egypt reveals itself more militant even than in India. There, at least, the demand is for the full power of self-control within the country. Nothing has been put forward by the leaders of Indian home rule which threatens the integrity of the imperial tie. In Egypt it is only an exaggerated fanaticism that can discern any desire on the part of Great Britain to interfere with the nation's right to manage its own home affairs. In India the signs of British rule are, of course, everywhere present. The Egyptian Nationalists profess to be wounded by the presence of a British garrison confined to the duty of protecting the canal, or else on service in the distant Sudan. It would thus seem to be Egyptian impatience matched against vital British interest, and the course of the London negotiations has been such as to suggest that a meeting of minds in the near future is not to be expected. Egypt is probably in for a period of hot anti-British agitation.

OCEAN RATE REGULATION.

There is an engaging simplicity in the proposal of the Port Authority to equalize ocean freight rates. Why should there be several rates across the Atlantic? Yet why should there not be ocean differentials as now there are land differentials? The answer is that the basic problem is the apportionment of business among competitors rather than the fixing of rates. If the rates are entirely equalized, the inland empire west of Pittsburgh and Buffalo will be admitted to business through the Southern ports which otherwise that region would have to give to Northern ports nearer to markets overseas. Equalization of rates would produce such an absurdity as routing freight from the Buffalo region to Europe via either the Gulf of Mexico or New York for the same charge. Anything so uneconomic cannot be so just as it seems. Yet it seems also unjust to the Southern ports that New York should "fatten" on lower rates denied to them.

New York foreign rates are based on the Chicago-New York rail rates, the lowest in the world, and on steamship facilities which cannot be equaled on this side the ocean. To equalize the through rates would be either to sacrifice the yardstick of the Chicago-New York rate and the superiority of New York's foreign trade facilities or to penalize foreign trade by higher rates. New York has nothing to lose by the equalization of through rates on the New York basis. The Southern ports have everything to gain by the equalization of rates on a higher basis. Should the railway differential system be abolished? Or should it be extended to ocean rates, now escaping regulation except by the extra-legal conferences which are theoretically combinations in restraint of trade?

The Port Authority thinks that equalization of rates is a "national" policy, and that the Federal Government cannot be party to discrimination between ports. According to the Port Authority, "the way out is "for the Inter-state Commission and "Shipping Board to make their de-"terminations after joint considera-"tion." The Merchant Marine act contemplates such action, and there is an analogy in the precedent whereby the Federal and State commissions sat together in considering the interstate and intrastate controversy. But the questions are so intricate that it is difficult to arouse popular interest in them, however desirable it is that there should be a general understanding and agreement. The rail and ocean carriers are not free agents. They must bow to authority.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Better Admit Her Jest a Poor One.

Prompt recognition of one's mistakes is creditable, but it is a second and more serious mistake to make light of the first one when it has been of some gravity. Into the second error Miss ELIZABETH MARBURY has fallen.

In a recent speech at a political meeting she was misguided enough to say about the housewifely efficiency of Mrs. COOLIDGE—the fine biscuits she cooks and the shirtwaists that she constructs for $1.69—as recently told in the public press, that this was "milkpail stuff." That characterization grievously offended many readers of The Herald Tribune, and they are writing to that paper long letters, which it prints with delight, applying decidedly harsh epithets to Miss MARBURY as a contemner of the domestic virtues and their eminent exponent.

The indignant once also are writing in similar vein to Miss MARBURY herself—for the most part anonymously, she says—and she in turn has sent to The Herald Tribune a letter in which she expresses wonder that at last remarks made by her have been taken seriously, which she declares is something that never happened before. That, of course, is one of her jokes, but she evidently realizes the need of answering her critics, for she enters what amounts to a plea in confession and avoidance.

She admits the use of the words ascribed to her, but she insists that she was speaking in a serio-comic vein, that she envies the abilities of Mrs. COOLIDGE, and found fault, not with those abilities, but with the exploitation of them "in a meretricious fashion in order to seduce the vapid vote," as has been done by press agents, film makers and campaign managers.

It is to be feared that neither an apology nor an explanation will this help much in cooling the rage of Miss MARBURY's critics. They will continue to say that Mrs. COOLIDGE had no part in the exploitation of her domestic prowess and deserved Miss MARBURY's sympathy rather than what was taken for her derision.

Perilous in Peace as in War.

At the meeting here this week of Police and Fire Department surgeons and medical directors, Dr. CHARLES NORRIS, Chief Police Medical Examiner, said that, of deaths by accident in this city, more were caused by the inhalation of carbon monoxide than in any other way except by motor-driven vehicles, and Professor YANDELL HENDERSON of Yale declared that poisonous gases were more dangerous in peace than in war.

Both of these statements will cause surprise, for there is no general realization of the extent to which urban life is imperiled by a product of combustion to which little public attention has been given. When combustion is perfect, not carbon monoxide, but carbon dioxide is produced. The second of these gases, though it will produce death by suffocation, is less to be feared than the other, for the monoxide attacks and destroys the red blood corpuscles, and therefore kills by poisoning as well as by smothering. The burning of gasoline by automobiles and trucks is of the imperfect sort, as a rule, and in this there is waste of energy in addition to risk of life and health, so that the efforts now making by various modifications of gasoline to carry the combination of carbon and oxygen to the second stage instead of the first are doubly to be commended.

A curious fact mentioned by Dr. NORRIS is that persons affected by carbon dioxide in less than fatal quantities are prone to accuse themselves of crimes which they have not committed, and this not infrequently makes trouble for the detectives. This state of mind may continue for several days, and may be mistaken, if not recognized, for alcoholic intoxication.

There has been much talk about the deleterious effects of the gases expelled by the automobiles that now crowd so many streets, but the traffic policemen who are more exposed to them than anybody else show no measurable ill consequences. Others have ascribed headaches to this cause, but headaches are of so many origins that it usually is hard to tell the source of any one of them.

Detained Though a Student.

Immigration Commissioner CURRAN's denial of the story told by the son of a French banker about ill treatment suffered on Ellis Island is unqualified and explicit. On the other hand, young HOFFINGER also goes into minute details in describing his experience while under detention, and it is not easy to believe that he invented the whole yarn out of resentment at having been detained at all, which is the only theory advanced by the Commissioner in explanation of his charges.

Nobody can doubt that Mr. CURRAN tells what he supposes to be the truth, but an element of uncertainty arises from the fact that he necessarily is relying to some extent on information supplied to him by guards and other subordinates.

That the boy was sent to Ellis Island at all was due to some imperfection in the visa of his passport, ascribed by Mr. CURRAN to the carelessness of an American Consul in France, but of course, technically, action on it had to be taken. As HOFFINGER obviously belonged to one of the classes not excluded by the Immigration law, the case is another illustration of the fact that it is a mistake to have all discretion in interpreting and executing the law placed in Washington instead of here. That is a frequent cause of trouble and a not infrequent cause of hardship and cruelty.

Irritating to the Listeners-In.

Everybody who has had the job of "reading copy" for a newspaper or magazine knows how often the makers of manuscript write all of it plainly enough at least to permit safe guessing at the words, except when it comes to signatures and other proper names, at which guessing, when possible, always is dangerous. This form of carelessness causes no end of irritation and not a few serious mistakes, and it excites rage in many places besides editorial offices, as is made plain by the frequency with which the signers of questionnaires and many other documents are requested to print out their names.

The radio has brought out this sort of inconsideration in a new way. The "announcers" almost all have fine voices and a beautifully distinct enunciation—until they come to proper names. Then even the best of them often become unintelligible, and the worst offenders are so every time. And the irritated "listener-in" cannot ask for a repetition of the name he has not caught—he has to do without it as best he can.

If the announcers really can't speak proper names plainly, they should spell 'em out, which is for them the equivalent of printing 'em out.

Refiring the Old Furnace.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An inexcusable loss of life and property occurs at this season of the year when we are starting the fires in our furnaces, boilers and stoves. This is largely due to ignorance or neglect of a few fundamental precautions which every householder should take. Fire Prevention Week may not be an inappropriate time to make a few simple suggestions.

1. Before lighting your fire look over your smoke pipes and heating flues to make sure that they have not become rusted through during the Summer and to see that the supports are secure.
2. See that all woodwork or other inflammable material within a foot of all flues or two feet of furnaces or stoves is protected by galvanized iron shields, asbestos board or the like.
3. Keep the first fire small until you are sure everything is all right.
4. Watch your drafts. The under draft left open at night has burned down more than one house.
5. Clean up your cellar, removing all loose papers, rags and rubbish. A large proportion of fires start in cellars.

THE UNDAUNTED.

When I consider all the broken lives
That I have known—the hurtling bolt that rent
Their tent of joy; the stunning accident;
The poisoned sting from Fortune's testy hives;
The unguarded moment, leaving them in gyves,
Though innocent of any ill intent;
The gates that clanged on them, and left them pent
Behind dull walls which no brave battering rives—
When I consider all these things, and see
The bare life still held dear for some dusty grim,
The pain-defying smile, the forward face,
I thank my God that He has given me,
Even me, with faith and courage often dim,
Yet to belong to such a glorious race!

MINNIE BROWN UPTON.

ROYALTIES AND RADIO.

Objection is Raised to Court Ruling on Rights of the Composers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Judge Knox's decision on radio broadcasting, which you approve, holds that while unauthorized performance of a musical composition to ten people is an infringement of copyright, unauthorized broadcasting of an authorized performance to ten million people is not a violation of copyright. I suppose this is good law (such faith, by the way, rests more and more in these very legal times on the principle of credo quia impossibile), but it is pretty bad ethics and still worse logic.

As to the ethical side, it seems sufficient to say that the decision legalizes theft if only you steal on the grand scale, thereby justifying a widely drawn inference from American criminal practice that what is punishable in petty larceny is not the larceny but the pettiness. Composers and publishers of music make their money from its sale. People who can get music over the radio will not buy it. The money which they used to spend for sheet music they now spend for radio sets, over which they enjoy the same music to the profit of the broadcasters, who are also manufacturers of radio sets. This profit is partly due to the fact that the broadcasters steal the music. To say that the performance of the music is done only by the musicians who play it in a small hall and not by the broadcasters who transmit it to their customers is the sort of thing that could occur only to a lawyer. If any common man argued that it would be a paradox and he would be a Shavian ironist; but set forth by a Judge, it becomes the law, and helps to explain the prevalent lack of enthusiasm for law observance.

Broadcasting is a sort of bonus to promote the sale of radio sets. It may be compared to the giving of premiums for cigar coupons to promote the sale of cigars. But the United Cigar Stores do not steal the lamps and razors and other articles which they give away as premiums, nor do they argue that such thefts would be justifiable because of the advertisement which the giving away of the stolen article would give its manufacturers. That is the way the broadcasters argue, and apparently they have the law on their side.

Your editorial comment cheerfully admits that this works a hardship on musical composers, but adds that such hardships are part of the price paid for progress. This is true, if the arts are less essential to progress than the expansion of business interests which exploit them. Every man who makes anything by his own effort out of his own materials has a property right in the product which goes on to his heirs and assigns forever—except the artist. He, if he goes through certain formalities like those by which the homesteader of public lands acquires an eternally valid title, may be permitted to enjoy the ownership of his own work for thirty or forty years.

Judge Knox's decision is in line with the long legal tradition which has regarded artists as devilish madcap fellows, who ought to get sufficient reward out of the joy of creation, and are impertinent to demand a share in the profits of their own work. Maybe this is true, but it is not a doctrine enforced on any other class of producers. However, it will probably not undermine respect for the law except in the comparatively small class of artists. Nearly everybody is in favor of a law which confiscates the other fellow's property.

One Who Works for Defeat.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to your somewhat sarcastic editorial "Martial Lexicographers," in this morning's Times, may I point out that it is the shameful aspect of the specially coined war word "defeatist" and its substantive which has rightly caused these words to be barred from the great dictionary of the Academie Francaise?

"Defeatist" does not mean "one who is accustomed and inured to defeat," but rather "one who works for defeat," or, in its best significance, is willing to accept peace at any price. The "ist" has the significance of the Esperanto termination "isto," meaning "one who makes a business of," for the "defeatists," the only class to which the term was ever applied, were those who worked for the enemy by preaching their treacherous doctrine that an allied victory was impossible; that a shameful peace was better than an honorable defeat; that all men are brothers and should not fight each other, &c.

Caillaux, Malvy, Bolo and Duval were the organizers and leaders of defeatism, and their abominable manoeuvres having been proved against them, the temporary name for the temporary aberration of an infinitesimal number of Communist Frenchmen certainly is deserving of no place whatever in the vocabulary of a nation of heroes. "They shall not pass," be it remarked "en passant," was not uttered at the Marne, but at Verdun eighteen months later.

Postal Deliveries in New York.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A special delivery letter was sent to me in which was a sum of money. On not receiving it I made inquiry only to find that it had been received at the post office and sent out, but as no one was at home, the carrier claims (?) that he pushed it under the door of my apartment. If he did, some one else fished it out, for I certainly never received it.

I took it up with the proper officials only to be told that there would be red tape galore, and even after that I should never get the money. Now, what I should like to know is this: Why, when the post office officials admit the carelessness of their employe in the delivery of my letter, am I not entitled to some reimbursement for my loss? A special tax is asked and was paid for personal service which I did not receive, and this is only one of many times in which this has happened. But nothing is ever done. Do we not as citizens pay our taxes, and are we not entitled to just a few rights?

The post office says register. All right, I have in my possession a most valuable document sent me most carefully sealed but placed in my hands wide open, and, moreover, finger-marked. I asked the post office to have this photographed, but after several weeks received word that the fault was after the document had been delivered.

I know perfectly well that I am not alone in these experiences, and that they are becoming more frequent, but with the same apathy that permitted scandals in other departments, so we sit still and allow things of this kind to go serenely on, and instead of questioning almost apologize for even thinking that the fault could be other than our own.

An Appeal for a London Hospital.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Great Northern Hospital in London is in sore need of funds and a general appeal has been issued, to attempt to raise a fund to put this hospital again on its feet. We, naturally, in America, must do all we can for our own hospitals first, but those fortunate ones who are able to travel and to enjoy the comforts and protections of great hospitals, nurses and doctors, (that guard the health of Americans as well as British in the City of London, should be able also to answer this appeal for help.

ANALYZING THE CANDIDATES

A Voter Decides That the Election of Davis Means Most for the Nation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I assume that a large number of your readers, like the writer of this letter, are debating the question for whom they shall vote in the forthcoming Presidential election, and I must confess that I have considered the matter from every angle.

Coolidge deserves a great deal of credit for having vainly endeavored to put the tax question upon a scientific basis, and his courageous use of the veto power in depriving various special privileges of grafting upon the Treasury of the people endears him to many good citizens, despite a tariff which shuts off the producer from the markets of the world and burdens the average consumer in the interest of the annual contributors to the Republican campaign fund. The manner of his getting the nomination for President is against Coolidge, because it gives the appearance that the Republican Party was without a strong candidate to offer the people or else that the Republican Party was without hope of success and hence considered the prize as hardly worth a contest, or else the nomination was machine made, without consideration and without enthusiasm on the part of the American voters.

Despite the aforesaid facts, I could not vote for Coolidge, because a vote for Coolidge means a vote for political corruption, and further, a vote for Coolidge means political deception in connection with the international relations of the world, and a policy of snooping and scuttling in a matter which pertains to the perpetuity of civilization among the races of men.

La Follette shows a political sympathy with the average man and is not half so bad as the political writers would have their readers believe, and while La Follette is the father of certain constructive ideas, at the same time, if all the views of La Follette were put into practice, the things which make life worth while for the average man would be smothered beneath vagaries and political policies which history shows beyond any reasonable doubt to be erroneous. The idea of a statute being re-enacted after the Supreme Court has declared it null and void is one of the few good ideas advanced by La Follette. The act of the Congress which provided for a minimum wage for women workers in the District of Columbia was based upon a moral idea and was intended to eradicate a social condition which existed because of economic conditions which the act proposed to alleviate and eliminate in the interest of better morals and better social conditions. This act of the Congress was clearly constitutional, received the approval of the majority of the intelligent people of the United States, and the Congress should have the constitutional right to re-enact it, despite the decision of the Supreme Court.

The legislative acts of several States of the Union, which provided that the majority of any race owning real estate in a city block could determine the ownership of real estate in said block, were intended to maintain property values and promote friendly relations between the different races. These legislative acts of the several States were clearly constitutional, and the Legislatures of the States should have the constitutional right to re-enact these laws, despite the Supreme Court of the United States.

But I could not vote for La Follette, because the fundamental principle of his platform is the destruction of private property, which history shows is the basic principle and foundation of monogamous marriage, upon which all the civilizations of the world have been erected. Furthermore, the policy and platform of La Follette, both national and international, is a policy of negation, whereas throughout history one eternal purpose runs.

On the other hand, a vote for Davis means a vote for political honesty and political decency. A vote for Davis, as much as a vote for Coolidge, means protection of the Treasury of the people against the grafters and the hunters after special privilege. A vote for Davis means that the Constitution of the United States will be applied toward conserving the social and economic progress of the people of the country and not toward smothering the aspirations of the people for better conditions. A vote for Davis will mean a vote for the protection of private property and the preservation of monogamous marriage, and hence the civilization of the race. A vote for Davis will be a vote for lessening the economic burdens of the farmers, the laborers and the consumers of the country, and the death-knell of special privileges to the annual contributors to the Republican campaign fund. The election of Davis will mean that every man, woman and child in the United States can worship God in accordance with his individual conscience and in accordance with his individual intelligence. The election of Davis will mean the end of a political and ethical sphinx in the White House, which sends a daily shiver down the spinal column of the American people and smothers the aspirations of the people for freedom in political and spiritual action.

The election of Davis will also mean the end of a deceptive and disgraceful policy of snooping and scuttling in the relation of the greatest nation of the world with that of other nations of the world. The election of Davis will mean that the people of the United States, by the help of God, have determined once and for all to assume a position of equality with all the other nations of the world in all matters pertaining to international relations, and will henceforth quit playing carrier of the dish-water of the other nations of the world. Finally, a vote for Davis is a vote for the federation of the world, a vote for the brotherhood of man and a vote for the fatherhood of God.

Roosevelt Consistency.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Young Theodore Roosevelt, in his speech of acceptance of the nomination for the Governorship, dwells upon the record of the Republican Party with much pride. "Since the birth of our party," he says, "we have stood for sane, constructive liberalism. We have stood for equality of opportunity for all our people in the full sense of the word."

This is not what his distinguished father thought and said in 1912. The platform that he made and upon which he ran, in his efforts to defeat the party that the son now thinks so perfect, said:

"Political parties exist to secure responsible government and to execute the will of the people. From these great tasks both the old parties have turned aside. Instead of instruments to promote the general welfare they have become the tools of corrupt interests, which use them impartially to serve their selfish purposes. Behind the ostensible Government sits an invisible government, owing no allegiance and acknowledging no responsibility to the people. To destroy this invisible government, to dissolve the unholy alliance between corrupt business and corrupt politics, is the first task of the statesmanship of the day. The deliberate betrayal of its trust by the Republican Party, the fatal incapacity of the Democratic Party to deal with the new issues of the new time, have compelled the people to forge a new instrument of government, through which to give effect to their will in laws and institutions."

It seems clear that the third party candidates of 1912 and 1924, both Republicans, were not far apart in their views of the shortcomings of the G. O. P.

PRAISE WORK DONE BY SALVATION ARMY

Investigators for National Information Bureau Report on Survey of 14 Months.

MORE PAY FOR OFFICERS

Closer Cooperation With Other Relief Organizations Also Is Recommended.

Closer cooperation between the Salvation Army and other social organizations, more pay for the Salvation Army's officers, and a development in the system of training workers that will better fit them for special lines of endeavor were some of the recommendations made by the National Information Bureau, which has just completed a fourteen months' survey of the work of the Salvation Army. The report was read yesterday at the annual meeting of the bureau, held at 215 Fourth Avenue.

The bureau is a product of the war, when so many alleged philanthropic organizations sprang up that the Government created it as an investigating body. Because of its usefulness it was placed on a permanent basis after the war. The survey of the Salvation Army was the first of a series now under way. It was conducted by Porter R. Lee, Director, and Walter W. Pettit, Associate Director, of the New York School of Social Service.

Every type of Salvation Army institution was visited, the books and accounts studied, and religious meetings in the street and in halls were attended. The report spoke of the organization as a "self-contained brotherhood which has an enormous spiritual driving power." It commented upon the loyalty of the officers and soldiers, and said:

"While the relief of the army may be no less efficient than that of the majority of other American churches attempting general relief, it is our judgment that a greater effort should be made to standardize this work, and we strongly urge the general adoption of the methods used in New York. The Salvation Army has adopted rather generally the plan for an annual drive for funds called the Home Service Fund, and has given up in most cities street collections, except the Christmas kettle and selling of The War Cry.

"One of the other two important special funds—the Self Denial—is in part turned over by territorial headquarters to be an international missionary fund administered by international headquarters. This fund is supposed to come from the adherents of the army, and is the only source from which any money is sent outside of the United States. In 1923 $42,000 was so expended by the Eastern Territory, compared with three and a quarter millions spent on the work in its section of the United States.

"Adequate supervision of corps officers is recognized as one of the chief administrative problems. The recent increase in the number of divisions is an attempt to make more efficient this supervision. The Salvation Army has been handicapped by the frequent transfer of officers, usually due to administrative requirements within the organization. The rule is to transfer officers at least every two years. The possibility of making your Salvation Army activities in a town—local corps, Scandinavian corps, institutions of men's and women's social departments—each dependent upon separate departments of territorial headquarters and each independent of the other, has frequently resulted in criticism from the outside of lack of unity. Steps should be taken to centralize responsibility for local work.

"Under standards of work the study recommends closer cooperation with other social agencies doing relief work, following the precedent in New York City; further development of the courses at the training school; careful reconsideration of what seems to be a very low salary scale for officers; careful formulation for the benefit of corps officers and the public of the experience of the Salvation Army in meeting special problems such as that of local advisory boards, and closer cooperation of all social agencies with the army, and of the army with all other social agencies."

DR. OSTERHOUT APPOINTED.

Harvard Professor Joins Rockefeller Institute Scientific Staff.

Dr. J. V. Osterhout, Professor of Botany at Harvard University, has been appointed to the scientific staff of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, according to an announcement made yesterday by F. Stanley Howe, assistant business manager of the Institute.

Dr. Osterhout was graduated from Brown University in 1893 and remained there for two years as instructor in Botany. In 1895-96 he studied in the laboratory of Professor E. Strasburger in Bonn, Germany. In 1896 he went to the University of California as instructor in Botany, remaining there for thirteen years, becoming successively Assistant Professor (1901) and Associate Professor in Botany (1907), which title he held until 1909, when he left California to accept an Assistant Professorship in the Department of Botany at Harvard University, later, in 1913, becoming full Professor. Dr. Osterhout has also served on the following lectureships: Hitchcock Lecturer at the University of California, 1919; Colver Lecturer at Brown University, 1922, and Lowell Lecturer at the Lowell Institute, Boston, 1922-23.

ASKS FUNDS TO AID HORSES.

Women's League for Animals to Keep Watering Stations Open.

The New York Women's League for Animals is appealing to the public for funds to keep at least part of its free watering stations for horses open until cold weather and three or four in the crowded trucking sections open all Winter. The League also asks for used clothing, house furnishings, and other salable articles for a rummage sale to be held later on. The city provides no watering facilities for the 90,000 work horses in Greater New York, and private agencies are doing that work.

MISS BIDDLE TO WED W. R. STEWART JR.

Engagement of Philadelphia Girl Is Confirmed by Her Parents.

NO WEDDING DATE SET

Marriage Will Unite Two of the Oldest Families of the Two Cities.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 10.—The engagement of Miss Laura Biddle to William Rhinelander Stewart Jr. of New York, which was reported yesterday, was confirmed today by Mr. and Mrs. Craig Biddle of New York and Philadelphia, her parents. The marriage of Miss Biddle and Mr. Stewart will unite two of the oldest families in the two cities.

Miss Biddle, who is 18, is one of the season's debutantes in this city, and has been the centre of many social functions. Mr. Stewart, about twelve years his fiancée's senior, is a graduate of Harvard. Miss Biddle is visiting at the home of Mrs. George W. Childs Drexel at Bryn Mawr. Miss Biddle is the granddaughter of Mrs. C. Hartman Kuhn of the Bellevue-Stratford, and in connection with the series of functions that will mark her début they will be hosts at a large luncheon at the Philadelphia Country Club Oct. 25.

Mrs. Craig Biddle at her Summer place in Newport yesterday confirmed the report that her daughter, Miss Laura Biddle, had become engaged to William Rhinelander Stewart Jr. of this city. The engagement is to be formally announced soon in Philadelphia. Mr. Stewart left New York for Philadelphia yesterday to spend the week-end with Miss Biddle. The date for the wedding has not been set.

Families of both Miss Biddle and Mr. Stewart have been prominent in the social and business life of this city and Philadelphia. Miss Biddle is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Craig Biddle. She has two brothers, George Drexel Biddle and Craig Biddle Jr., who recently announced his intention of producing theatrical attractions, after spending some time in the motion picture studios of Hollywood.

Miss Biddle is a grand niece of Mrs. Alexander Van Rensselaer, Colonel Anthony J. Drexel of London, and George W. Childs Drexel, and a niece of Mrs. Henry Clews Jr. Other near relatives include Mrs. Duncan Robertson, the Viscountess Maidstone, Livingston Biddle and Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr.

Mr. Stewart is the son of William Rhinelander Stewart of 701 Park Avenue. He is a nephew of Lispenard Stewart and Mrs. Frank Spencer Witherbee. Princess Miguel de Braganza is his sister. His mother is Mrs. Jean Saint Clyr.

E. R. THOMAS WEDS ACTRESS IN PARIS

Marries Leslie Cotten, Who Appeared in Several Broadway Productions.

DIVORCED LAST JUNE

A Month Before He Had Settled Several Hundred Thousand Dollars on His Wife.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Edward R. Thomas today married Leslie Cotten, an actress. The couple left for a honeymoon in the south of France.

Mr. Thomas's marriage in Paris was reported here several days ago, and it was then said that he and his bride were on their way here on the Majestic. Confirmation of this could not be obtained by his friends here.

He is Vice President of the Lewis Publishing Company, which publishes The Morning Telegraph. He was divorced by his second wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Finley Thomas, in Florida, early in June, a month after he had made a settlement upon her of several hundred thousand dollars. Miss Cotten was born in Houston, Tex., and has appeared in Broadway productions and in motion pictures. Her first appearance was in "The Quaker Girl," and more recently she was in "Up in Mabel's Room." She also was with George Arliss in some of his picture productions.

The settlement which Mr. Thomas made came to light three weeks ago when Mrs. Thomas sued to enforce the agreement in respect to a trust fund established by her husband in 1922. The agreement was dated May 8 last.

Their only child, a son, Samuel Finley Thomas, now 11 years old, is living with his mother at her apartment on West Fifty-eighth Street.

Mr. Thomas married his second wife at Newport, R. I., on Nov. 5, 1912, the day on which his first wife, who was Miss Linda Lee, a noted beauty of Louisville, Ky., received her final decree of divorce. In 1907 he lost a part of his fortune, then estimated at $10,000,000, and sold off his racing stable. Since then, it is understood that he has recouped a large part of his losses.

FIRE SWEEPS CABINS OF PRESIDENT POLK

Dollar Liner Is Damaged at Brooklyn Pier—Crew Escapes and Cheers Rescuer.

Fire was discovered shortly after last midnight on the Dollar liner President Polk, lying at Pier 6, at the foot of Forty-second Street, Brooklyn. A watchman of the Bush Terminal, where the ship has wharfage, sent in an alarm and firemen soon sent second and third calls for apparatus.

When the first engines arrived flames were shooting through the superstructure and about 300 coolies of the crew, asleep below, had been confused by smoke and were shouting for help. Watchmen, firemen and policemen helped them off after they had been quieted by John Zane, a Chinese cartoonist on the China Press of Shanghai, who is working his way around the world as a member of the crew. A few Chinese jumped into the water and were fished out. They gathered with the rest on the pier, which also was aflame for a time, and cheered Zane for having saved them from panic and its consequences.

A boss stevedore was unaccounted for when members of the rescue squad were able to get into the hold, but it was not certain whether he had been on the ship. All others are believed to have escaped.

The flames were sweeping through the cabins on the upper decks and mounting to the superstructure when fireboats joined the land apparatus. In about thirty minutes the blaze was brought under control after having done considerable damage.

The President Polk returned last Thursday from a trip around the world and was laden with spices, syrups, tea and nuts.

OLCOTT SALE ENDS.

Proceeds $27,314, Dutch Clock, at $725, Bringing Highest Price.

The two days' sale of the furnishings of the residence of J. Van Vechten Olcott, 31-33 West Seventy-second Street, by the American Art Association, Inc., ended yesterday and brought in $27,314. A Dutch marqueterie grandfather clock, made by Van Oostrom of Amsterdam, Holland, brought $725, the highest price. Its paneled body with chamfered corners broadens into a moulded base with carved spreading corners in the Dutch manner. It has cushion feet, mounts of cuivre doré on the face and polychrome decoration in Louis XVI. style. The arched and creased top is supported on Corinthian pilasters surmounted by gilded figures on globes. It has an all-over decoration of floral inlay and striking and chiming movements.

A Dresden porcelain cover-and-vase, the vase and pedestal being six feet tall, brought $280. A massive Sèvres porcelain and biscuit vase and pedestal, a bit over six feet high brought $600. Four armchairs and a sofa, Louis XVI. style, sold for $375. An Italian rococo style low laqué armoire mounted in cuivre doré with an Algerian onyx top brought $450.

Two maple side chairs and seven side chairs, American, circa 1800, sold for $310. A painting of "A Jewish Priest," artist unknown, went for $255, and a pair of 39-inch Napoleonic Sèvres covered vases, dated 1806, bearing the Napoleonic eagle, laurel branches and monogram in dull gold and scenes from the battles of Austerlitz and Wagram in rich colors on the vase bodies, the dome overshadowing pineapple finials, sold for $460.

MILLERAND TO COME BACK.

Plans to Re-enter Political Arena at the Head of His Old Party.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Former President Millerand is about to re-enter the political arena at the head of his old party, the National Bloc, which will be reorganized under the name of the League of Union and National Action, according to reports current in the political world. It is understood the new party will have magnificent headquarters in the Champs Elysees district and will control a daily newspaper.

To a question whether the reports were true M. Millerand replied:

"I can neither deny nor confirm them."

Mgr. Thornton on Diocesan Board.

Mgr. Thomas A. Thornton, pastor of St. Columba's Church, 331 West Twenty-fifth Street, was appointed member of the Board of Diocesan Consultors by Cardinal Hayes yesterday.

The Cardinal appointed four priests to establish new parishes in the Bronx. They are the Rev. Victor L. Basil, from St. Lucy's Church, Manhattan; the Rev. Dominick Fiorentino, from the Church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus and Mary, Manhattan; the Rev. Pasquale T. Lombardo, from the Church of Our Lady of Pompeii, Yonkers; the Rev. Francis A. Kinley, from the pastorate of St. George's Church, Mount Eden.

4 BOMBING PLANES REACH HERE IN DARK

Arrive at Mitchel Field From Langley Field, Va., in Test of Night Operations.

MITCHEL FIELD, L. I., Oct. 10.—Four of the nine bombing planes which left the army air station at Langley Field, Va., at 5:20 o'clock last night to demonstrate the practicability of moving their operating bases during the night, arrived at Mitchel Field at 10:00 o'clock.

The first plane to land was piloted by Lieutenant John Whitely. After him, in rapid succession, came Lieutenant C. L. Williams, Captains W. H. Hale and E. C. Black, and Lieutenants J. M. Davies and H. D. Smith.

Major John H. Pirie, Commander of the flight, was forced down at Cape May, N. J., through engine trouble and was not expected to reach Mitchel Field before midnight. Two other planes had trouble soon after they left Langley Field and were forced to turn back and were expected later in the night.

The first three planes landed on the field very neatly, using a parachute flare and their own powerful wing beacons to light the way. The fourth plane descended by the light of a wing-tip flare that shed a brilliant but soft glow over the entire field.

The aviators said the test was a success. They will remain overnight at Mitchel Field and at dawn will resume their flight to Brannard Field, a commercial station at Hartford, Conn.

Major Pirie's telegram was received at about the same time as the first four bombers landed.

"Forced down by motor trouble at Cape May," it read. "Will repair if possible and take off at once."

Captain Duncan and Lieutenant Cole, the two other pilots who were delayed, took off from Langley Field at 6:10 and 6:40 o'clock, respectively, after their machines had been repaired.

Late last night a message was received from Captain Duncan saying he had been forced down at Lakehurst, N. J., by motor trouble.

Pirie's plane was equipped with radio broadcasting apparatus and he sent out a message telling that he was forced to land. This was picked up by owners of radio sets all over South Jersey. Pirie was alone in the huge bomber. Most of the other planes carried two and three officers.

The thunderous passage of the bombing fleet was heard all along its route through New Jersey and New York. Many persons who could not see the planes at their altitude of 1,500 and 2,000 feet were under the impression that the ZR-3 was overhead and numerous inquiries were telephoned to the naval air station at Lakehurst.

SCORES BORAH'S PRAISE OF POSTAL PAY VETO

Clerks' Official Says Coolidge Approved Increase to Higher Salaried Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The praise of President Coolidge's veto of the postal pay bill uttered by Senator Borah in his Idaho speech was replied to today by Thomas F. Flaherty, Secretary-Treasurer of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks, in a telegram to Senator Borah.

Mr. Flaherty's telegram reads as follows:

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9, 1924.

Hon. William E. Borah, United States Senator, Boise, Idaho.

The press quotes you as referring to President Coolidge's veto of the postal pay bill on June 7th as courageous act. Are you aware President signed bill on April 4th which increased the pay of $2,000 and over officials in Post Office Department to $7,500 and other salary increases proportionately to higher officials, all to be paid from postal revenues? He made no mention that of protecting taxpayers and preventing curtailment of postal revenues.

His courageous interest which you laud, in behalf of taxpayers only manifested itself when proposal to increase lower paid postal workers came before him on June 7th. I might suggest you hereafter qualify your praise of courage of President by expressing regret he saw fit to display it at expense of lower paid workers seeking a $300 pay increase after approving $2,500 salary increases for high political appointees in the department. Both propositions identical in principle—a pay increase to be paid from postal revenues. I can see nothing praiseworthy in the President's denial to the low paid workers the generous consideration he showed to relatively high paid officials.

THOMAS F. FLAHERTY,
Secretary, National Federation of Post Office Clerks.

WOMAN SUES FOR $250,000.

Thomas Hanna Tells Why He Broke His Promise to Marry.

A suit for $250,000 damages for breach of promise was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday against Thomas Hanna by Mrs. Elizabeth Gormley. She alleges that she met Hanna in February and promised to wed him in April. She asserts that, after he gave her an engagement ring and various sums of money and caused her to become estranged from her family, Hanna told her in August that he wouldn't marry her.

Hanna admits that he promised to wed Mrs. Gormley and gave her money to buy an engagement ring as the result of representations that she had been divorced from her husband because of incompatibility, and had received a settlement from him sufficient to pay her living expenses. Hanna alleges that her statements were false and that she "was able to live without work on an income the source of which she as unwilling truthfully to reveal."

DR. ARCHER ELECTED.

Chosen President of the Police and Fire Surgeons' Association.

Dr. Harry M. Archer, honorary surgeon of the New York Fire Department, was elected yesterday President of the National Association of Police and Fire Surgeons and Medical Directors of Civil Service Commissions, which closed its three-day annual convention last night at the Hotel Commodore. Drs. J. J. Wyeth and F. M. Banta of this city were elected Secretary and Treasurer, respectively. It was decided to hold next year's convention in Grand Rapids, Mich., the week beginning September 1, and that for 1926 in Philadelphia during the Sesquicentennial celebration there.

The convention approved a report by its Committee on Civil Service Standards calling for standardization throughout the country of medical and physical requirements for police and fire department appointments.

BISHOPS TO HELP AMITY WITH JAPAN

Pledge Aid in Raising Fund to Rebuild Episcopal Hospital in Tokio.

HUGHES FAVORS PROJECT

Will Promote Cordial Relations, Secretary Wrote—Religious Campaign Proposed.

The House of Bishops and the National Council of the Episcopal Church in a joint session which ended last evening, after hearing an address by Dr. Rudolph B. Tuesler, director of St. Luke's Episcopal International Hospital in Tokio, Japan, passed the following resolution:

"Recognizing the need for prompt reconstruction of the church in Japan, we assure Bishop McKim by cable that we pledge our utmost effort to the Japanese Reconstruction Committee in the hope that it may bring about the early completion of the fund."

Immediately after the session the cablegram was sent to Bishop John McKim. The fund referred to is being raised to erect a new St. Luke's Hospital, the old hospital having been destroyed by the earthquake in September, 1923. The new hospital is scheduled to cost $1,000,000. The Emperor of Japan has given $25,000, and the people of Japan have pledged $50,000.

During his address Dr. Tuesler read a letter to Bishop James E. Freeman of Washington, D. C., from Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, in which Mr. Hughes said that the rebuilding of the hospital would promote cordial relations between Americans and the Japanese people.

Dr. Tuesler told the Bishops and council that Japan had turned her face eastward toward Russia, and her back on the west toward America, as a result of the Japanese exclusion action of Congress. Dr. Tuesler declared he spoke from a knowledge of Far East conditions of the people gained through a twenty years' experience.

A committee of three Bishops was appointed to report back to the next meeting of the council in February as to the advisability of sending out 100 Bishops, clergymen and laymen on a trip across the country in an effort to revive old-time religion. The committee was instructed also to present a detailed plan for such a movement. The committee is composed of Bishops Thomas Campbell Darst of Wilmington, N. C.; Charles L. Slattery of Boston and Charles H. Brent of Buffalo.

The purpose of the proposed "cruise," it was stated, was to awaken the people of the Episcopal Church to their duties and responsibilities as Christian citizens. The idea, "the motion stated, "is that the 100 modern apostles are to go in small groups and work simultaneously for one month, reaching the whole Episcopal Church through meetings in centres."

EZRA MEEKER AT CITY HALL.

Ox-Team Veteran of the Oregon Trail Visits the Mayor.

Ezra Meeker, 94 years old, who drove an ox team from Iowa to Seattle in 1852 on the old Oregon trail at two miles an hour, and who recently crossed the same trail with Lieutenant Oakley G. Kelly in a United States army airplane at 100 miles per hour, was a visitor yesterday at City Hall.

The veteran of the Oregon trail was introduced by Mayor Hylan at the Board of Estimate meeting, and made a brief speech telling of his experiences as a pioneer farmer in the Northwest when Seattle had only a population of 150.

He said the main reason for his flight by airplane East was to arouse interest in the preservation of the old trail. He hopes to see the trail made into a military highway so that it will be always preserved for the nation as a monument to the hardy men and women who struggled across it in the dangerous days of the early fifties. He has placed more than 170 granite monuments and markers along the trail.

MAJOR C. F. WEST DIES.

Receives War Decoration From France in His Last Moment.

Major Charles Gifford West, who superintended the landing of American troops and ammunitions in France in the World War, died yesterday at the Stamford Hospital in Stamford, Conn. Only a few minutes before his death the Legion of Honor of France was awarded to him for his service during the conflict. French Consul General Andre Blouet bestowed the decoration.

Major West, who before the war had for many years been employed by the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique in New York, was 71 years old. When war broke out he was recommended for a commission by General Pershing.

SAYS AUTOS AND JAZZ RUIN AMERICAN YOUTH

Coach Knox of Harvard Pleads for Fewer Spindle Legs and Hollow Chests.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 10.—James T. Knox, the Harvard football strategist and scout, told the "Old Guard" of the Boston Chamber of Commerce at a dinner today that automobiles and jazz parties are sapping the strength of the American youth.

"Any of you who have sons please keep them out of automobiles and jazz parties until they are at least 21 years of age," Coach Knox said. "As I look about college campuses these days, I see boys with spindle legs and hollow chests who have replaced the sturdy youths of a few years ago. The younger generation thinks that only the frivolous things of life are worth while. And playing football is not frivolous. It is primarily a training of the mind. But there isn't any sense in putting a good roof on a wabbly building.

"There is a widespread impression that a college football coach is a man with his cheek wrapped around a hank of tobacco and his mouth shouting profanity. That impression is far from the fact. The football coach of today is essentially a teacher. He trains the football player to think quickly, to be self-reliant, to make quick and accurate judgments and develop acute mental activity.

"He has to do this in ten weeks. So keep your sons out of automobiles and away from jazz parties if you want them to be football players."

CHERRY HILL TO CELEBRATE

A Baby Parade and a Pageant Arranged for Monday.

Mrs. John Marshall Gallagher, Chairman in charge, announced yesterday an elaborate historical pageant and baby parade would be held in the Cherry Hill district at 3 P. M. next Monday, Columbus Day. The event is being arranged by the Sisters of Christian Doctrine at Madonna House, 178 Cherry Street.

Lieut. Col. Timothy J. Moynahan of the Old Sixty-ninth Regiment will act as Grand Marshal to a procession that will include the Police and Street Cleaning Department Bands, about fifty floats and several hundred babies. Adults will impersonate various historical characters associated with New York since its earliest days.

The Right Rev. John J. Dunn, Auxiliary Bishop of New York, will award prizes for the "better babies" and other phases of the affair.

CONFERENCE ALLOTS NEW RADIO WAVES

Recommends Revised Lengths for Broadcasting, for Marine Use and for Amateurs.

FOR TEST OF SUPER-STATION

Suggests Experiments Under Supervision to See How It Would Affect Smaller Stations.

OPPOSES ANY MONOPOLY

Report to Hoover Urges Continuance of Non-Interference With Programs to Avoid Censorship.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The third National Radio Conference completed its sessions today, submitting a report with recommendations to Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, declaring it as "unalterably opposed to any monopoly in broadcasting" and suggesting that national broadcasting through interconnecting stations be extended, that the power of stations be increased, especially those which give people in country districts who own small receiving sets the same information as is available by radio to dwellers in the larger cities, and that experimentation be permitted under strict limitation to determine whether proposed superpower broadcasting stations can be operated without interfering with the existing system.

The chief topic considered by the conference was that of superpower stations. The proposal of the Radio Corporation of America to erect America's first superpower station outside of New York City brought a storm of protest. It was contended that a mistake would be made to authorize any station superior in power to stations now in use. This subject was referred to a subcommittee, which submitted a recommendation, approved by the conference, that no superpower stations be authorized except for experimentation, and that future policy be dependent upon the outcome of the experiments, which the conference held must be conducted under strict supervision.

In its report the subcommittee said:

"Considerable fear exists among broadcast listeners and owners of existing broadcasting stations that the use of appreciably higher power in broadcasting stations over that now permitted may adversely affect the reception of a large number of listeners. The benefits to be gained by the general public from such action seem, however, to warrant the development of such a service in an experimental way subject to careful observation of results and its cessation if the benefits expected are not attained without equal detriment in other directions.

Would Avoid Signal Interference.

"By reason of the lack of data in this field, it seems unwise to limit this experimental work by restrictions on the power employed, the variation of power with seasons or hours of the day, or the progressive use of increasing power as results seem to warrant. It does appear essential, however, to locate such stations at such distance from populous centres that such centres will not be subjected to intensity of signals in excess of that now produced by authorized stations in their midst.

"From such data as are now available, it is believed this object will be attained if the station is so located with respect to populous centres that the distance between it and the boundary of such community will not be less than the quotient obtained by dividing the product of antenna current in amperes times effective antenna height in meters by a constant, tentatively set at 100. Experience may make it advisable to modify this constant, but it seems sufficiently conservative to serve for the initiation of this experimental work."

With regard to public broadcasting the conference says that a new system of sorting broadcasting has been worked out by which it is possible to obtain some additional channels of air communication, with the net result that instead of the number of wave lengths now used by general broadcasting stations there will be an increase of 90 wave lengths, bringing the total up to 160. All wave lengths up to 545 meters have been provided for, the conference reports. To prevent interference with broadcasting by radio telegraphic stations, chiefly in marine communication, the conference recommends the use of the 360-meter wave length.

The conference notes in its report that it has allocated the amateurs substantially the same frequency bands now in use.

The Department of Commerce is advised by the conference to continue its policy of non-interference with broadcasts sent out by broadcasting stations. Any other course, it is held, would be censorship.

The conference reports that it finds that simultaneous broadcasting through interconnection of stations deserves encouragement and asks the Secretary of Commerce to appoint a continuing committee to work out necessary plans for its full accomplishment.

Suggest New Wave Lengths.

The report to Secretary Hoover said:

"Public broadcasting—the great problem in broadcasting is that of interference. It may arise in several ways, either by direct interference of one station by another, because of too close proximity of frequency, interference by radio telegraph signals and interference from outside electrical sources.

"In dealing with the first of these causes, the conference has been successful in providing additional channels so that stations may not conflict with one another. To accomplish this the present broadcasting band has been extended so as to include all wave lengths from 200 to 545 meters. Furthermore, a new system of zoning has been worked out by which it is possible to obtain still additional channels. The net result will be that instead of the number of wave lengths now used by general broadcasting stations, there will be an increase of thirty wave bands or channels, bringing the total up to 100.

"In order to do away with the interference with broadcasting by radio telegraphic code signals, used chiefly in marine communication, the conference recommends the use of the 360-meter wave length, which fell within the above band, this wave length being left exclusively for broadcasting. The 485-meter wave length, which up to a short time ago was likewise used for marine communication, has already been discontinued. The conference recommends that the 600-meter wave length, which is close to the upper end of the broadcasting band, be limited to distress signals and used as a calling wave, which means that general marine communication will not be carried on in this wave length. This effectually clears the general broadcasting band as above of code signals.

"As to interference from outside electric sources, the conference took affirmative action in recommending that there be a general cooperation with the producers and users of electrical energy by which this interference is now caused. The conference is glad to be able to say that with very few exceptions there has been manifested the greatest desire on the part of such interests to minimize this interference.

For New Classification of Stations.

"Designation and allocation of stations by the conference recommends a new classification for stations. Present Class B stations are hereafter to be known as Class 1, Class A stations as either Class 2 or 3, and Class C stations to go either into Class 1, 2 or 3, according to their character.

"The conference recommends that the Class C stations still remaining on a wave length of 360 meters be assigned new wave lengths. This, of course, does not mean the abolition of Class C stations, but merely that instead of all of them operating on one wave length as at present and interfering with each other they shall have separate assignments and be distributed through the broadcasting bands.

"Marine Radio Service—While providing additional channels for broadcasting, the conference has been able likewise to provide additional channels for marine use. This has been done by specifically designating, for ship communication the wave lengths of 560, 730, 835 and 705, with the 600-meter wave length as a calling and distress wave. This provides five channels instead of the two now in use.

"Amateurs—The temporary allocation of waves below 150 meters made by the department to the amateurs some months ago is definitely approved with some slight changes in the bands.

"The net result of this is to give to amateurs an increase over what they had at the end of the conference a year ago.

Wants No Government Censorship.

"Censorship" The conference thoroughly discussed all angles of program directing and heard a great many arguments on this important subject. As a result it recommends that the policy of the department of non-interference in programs sent out by broadcasting stations should be upheld. Any other attitude would necessarily involve censorship in some degree.

"Interconnection." The interconnection of stations so as to provide for simultaneous broadcasting has been the most important development of the last eighteen months. There have been very recently several actual demonstrations of the possibility of nation-wide simultaneous broadcasting by interconnection. The conference affirmatively finds that simultaneous broadcasting of national events is today practicable over a large portion of the United States. It believes that nation-wide broadcasting by interconnection of stations deserves severe encouragement and stimulation, and to that end recommends the appointment by the Secretary of Commerce of a continuing committee which will give consideration to the working out of the necessary plans for its full accomplishment.

"Further Appropriations for the Department." The funds appropriated for the enforcement of the radio law by the department have become wholly insufficient. We strongly recommend to Congress an increase in the appropriations made for the enforcement of the radio laws by the Department of Commerce.

BURGLARS USE FIRE ALARM.

Divert Attention From Themselves While They Steal $50,000 in Furs.

Using a false alarm of fire which they turned in from a point several blocks distant as a smoke screen to divert attention from their activities four burglars entered the store of the Hudson Bay Fur Company at 194 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, early yesterday morning and made their escape in an automobile with fifty-five fur coats valued at about $50,000.

The burglars timed their arrival at the fur store with the departure of a watchman for breakfast. Then they pulled the fire alarm at the corner of Bond and Livingston Streets. A few seconds later their auto rolled up in front of the fur store. The burglars seized a chair left by the watchman and smashed in the plate glass of the front door.

Inside the door was a network of wires attached to a burglar alarm. Despite the ringing of the bell the four men quickly gathered up the most costly garments in the store and in several trips loaded up their machine. When representatives of the protective company and detectives from the Butler Street Station arrived the burglars had gone.

The detectives found a man engaged in construction work in the vicinity who said ten four men at work. He said they moved so rapidly that he did not realize they were burglars until after they had made their escape.

SAY LOST SHIP WAS UNFIT.

Woman Sues C. W. Morse for Son Who Went Down on the Frederick.

The story of the loss of the steamship Frederick of the Frederick Steamship Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steamship Company, controlled by Charles W. Morse, was recalled yesterday in the trial of a suit brought by Mrs. Adelaide C. Nelson of North Philadelphia against Morse and his son Benjamin for $100,000 for the loss of her son Lawrence, a seaman, who went down with the vessel. The complaint charges that Morse bought the ship for $5,000 when it was unseaworthy after fifty years of service.

Witnesses who testified before Federal Judge Goddard and a jury said that the vessel was unfit when she left here in January, 1916, for Portland, Me., and Louisburg, Nova Scotia for a cargo. All the crew of thirty-two were lost except one, who left the ship at Portland. This seaman testified that during the trip to Portland it took two men to keep her on her course and that the firemen stood knee-deep in water in the boiler room. The trial will be continued Tuesday. Efforts to subpoena Charles W. Morse have been unsuccessful.

AUTHORS CENSURE HYLAN.

Send Resolution to the President on "What Price Glory" Action.

The Authors' League of America, which is composed of 1,800 writers and illustrators, yesterday sent to the President and to the Secretaries of War and of the Navy, as well as to Mayor Hylan, a resolution censuring the action of the Mayor in suggesting that the military and naval authorities pass upon "What Price Glory," which is now playing at the Plymouth. The resolution criticises military or naval censorship in times of peace as "a usurpation of the civilian functions of government and a betrayal of the principles of liberty upon which our Government is founded."

At the City Hall yesterday afternoon it was stated that Mayor Hylan's copy of the resolution had not been received.

Erring Burglars Work an Hour Only to Break Into Empty Shop

Two men spent more than an hour on Thursday night sawing through the bars which protected the back window of a store at 1,531 Westchester Avenue, the Bronx. When they got in they discovered that they had broken into a vacant building.

A woman who heard the rasping of the saw called the police, who found the pair in the empty store and arrested them. Detectives say that the two apparently intended to rob an army goods store next door, but that they miscounted when they reached the back alley.

VETERANS' BUREAU SILENT ABOUT KLAN

Officials Here Refuse to Discuss Charges of Religious and Racial Discriminations.

EMPLOYES ARE DIVIDED

But Offers of Evidence Are Being Received From Many Sources, Says Major Deegan.

Officials of the United States Veterans' Bureau here remained silent yesterday concerning the charges of disabled veterans that the Ku Klux Klan had crept into the organization and that in some departments religious and racial prejudices governed both the selection and the dismissal of employes. M. E. Head, district manager of the bureau for the States of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, was out of town and in his absence no one would comment on the charges.

Rumors that the Klan was in their midst created something of a sensation, however, among the employes of the bureau and the disabled men who visited the bureau's offices in the Grand Central Palace. Opinion as to the truth of the charge, which was made at a conference of disabled veterans on Thursday night, seemed divided. Some employes said they were convinced that the charge was true, while others were equally emphatic in asserting they had seen no evidence of the Klan.

On the other hand, offers of evidence against the Klan came from many sources to the veterans themselves. These offers centred in the main around one official of the bureau reported to have been seen at a Klan meeting.

Evidence Offered to Deegan.

"I have also received offers of evidence in support of the charge," said Major William F. Deegan. "I replied that I would turn over any affidavits to the officers of the World War Amps, the organization of veterans who have lost an arm or a leg, who have elected me Chairman of their Executive Committee. In fairness to myself, however, I would like to make it clear that it was not I who raised the charge that the Klan had worked into the bureau. The report in THE TIMES made that clear, but there appears to be a feeling in the bureau that the charge was made by me, and I want to correct that impression.

"I do believe religious and racial prejudices have existed in the bureau and in Government hospitals for disabled veterans. Some cases have been brought to my personal attention, but I was not aware of the report that the Klan was behind all this. If it is we ought to know it, and if it is not then that ought to be known, too."

One of the day's developments in the campaign of the disabled veterans to bring about reforms in the bureau was the appearance of a committee of seven tubercular veterans. They came from Liberty, N. Y., where they were taking treatment and conferred with officials of the bureau. The men were Orie Palmer, Paul Harper, Thomas Holland, Edward Doyle, Harry De Meyer, Matthew A. Skea and William Sass. They were accompanied by Major Deegan, who is Acting Chairman of the Hospitalization Committee of the American Legion; Frank L. Irwin, National Commander of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War; Harry D. Nierenberg, State Commander of that organization, and George Calver, who is blind; Henry McCulloch and John McCarthy, also officials of the D. A. Va.

Hines Promises Investigation.

The veterans complained that for three years they had been trying to get in writing some assurance from the bureau that they would not be disturbed at Liberty but that recently they had learned that all the cottage contracts there would be canceled and the patients transferred to the new tubercular hospitals at Chelsea and Tupper Lake, N. Y. They said the change would be detrimental to their recovery and that they were satisfied with their surroundings and their treatment and wished not to be molested.

Officials of the bureau replied that it was a matter over which they had no control and the committee immediately telephoned from the bureau to Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, the director in Washington.

"General Hines assured us," said Mr. Nierenberg, "that he would not close Liberty without making a personal investigation. He said he would send us a letter to that effect tonight. He asked the veterans not to worry and said their interests would be safeguarded. That is about the first definite assurance we have been able to get in years and we feel encouraged by our visit."

Announcement was made at the offices of the bureau that a modern 1,000-bed hospital for mental cases in this district would be built by the bureau and that a committee composed of General George A. Wingate, Dr. Henry A. Cotton and Dr. Thomas Salmon, neuro-psychiatrists, had been appointed to investigate sites.

"The committee will investigate any site offered," General Wingate said, "but it must be remembered that we are interested in tracts of land comprising not less than 500 acres, situated rather close to New York City, with proper transportation facilities."

This new hospital, it was reported, probably could not be completed for two years.

NEEDS COMMISSIONERS TO HEAR BOOTLEGGERS

Attorney General Stone, Here to Register, Discusses Appointments for Long Island.

Attorney General Harlan Fiske Stone paid an unexpected visit to the Federal Building in Brooklyn yesterday, and for more than an hour was in consultation with United States District Judges Edwin L. Garvin, Marcus B. Campbell and Robert A. Inch. The conference was held in the chambers of Judge Garvin. Before he left the building the Attorney General said that he came from Washington to register from his home at 640 Park Avenue, Manhattan, and that his stop in Brooklyn was a sort of social visit and that he expects to return to Washington on Sunday.

From other sources it was learned that one of the topics of discussion was the need of additional United States Commissioners for the Eastern district, one to be located in Nassau County and the other in Suffolk County. Agitation for the placement of United States Commissioners in the two counties has been widespread because of the inconvenience and expense of bringing prisoners from distant points on Long Island for arraignment in Brooklyn. The activities of bootleggers along the Long Island shore has caused numerous Federal arrests in that section and the work of prohibition agents has been delayed by the necessity of bringing prisoners all the way to Brooklyn. No positive decision as to the appointments was made at the conference.

The Attorney General complimented the Federal judges on the condition of the court calendar.

Petty Officers Accused of Aiding Klan Before Naval Board at New London

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 10.—Direct connection between enlisted man in the navy and the Ku Klux Klan was alleged today at a hearing before a special naval board sitting on the U. S. S. Chewink. Joseph J. Capdeville and John L. Hess, chief electrician's mates, and Roy T. Johnson, chief machinist's mate, all attached to the submarine base here, were charged with attending a Klan ceremonial at Cheshire, Conn., on July 12, and while there in uniform with carrying clubs, serving as traffic officers for Klansmen's cars and driving away persons who were not members and who had sought to attend.

It was further alleged that when the petty officers were asked by what authority they were performing traffic duty, they replied that they had been sent by their commanding officer and were acting under his orders.

It is understood that the occurrence was called to the attention of the Navy Department by the Rev. Timothy M. Crowley, pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea Church here.

The naval board of four members, acting under orders from Secretary Wilbur, after its session today sent the papers to Washington and the finding was not made public.

Captain King, commandant at the base here, has stated that he is not a member of the Klan and did not order any of the men to attend or do duty at the ceremonial.

Witnesses heard by the board included Jesse Devine, Collector of Taxes of Waterbury and former member of the Legislature; Edward Hart, Eastern League baseball player of Meriden; Philip Doherty, former Eastern League umpire, also of Meriden; Deputy Sheriff Robert J. Higgins of Meriden; John J. Spellacy of Meriden and Edward Dickson of Hartford, all of whom were spectators at the Cheshire affair.

LIQUOR SHIP'S CREW WEAK ON MEMORY

They Reveal So Little About Rum Row That Tampering Is Charged.

A DRUGGIST LOSES WHISKY

Charge of Erasing Serial Numbers is Dismissed, but He Can't Identify His Own Cases.

Assistant United States Attorney Francis S. McGurk charged yesterday that witnesses in the case of the alleged liquor-smuggling British trawler Frederick B. had been tampered with. He made that accusation at a hearing before United States Commissioner John N. Boyle at which several members of the trawler's crew exhibited bad memories. The Frederick B. was captured last Friday off Monmouth Beach, N. J., with 5,500 cases of whisky and a quantity of alcohol and brought here to face libel proceedings on the ground that she was trading with an American boat in violation of the customs laws.

Mr. McGurk was foiled in nearly all his attempts to establish that the vessel was engaged in the liquor traffic off shore. The witnesses all appeared to be ignorant of the activities of the trawler. William J. Martin, counsel for the defendants, asserted, in answer to the prosecutor's charge of tampering, that Mr. McGurk's insinuation undoubtedly grew out of the fact that there was more tampering in the District Attorney's office than elsewhere.

Assistant United States Attorney McGurk was thereupon advised by Commissioner Boyle to confine his questions to the facts on which he hoped to base his case. Commissioner Boyle said:

"If you have to depend on seafaring folk to make out your case of bootlegging, you probably never will prove anything. As a matter of fact, I don't think you will get anywhere with these witnesses."

In commenting on the case Assistant United States Attorney John Holley Clark Jr. said that the rum runners had established a commercial information service. As an illustration of how it works, he said that a lawyer in Manhattan had been advised of the seizure of the Frederick B. several hours before the United States Attorney's office was notified. He said the Government authorities had not yet discovered how information is sent from sea to land by rum-runners.

Salvatore Conigliaro, who was convicted last April of violating the Volstead act, was convicted on a charge of perjury growing out of that trial yesterday in the United States District Court. Sentence will be pronounced Wednesday.

Max Rakoch, a druggist, of 45 West 181st Street, was exonerated yesterday by Federal Judge Hutchinson of a charge of erasing serial numbers on eight cases of whisky. He could sell the liquor to bootleg customers instead of dispensing it on prescription. When his counsel, Edward Freeman, asked that the liquor be returned, Assistant United States Attorney Clark made the objection on the ground that since the druggist could not identify it he could not establish ownership. Mr. Gutman won his point.

MULHOUSE SOLD LIQUOR BY LOWERING IN NET

Bootleggers Had to Place Money in Receptacle First, Brest Testimony Shows.

BREST, France, Oct. 10.—The bootlegger placed his money and his order in a net, the net was raised to the deck of the rumship and then the net was relowered filled with the cases of liquor called for, according to documents submitted today by owners of the Mulhouse in the continuation of the trial of Max Jerome Phaff of New York, charged with complicity in the piracy which marked the seizure on the high seas of the Mulhouse and her cargo of 36,000 cases of whisky off the Canadian coast last June.

It developed in the course of the examination that the supercargo of the schooner Patara, aboard which the stolen liquor is alleged to have been taken, was allowed to board the Mulhouse, and it is charged was made that the crew of the Patara started the pillaging.

During the alleged raid on the Mulhouse the American Coast Guard cutter Kickapoo and another vessel of the same type were reported to have stood by without interfering, as their instructions were to see where the liquor was being landed.

GOULD LEGACY SHRUNK.

George J.'s $5,000,000 Bequest Only $2,800,000 When Paid.

Although George J. Gould received a legacy of $5,000,000 under the will of his father, Jay Gould, the specific securities which it was directed should be given to him had so shrunken in value by the time they were delivered that he actually got only $2,800,000 worth. This was revealed yesterday at the trial of the $82,000,000 accounting suit before Referee James A. O'Gorman at the office of Taylor, Knowles & Hack, 165 Broadway.

Walker B. Walker, counsel for Frank Jay Gould, charged that the Jay Gould estate lost $5,000,000 through manipulations in Missouri Pacific bonds by George, the principal executor and trustee. The losses, he said, followed an exchange of 5 per cent. refunding bonds for preferred stock and other bonds.

Mr. Walker said the records disclosed that the estate was made to carry the burden of holding large blocks of Missouri Pacific stock for several years after dividends had ceased so that George, if possible, might realize his ambition to become the controlling figure in the road. The collapse which resulted brought a loss of more than $5,000,000 to the estate. Mr. Walker said.

The hearing was adjourned until 10:30 o'clock next Monday.

50 DETECTIVES HUNT FOR TONG WEAPONS

House-to-House Search in Chinatown Reveals Only Three Pistols.

ONE CHINESE ARRESTED

Chinese Merchants Meet and Appoint Committees to Offer Arbitration.

Fifty detectives under Captain Stilson of the First Division and ten members of the Bomb Squad in charge of Acting Captain James J. Gegan were added to a force of uniformed policemen yesterday to prevent a resumption of shooting between the Hip Sing Tong and the On Leong Tong in Chinatown, which began Wednesday night with the killing of one Chinese and the wounding of two others. The detectives were assigned in groups to make a house-to-house canvass for weapons in Mott, Doyers and Pell Streets, which comprise the district, but the only result of their effort was the arrest of one Chinese and the seizure of three pistols.

Detectives Strojahann and Gray of the Oak Street Station saw a taxicab draw up at 25 Pell Street in the afternoon, and three Chinese, each carrying a vegetable bag, hurriedly enter. They ordered the driver to drive to the station, where the bag carried by Wah Buck, 30 years old, of 30 Atlantic Avenue, Yonkers, was found to contain two loaded pistols. He was locked up on a charge of violating the Sullivan law. The bag carried by Hock Chew, 24 years old, of 23 Pell Street, also contained a pistol, but he displayed a pistol permit, and, with the third Chinese, on whom no weapon was found, was released from custody.

That the killing of rival tong members may be extended to districts outside of Chinatown was instanced last night when Detective Sergeant James J. McCarton of the Morrisania station arrested a member of the On Leong Tong outside the laundry of a member of the Hip Sing Tong in the Bronx with a loaded automatic pistol in his coat pocket. The detective saw Joe Foote, 21 years old, who said he was a Chinese waiter, peer into the Chinese laundry at 588 East 168th Street and then slip to the hallway next door.

McCarton took the Chinese to the laundry, where the proprietor said he never had seen him before. The laundryman admitted that he was a member of the Hip Sing Tong, but declared that he knew nothing about the differences between the tongs which had led to the recent outburst of shooting. He was locked up on charge of violating the Sullivan law.

Chinese merchants held a meeting in the headquarters of the Chinese Benevolent Consolidated Association at 16 Mott Street last night for the purpose of bringing about a cessation of the differences between the two tongs. Lee Kue Ying, President of the Association, and Bert V. Eutemey, the Secretary, arranged the meeting. None of those present was a member of either tong.

Following addresses by an official of the Chinese Consulate and several of the merchants, it was decided to appoint one committee of merchants to wait on members of the On Leong Tong at their headquarters at 41 Mott Street and another to confer with leaders of the Hip Sing Tong in their headquarters at 15 Pell Street with suggestions that the rival tong leaders arbitrate their differences through men selected from among the merchants or in combination with public officials acceptable to the tong men.

HARVARD COOPERATIVE TO HAVE NEW BUILDING

Organization Has Grown From 400 Members to 6,618, With a Million-Dollar Business.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 10.—From second-hand books and furniture in a back room to the occupancy of probably the biggest retail store in Cambridge is the progress made by the Harvard Cooperative Society in thirty-two years. Announcement was made yesterday of plans for the new building, construction of which has started.

The organization, which began with 300 members and less than $4,000 annual business, had 6,618 members last year and did approximately a million dollars in business. Everything that might interest the student is carried in stock, even the outfitting of a home from top to bottom.

The new structure will be erected approximately on the site of the present building except that it will extend back to Palmer Street on the west, and when the back section is completed, about Christmas time, the entire stock will be removed there and the work on the front, which was formerly known as Lyceum Hall, will be undertaken.

The Harvard Cooperative Society was organized in 1882 and opened for business in the establishment of Leonard D. Drury, a cigar dealer, in Brattle Square. At that time the society was not incorporated, and for the first few years its sales were limited to members only.

RAID A NEWSPAPER; FLEE WITH $11,358

Five Thieves Hold Up Jewish Forward and Capture the Weekly Payroll.

SLUG TWO WITH BLACKJACK

Arrive Just After Money Had Been Delivered From the Bank in an Armored Car.

Five armed thieves robbed the business office of The Jewish Daily Forward, 175 East Broadway, of $11,358, the weekly payroll, yesterday morning and escaped in an automobile before an outcry could be made. Executives of The Forward, the largest foreign language newspaper in New York City, told the police they believed inside information had been furnished to the hold-up men.

The robbers invaded the newspaper office just after the money for The Forward employes had been delivered in an armored motor car from the State Bank and carried into the cashier's cage by three bank messengers. This was at 11:15 o'clock, and while the hold-up was in progress hundreds of persons were passing the building.

All five robbers were young men, and they worked so coolly and quietly that employes of the newspaper and advertisers gave them no notice until they suddenly flourished pistols.

"It was a regular motion picture hold-up," said B. Charney Vladeck, general manager of The Jewish Daily Forward.

"Friday is our pay day," Mr. Vladeck continued. "The cashier, B. Geshurin, had just got the money from the bank and the three bank messengers had just left the cashier's cage. Cashier Geshurin and Assistant Cashier Ben Donner were taking the rolls of money apart preparatory to putting it into pay envelopes. The money was mostly in fifty-dollar bills.

Knock Down Superintendent.

"The door of the cashier's cage was locked when the five highwaymen entered the lobby. Two of them covered Mr. Geshurin and Mr. Donner through the grating from the lobby. The other three men than entered the main office through the side of the lobby which communicated with the main office, where more than a dozen employes were at work.

"One of the thieves leveled a pistol at Mack Haskell, Superintendent of the building, and ordered him to unlock the door of the cashier's cage.

"'To hell with you,' said Haskell.

"One of the three men hit him on the back of the head with a blackjack and knocked him down. One of them then went to the switchboard and stood guard over Miss Sydonia Donner, a sister of the assistant cashier. The other two went to the door of the cashier's cage and pistoled at the cashier and compelled him to unlock the door. One stood outside the door while the other went inside the cage.

"The robber inside the cashier's cage raked the entire payroll money off the cashier's desk into a black satchel. He threatened to shoot the cashier and assistant cashier if they made any outcry or tried to follow the highwayman and his confederates. At the same time he stated to the men to emphasize that he was in earnest.

"Meanwhile Haskell scrambled to his feet, ran over to one side of the lobby and shouted to me to call the police. I ran up the mezzanine and tried to call, but the robber standing guard at the switchboard would not permit the operator to make a connection.

Threaten as They Flee.

"The three men inside the office then backed out of the main office, still threatening all who might try to follow."

After that, Mr. Vladeck said, all five ran out of the lobby, jumped into a Buick sedan parked in front of the building and escaped eastward on East Broadway.

The business manager of The Jewish Daily Forward explained that the loss was only partly covered by insurance. He said that the Clinton Street police station was notified of the robbery within a few minutes, but that all trace of the hold-up men was lost so quickly that the police had to start on a cold trail.

The bandits treated every person with whom they came in contact roughly, according to the story told by one of them, was Meyer Kellson of the advertising agency of Kellson & Waxelbaum, 136 West Forty-third Street. Mr. Kellson thought the hold-up was a joke until he was hit over the head with a blackjack.

Two hold-up men who tried to rob the jewelry store of Isadore Moskowitz, 331 East Fourteenth Street, were no match for the jeweler. They fled when Moskowitz almost large as the two put together leaped over the counter and made for the bandits after one of them had thrust a pistol in his face.

The two highwaymen had entered the jewelry shop in the guise of customers. One of them pointed a gun at Moskowitz and ordered him to "put 'em up and get in back." Moskowitz vaulted over the counter and knocked the pistol out of his hand. The other robber hit the jeweler on the head with a heavy silver hatchet, and Moskowitz went down. The two robbers ran out and escaped.

SUICIDE OF WOMAN REVEALS 'LOVE NEST'

Wealthy Pittsburgh Man Admits Dual Life as Coroner Investigates.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 10.—When Mrs. Ida Haarbye, mother of three children, ended her life on Wednesday with her two-year-old babe tugging at her dress, a tragedy was enacted that not only destroyed the "love nest" of the despairing young mother, but how seems likely to break up the home of Storm B. Haarbye, chief engineer of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, who today admitted that he had maintained the young woman and her children while at the same time he kept up his beautiful home in Corapolis, a suburb of this city.

Today a Coroner's investigation brought out the facts in connection with the case. When the woman's body was found there were no relatives to take charge of it. Investigation led to Haarbye as the man who has passed as the woman's husband and when seen he said:

"The relations between myself and the woman who is dead were of ten years' standing and are known to my friends. I believe my wife knew of our relations. The whole thing is a terrible shock to my wife, who is very sick over it all."

It is said the young woman who ended her life had believed all along that the man she regarded as her husband was her "very own" until she learned that she had been deceived.

MEMORIAL TO MRS. FRIES.

Exercises Are Held at P. S. 18 in Honor of Late Teacher.

Exercises were held yesterday at Public School 18, 171 East Fifty-first Street, in memory of the late Mrs. Ida M. Fries, who for thirty-five years was a teacher in the school. A floral offering of American Beauties presented by all the teachers of the school was placed on the platform.

Principal Leo I. Kearney presided. Dr. Henry Goldberg, for seven years Principal of the school, and Henry Vlyman, the last Principal under whom Mrs. Fries had served, told of the faithful work of the old teacher and of the love which every one had for her.

MADRID, Oct. 10.—King Alfonso, as head of his house, has been obliged to take the decision of depriving Prince Louis Ferdinand of Bourbon Orleans of all his rights as an Infante of Spain.

Prince Louis is the second son of the Infante Don Antonio, Duke of Galliera, and of the Infanta Eulalia, aunt of the King of Spain.

Recently the French Government found it necessary to expel him from the territory of the republic.

The royal decree depriving the Infante of his privileges "on account of bad conduct" is published in the Madrid Gazette today.

14TH ST. SUBWAY NOW TO PROCEED

City Approves Plan for Elevated Road Connecting Tube With B. M. T. at East New York.

BROOKLYN BIDS OPENED

Lowest is That of Marcus Company, Which Asks $2,561,000 for 3,600 Feet of McKibben Street Section.

The Board of Estimate adopted unanimously yesterday the plan of the Board of Transportation for the completion of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern District subway line by the use of a 700-foot elevated structure connecting the tube with the elevated lines of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Corporation at East New York. This apparently removes the last official obstacle to the completion of a long delayed part of the city's rapid transit system.

At the same time the Board of Transportation opened bids for the construction of that part of the new subway extending along McKibben Street and Harrison Place from Bogrum Street to Varick Avenue, Brooklyn, a distance of 3,600 feet. Of the six bids, the lowest was that of the Marcus Contracting Company for $2,561,000. The other bids were as follows: Underpinning Foundation Company, $2,700,000; Rodgers & Hagerty, $3,000,000; Oakdale Contracting Company, $3,296,000; Frederick L. Cranford, $3,523,000; Patrick McGovern Company, $3,774,000.

The section of the subway on which the contractors bid today is one of three subdivisions of that section of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern line. The construction of the other two sections will be bid for on next Friday.

Almost up to the moment of the vote in the Board of Estimate the final section of the line remained a bone of contention between the Board of Transportation and a group of property owners in the Bushwick section of Brooklyn. Jacob E. Bausch, as the spokesman for a delegation of about 200 objectors, threatened injunction proceedings, but he was told that the city would meet such obstruction, if necessary, by exercising its right of eminent domain. John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, sponsored the plan presented. Mr. Bausch had questioned the strength of the B. M. T.'s contract with the city, which calls for a physical connection between the Fourteenth Street subway line and the elevated network at East New York, and Commissioner Delaney said:

"That contract is in full effect as far as the Fourteenth Street line is concerned. I don't want the representatives of the press, however, to confuse it with the case of the Nassau Street line in Manhattan." He added that the Corporation Counsel had been asked some time ago to scrutinize the contract carefully. His opinion, said Mr. Delaney, confirmed the belief that the city had no loophole. The subway had to be linked by some physical connection with the East New York network.

After hearing argument, Mayor Hylan moved the adoption of the Board of Transportation plan. Controller Charles L. Craig said he was voting for it because he was "taking Mr. Delaney's word for it that this is the only way it can be done."

Aldermanic President Hulbert, in explaining his vote, said he thought the Transportation Board "had accomplished in three months what the Transit Commission failed to do in three years."

REFUSES TO REGISTER A VOTER IN HOSPITAL

Case of Mayor Hylan Not Accepted as a Precedent by Justice Hagarty.

An order issued by Supreme Court Justice May in behalf of Mayor Hylan when he was ill last year directing a Board of Registry to visit the home of the Mayor on Bushwick Avenue and register him for the election, was not accepted as a legal precedent yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Hagarty in Brooklyn, who denied the application of Abraham Hershkowitz for a similar order.

Hershkowitz of 1,079 Coney Island Avenue is in the Brooklyn Hospital, recovering from an operation. He said it was impossible for him to get out of his sick bed to register, but that he would be out in time to vote. His attorney, G. D. Prince, asked the Court to order the inspectors of election to go to the hospital and register him.

An affidavit was submitted by Gaston Kosh, a candidate for Assembly, and friend of Hershkowitz, saying he had made such request to the registry officials, who had refused to comply. A member of the Corporation Counsel's staff opposed granting the Court order. Justice Hagarty, in denying the application, made no comment upon the order in the Mayor's favor, but said the law applied to all persons.

The reason for denying the application, Justice Hagarty stated in a memorandum, was that the election law contains no provision for compelling a Board of Registry to go outside of the place designated by law and register any one anywhere else. To compel the Board of Registry to do so would entail a great deal of additional work on the officials; to go into houses, hospitals and other places.

It was said that the difference in the case of Mayor Hylan and the present application was that no opposition had been made to the order in the case of the Mayor, and therefore the legal issue was not raised, as was done in this case by the Corporation Counsel.

Bronx Parkway Pay Rise Upheld.

The right of the Bronx Parkway Commission to increase the salaries of its employes within the appropriation limits fixed by the Board of Estimate was upheld yesterday by the Appellate Division. The decision affirmed a ruling by Supreme Court Justice Tierney directing the Controller to pay the same certified to him by the Commission.

HYLAN FOR PAY RISE TO COST $1,683,054

Sponsors Resolution for 10% Increase for Every Employe Drawing $2,400 or Less.

PROVIDES FOR IT IN BUDGET

City Has Obtained Leeway Sufficient to Help Lower Salaried Workers, Mayor Says.

ESTIMATE BOARD APPROVES

Many Increases to Be Optional With Department Heads—Craig Discusses General Fund.

To the surprise and delight of many department chiefs who were in attendance at yesterday's session of the Budget Committee of the Board of Estimate, Mayor Hylan sponsored and the board adopted a resolution giving to nearly every department head in the city the privilege of increasing by 10 per cent. the salaries of certain classes of employes who are now drawing from the City Treasury $2,400 or less yearly. Mayor Hylan said he believed that these employes were inadequately paid. This concession in the making up of the 1925 budget, it is estimated, will increase the total by about $1,683,054.

Mayor Hylan's action caused surprise because of his notice served long ago upon all department chiefs and frequently reiterated since the hearings on the tentative budget began that no applications for salary increases would be considered. In explanation the Mayor said when he brought up the matter for consideration yesterday:

"When we promulgated the policy of not granting salary increases we did so not because we believed faithful employes were not entitled to more money but simply as a matter of retrenchment. We wanted to save as much money as we could. The 1925 budget now has reached what is known as the tentative stage, and I have come to the conclusion that by practising economy in the preparation of it we have obtained a certain financial leeway. This will be used to help those who most deserve consideration at our hands—I speak of the lower salaried employes."

Largest Class Benefiting.

The largest class of employes benefiting by the Mayor's course are those in both city and county departments who are receiving between $1,200 and $2,400 a year, "the vast majority of whom are of mature years and married." Included in this group are the following titles:

KOUSSEVITZKY GETS OVATION IN BOSTON

Conductor Is Warmly Received by Audience in His Symphony Hall Debut.

GIVES "POEM OF ECSTASY"

The Music of Vivaldi and Honegger Heard for the First Time in America.

By OLIN DOWNES.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 10.—Serge Koussevitzky made his American debut this afternoon in Symphony Hall as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It is a conservative statement to say that he made an excellent impression upon the audience, which rose to greet him when he appeared on the platform, and remained at the end of the concert to applaud him long after the last score of Scriabin's "Poem of Ecstasy" had sounded.

Mr. Koussevitzky is not the prima donna type of conductor that some have called him, but he is a striking figure on the stage. His authority is so complete that it is sensed before it is demonstrated, and when there is an occasion for a dramatic gesture he can make one. His gestures, however, are not excessive. There were moments when he allowed the orchestra to play itself, giving the players their heads, with no animating effort on his part save the extremely mobile play of feature and communicating eye. At other moments he was the imperious leader, a hand and forefinger outstretched in command, a picture of dynamic, compelling energy. In a word, Mr. Koussevitzky has the qualities and the "magnetism" especially valuable for public success in this country, of the virtuoso conductor. He has these but he has more. It is possible to say, after a single concert, that at the least he is a musician who feels deeply his mission, who interprets with flaming temperament and communicative power.

The program consisted of the Vivaldi concerto for orchestra and organ in D minor, as edited by Alessandro Bustori; Berlioz's "Roman Carnival" overture, the Brahms "Variations" on a theme of Haydn, Honegger's symphonic movement, "Pacific 231," and Scriabin's "Poem of Ecstasy."

New Music Heard.

The music of Vivaldi and Honegger was heard for the first time in America. The concerto and the Brahms-Handel variations were played in a way calculated to dispose at once of the idea originated somewhere in Europe that Mr. Koussevitzky was irreverent and eccentric in his treatment of classic masters. Both compositions were given straightforward, substantial and healthily musical readings—the Vivaldi music lacking in places a measure of the fineness of execution which it is reasonable to expect later and on an occasion perhaps of less hurried preparation, but being played with a breadth and musicality which was neither exaggerated nor academic. There was all the clarity of and proportion in this reading that the conservative would have desired, and a spontaneity and force most desirable and often missing.

As the concert progressed enthusiasm grew. The Berlioz overture, it is true, had a certain stiffness in the introduction and verged perilously on noise at the conclusion, which, nevertheless, evoked a storm of applause. The climax of the concert came with the compositions of Honegger and Scriabin.

Honegger's piece is not only interesting and very well made; it appears as a genuine expression of certain characteristics of this age. "Pacific 231" is a great locomotive. "Pacific 231" is the musical composition concerning which Honegger said, prior to the performance last Spring in Paris: "I have always had a passionate love of locomotives. To me they—and I love them passionately, as others are passionate in their love for horses or women—are living creatures." He has attempted to give a tonal portrayal of the great monster, the steam engine, as it stands motionless, just breathing; as it starts its movement; as it hurtles through the night at 120 miles an hour. The music is superbly made; it is witty and joyous, full of youth, a laughing welcome to the day and its dynamic power.

The cumulative, hastening rhythms, which extend and metamorphose themselves in different parts of the orchestra in turn, generate a song; the music grows in clamorous and triumphant power, swiftness. The conclusion is admirably conceived and might not have been carried out so successfully by a less gifted composer. For the thing comes to a stop logically, effectively, in a few measures. The gigantic tonal evolutions, as one might call them, slow up and with crashing and splendidly discordant harmonic combinations bring the end.

Sweeps His Audience.

A less gifted conductor than Koussevitzky could hardly have failed—provided he could marshal and control its rhythms—in making a success with this piece, and the same thing is true in a degree of Scriabin's "Poem de l'Extase," which followed. But this latter work is evidently peculiarly his and he swept his audience from its feet with it. Moreover, he gave the music a character, proportion and significance which is usually lacks. Any conductor will assent to the final climax, but few conductors will refrain from too quickly anticipating it. Under Koussevitzky the mounting orders and exultations of what is essentially a bacchanale, a Venusberg if there ever was one in tones, are held in superb control. They advance and recede, as waves advance and recede, but always advance further. And when at last the great climax came, it came with a brilliancy, with a drenching richness of color, which had almost the effect of blinding light on the eyes. Every choir of the orchestra contributed its tint to the rainbow, and there stood Mr. Koussevitzky, his features and his nervous hands betraying his own excitement in the music.

There will, of course, be divisions of opinion concerning his readings, but there was no mistaking the excitement of the audience and the enthusiasm of his welcome. It is plain that there is a new and significant figure among conductors in America today, and that he is at the head of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

MME. SYLVIA BACK.

Says She Will Produce a New French Play and Take Leading Role.

Mme. Marguerite Sylvia, operatic and concert soprano, returned from Europe yesterday on the French liner Suffren with her two daughters, Marguerita and Daphne Sylvia Smith.

Mme. Sylvia said that she intended to produce a French play entitled "My Cousin from Varsovie," written by Louis Verneil. She expects to put the play on in New York and to take the leading role in it.

Last Summer Mme. Sylvia sang at the Royal Opera House in Brussels.

COOLIDGE LAUDS COLUMBUS

Calls Discovery the Foremost Achievement of an Individual.

President Calvin Coolidge pronounced the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus the foremost achievement in history that might be credited to a single individual in a letter addressed to Vito Contessa, President, Italian Benevolent Society. The letter, made public last night by Mr. Contessa, bore felicitations from the White House on the society's celebration of Columbus Day, tomorrow, ending in a charitable festival to be held at the Star Casino, 107th Street and Park Avenue, in the evening.

President Coolidge wrote:

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington, Oct. 3, 1924.

My Dear Mr. Contessa: From many parts of the country messages have come lately which make apparent that this year Columbus Day, Oct. 12, is to be observed very widely, and in a spirit which attests a lofty conception of the event to be commemorated. Four hundred and thirty-two years ago the Genoese sailor realized his vision of well-nigh a lifetime when he set foot on the soil of the Western continent. The discovery of America must always rank among the foremost accomplishments of a single man's genius and purpose. Against discouragement, ridicule and ignorance, Columbus clung to his conviction, fought for the opportunity to put it to the test, and staked everything on the results. It is one of the tragedies with which the human story is replete that in his own time he was repaid with little else than disgrace, disappointment and ignominy. He did not live to know that he had added a new world to the heritage of the race. The lands he found were given the name of another. He could not realize, of course, that his achievement had marked the opening of a new era and that historians would presently be dating the modern epoch from the day of his discovery.

Yet, today, Columbus holds place as one of the few greatest among men. Probably of all achievements that may be credited to a single individual, that of Columbus would be popularly accepted as the foremost in history.

With every celebration of this anniversary, we all realize more clearly the significance of the revolution in human relationships which began with the voyages of Columbus and the expansion of civilization to the outlying parts of the world. It was fitting that a son of Italy should have been marked by destiny for this service; that Italy, so long the seat of ancient civilization, should thus pass on the torch to a new era and a new world.

It is the fortune of our country to have attracted thither an impressive number of the sons and daughters of this land where leadership and lofty talent have so long found noble fruition. They have contributed richly of their industry, their love for liberty, their genius for the sciences, the arts and the humanities. They have given much to making our country what it is; and in turn I am sure they have found advantage in the opportunities which this new continent has afforded. It is good to know that Columbus Day will be so generally observed and that its celebration will furnish new testimony to the traditional friendship between our country and the ancient homeland of the Italian people. Very truly yours,

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Mr. Vito Contessa, President, Italian Benevolent Society, 450 East 117th Street, New York, N. Y.

The celebration starts with a parade at noon to the Christopher Columbus Monument in Columbus Circle, where a wreath will be laid at the monument. Justice John J. Freschi of the Court of Special Sessions will speak in English, and F. M. Ferrari, banker, in Italian. Of the reviewing stand, Governor Smith, Mayor Hylan and Police Commissioner Enright have been asked to speak.

3 DIE IN AUTO ACCIDENTS.

Motor Truck Runs Down Man Alighting From Trolley Car.

An unidentified man, about 50 years old, was knocked down by a motor truck and instantly killed while alighting from a surface car at Third Avenue and 121st Street, yesterday. Joseph Serso, chauffeur of the truck, of 167 Sherman Street, Long Island City, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide.

Jennie Baldi, 3 years old, climbed on the running board of an automobile while the driver was talking to her parents in front of their home in Hamonton, N. J., and when the car started she was thrown off and killed.

John Rusnick, 45, a hog raiser of Magnolia, N. J., was killed at a grade crossing near his home when he drove his motor truck in front of an Atlantic City express train of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad.

Mrs. Joseph Greco of Bell Street, Tarrytown, was probably mortally injured, and her sisters, Mrs. Joseph Peduzzi and Mrs. William McGee, also of Tarrytown, were severely bruised when a runaway auto ran them down on the sidewalk at Broadway and Main Street, near their homes. The three women were taken to the Tarrytown Hospital.

Dr. George Mord, Deputy Medical Examiner in Staten Island, was cut and bruised when an automobile rammed the car he was driving at Hope and Tompkins Avenues, Fort Wadsworth, S. I.

Thomas Cooney of 897 Dean Street suffered a fractured skull yesterday morning when the taxicab in which he was riding upset at Atlantic and Vanderbilt Avenues, Brooklyn. He was removed to the Kings County Hospital.

HUGO KORTSCHAK HEARD.

Shares Applause in Smith's Sonata With Composer in Balcony.

Besides a valuable and serviceable technic, Hugo Kortschak, who appeared in a violin recital last evening at Aeolian Hall, had the indispensable quality of temperament that made his program interesting. He opened with David Stanley Smith's sonata in A minor, published by the Society for the Publication of American Music, dedicated to Mrs. F. S. Coolidge and heard for the first time in public here. In four movements, the sonata was more than reminiscent of Debussy, with a strong modern tendency and moments of individualism. It was well played by Mr. Kortschak and Francis Moore at the piano, and well received by the audience, which extended its applause to the composer, present in the balcony.

The violinist further affirmed his qualifications in Bach's sonata in G minor, which elicited bursts of approval, and closed the program with Heinrich Noren's suite in E minor, a melodious and frankly emotional composition, which Mr. Kortschak gave with a great deal of charm. Miss Vera Giles accompanied on the piano.

Luncheon for Mrs. MacFarlane.

A luncheon in honor of Mrs. Alice Campbell MacFarlane of San Francisco and Honolulu, Hawaii, was held yesterday at the Hotel Astoria. Mrs. MacFarlane was the chief donor for the establishing of the Master School of Musical Arts in California. The school purposes to solve on a large scale one of the most perplexing problems confronting a great number of deserving American music students, it was explained at the luncheon. The foundation was established by Mrs. MacFarlane as a memorial to her parents, James and Abigail Campbell.

Chaliapin Sails Today.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Feodor Chaliapin, Russian singer, is sailing tomorrow on the Mauretania for New York to fulfill engagements in the United States. He says that his voice is much improved by a minor operation on his throat two weeks ago.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Saint" will open at the Greenwich Village Theatre tonight.

A play by Cosmo Hamilton has been placed in rehearsal by the Shuberts, with Francine Larrimore as its star. Clifton Webb is also in the cast.

The new Ziegfeld special production in which Billie Burke will be starred will be known as "Annie Dear." Marc Klaw is "Annie."

COLUMBIA DEBATES CAMBRIDGE TO A TIE

American Students Uphold Democracy, While English Attack It.

CITE CHANGES IN EUROPE

Britons See Return to Autocracy in Some Countries—Home Team Finds Popular Rule Gaining.

Debaters from Cambridge University, England, and Columbia University met last night in the McMillan Academic Theatre at Columbia University. The subject was: Resolved, That modern Democracy is not consistent with personal liberty. Cambridge upheld the affirmative and Columbia the negative. The debate was a draw.

A. P. Marshall was the first of the English speakers. He argued that modern democracy was not progressing along the right lines and pointed out that Spain and Italy already had repudiated democracies and substituted autocracies. True democracy, he said, suggests three things: security, self-mastery and self-government, and modern democracy offers none of these fully.

Gerald Sparrow, another Cambridge man, said that in the modern democracy people vote but do not govern. "Every four or five years," he said, "there is an eruption of the political volcano and a plethora of confused issues are thrown up. Then the people plump an X opposite the name of the candidate whom they consider to be least repulsive."

Richard Austen Butler, the last Cambridge speaker, denounced the machinations of party politics and said that trade unionism had given equality and fraternity but had rendered liberty practically extinct. "We have been given habeas corpus," he said "but not habeas animam."

For Columbia, Frederick Van Pelt Bryan argued that there was no such thing as absolute liberty. He asserted that democracy was a very faulty instrument, but that it was progressing and had within itself the wherewithal to perfect itself.

Kenneth H. Abernathy of Columbia argued that the fault in democratic government lay not within the form of government itself but with the people who go to make up the government.

Allen F. Maybee, the final Columbia speaker, stressed the need of flexibility in government. He maintained that democracy itself was fundamentally right, but that good democratic government must be plastic to meet and overcome obstacles that are bound to arise.

Austrian Composer Here.

Leo Fall, the Austrian composer, arrived yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Columbus from Vienna on his first visit to the United States. He said that he had come to witness the production of his comic opera "Madame Pompadour," which has been running for two years in Vienna and has also been successfully produced in Berlin and London. "Madame Pompadour" will be put on at the Beck Theatre next week.

DENIES DESERTING CZAR.

British Ex-Ambassador Says We First Recognized Revolution.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—"It was the American Ambassador, not I, who first recognized the Russian revolution," writes Sir George W. Buchanan, British Ambassador in Petrograd during the war, in a letter to The London Times.

Sir George's letter is in denial of statements made in the German press, which appeared in the context of what were intended to be obituary references.

"With a sigh of relief at my departure from this wicked world," says Sir George, "the Deutsche Zeitung exclaims, 'Another of them gone, over whose grave Germany will shed no tears.'"

Like Mark Twain, Sir George points out that reports of his death have been much exaggerated, and proceeds to answer German allegations "that he had succeeded in keeping the wavering Czar true to the war policy of the Entente," and "that he was the first to recognize the Provisional Government before the Emperor even had abdicated, and by doing so paved the way for the Bolshevist revolution."

Sir George replies:

"In the first place, the Emperor never wavered in his loyalty to his allies, but remained true to them up to the day of his death. In the second, it was the American Ambassador and not I who first recognized the revolution. I only did so nine days after the Emperor's abdication and after his Majesty had himself, in his last proclamation to his army, commanded it to render obedience to the orders of the Provisional Government."

OBREGON HALTS CATHOLICS.

Orders Enforcement of Laws Against Outdoor Religious Ceremonies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 10.—President Obregon has ordered the Attorney General to make an investigation of the Eucharistic Congress now in session here on charges that it has violated the Constitution, which prohibits religious manifestations in the streets.

Members of Congress also face charges of displaying images in windows and doors and having public altars in the streets, which are in violation of the Constitution of 1917.

The Attorney General said he would make a special investigation of foreigners who might have violated the law. These foreign prelates are attending the congress, the Bishop of Camaguey, Cuba, and Mgr. Brossart, Bishop of Texas.

President Obregon expelled Mgr. Ernesto Filippi, the Apostolic delegate in Mexico, in January, 1923, on the charge that the prelate had participated in an outdoor religious ceremony in that he had assisted in the laying of a cornerstone of a religious monument at Guanajuato. This was interpreted as a violation of the Constitution clause forbidding the holding of open-air religious services or processions.

Soldiers Applaud a New "Tosca."

Gladys Axman, for some years one of the young American sopranos at the Metropolitan, realized an ambition to appear as the prima donna of Puccini's "Tosca" as an incident of that opera's repetition by the San Carlo company at Jolson's last night. Tall and dark, tiger-like in intensity, she gave a well considered interpretation, vocally adequate and approaching the melodramatic quality of Sardou's play. At the second act a quick curtaine the stage was filled with flowers. Messrs. Salazar, Valle and Conductor Guerrieri shared the recalls. Two hundred seats in a crowded house were occupied by uniformed men of the 212th Field Artillery, many of Italian birth, who marched from their Columbus Avenue armory to a theatre decorated in their honor with American and Italian flags.

AUTO OUTPUT IN 1923 WAS $3,163,327,874

Increase of 89.3 Per Cent. Over 1921 Is Announced by the Census Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Production of motor vehicles in the United States rose last year after a slump in 1921 and reached a new peak. The industry's output in 1923 was valued at $3,163,327,874 in the biennial census of manufacturers, announced today by the Census Bureau. This was an increase of 89.3 per cent. over 1921.

Manufacture of almost three times the number of closed passenger automobiles as were made in 1921, a 22.4 per cent. decline in the number of electric vehicles produced and an increase of almost six times in the output of public conveyances, such as motor buses and sightseeing wagons and cabs, featured the year's developments.

The number of establishments with products exceeding $5,000 for the year was 351, compared with 363 in 1921. Michigan, with 54 establishments, led the country, while Ohio had 46, Illinois 32, Indiana and New York 30 each, California 28, Pennsylvania 26, Wisconsin 20, and Massachusetts 14. Wage earners employed averaged 241,356, an increase of 68 per cent. over 1921, and wages paid totaled $406,730,278, an increase of 83.2 per cent.

The number of gasoline and steam motor vehicles produced was 2,888,898, as compared with 1,590,449 in 1921. Passenger vehicles numbered 2,472,420, valued at $2,277,880,046, and commercial vehicles numbered 402,408, valued at $285,889,451.

Open touring cars led in the passenger vehicles produced with a total of 1,782,992, while closed passenger cars numbered 1,601,316. Roadsters and runabouts numbered 878,208, sport speedsters 58,944 and other varieties 2,700, while public conveyances numbered 12,873. Of the business vehicles, delivery wagons numbered 27,890 and trucks 252,394, of which the largest number were from one to two and a half tons capacity.

Automobiles valued up to $500 formed more than half the output of passenger vehicles, the number being 1,727,868. From $500 to $800 the number was 614,090; from $801 to $1,500 there were 664,189; from $1,501 to $2,500 the output was 170,948, and from $2,501 to $3,500 it was 30,908, the latter class being the only one to show a decline in number which was 7.5 per cent. From $3,501 up the number was 11,337.

Goldwyn Threatened With Suit.

Because Samuel Goldwyn intends to release the film version of "Tarnish" for presentation at the Mark Strand next week three days before the stipulated date in the agreement with John Cromwell, Inc., from whom he purchased the film rights, he was threatened yesterday with an application for an injunction to restrain him from exhibiting the picture. It is said that when Mr. Goldwyn purchased the screen rights to Gilbert Emery's play he agreed not to put on the film in New York before Oct. 12. Mr. Goldwyn contends that the agreement under which he bought the motion picture rights speaks for itself.

SCREEN NOTES.

Jacqueline Logan, a motion picture actress, was the hostess at a luncheon held in a Twentieth Century dining car, in the Grand Central Station an hour before she left for Hollywood yesterday.

Frances Howard, 19 years old, now playing in the stage play "The Best People," has been engaged for the title role of the film version of "The Swan," which is to be directed by Dimitri Buchowetski.

R. B. F. Randolph, formerly manager of the Guaranty Trust Company in London, was the guest on Thursday at a dinner given in his honor by First National Pictures, Inc.

BERENGARIA HERE; RAN THROUGH GALE

Army Tugboat Clears Channel of Craft and Aids in Docking the Big Liner.

Captain W. R. D. Irvine, R. D., R. N. R., master of the Cunarder Berengaria, which arrived yesterday from Southampton and Cherbourg, said that the United States Army Engineers' tugboat gave good service yesterday in the narrow channel over the Jersey Vehicular Tunnel, by going ahead of the liner and clearing all the small craft out of the fairway. This, he said, made it much easier to navigate the Berengaria through the channel.

The liner encountered a gale from the northwest on Thursday, getting down toward Nantucket Lightship. There were hail, snow, rain and lightning and a rough sea.

Among the many passengers was J. Havelock Wilson, President of the International Seafarers' Federation, which has a membership of 200,000 sailors and firemen in all maritime nations except Germany. He was accompanied by his wife and their daughter and seven delegates from the federation. He denied that his visit to the United States had anything to do with immigration laws affecting the entry of foreign seamen.

"The real object of my visit to Washington," said Mr. Wilson, "is to see that the members of the organization I represent will not be placed at a disadvantage. I wish to have some talks with American shippers and explain to them how our conciliation board works so successfully on the other side."

After conferences in New York Mr. Wilson and his party will go to Washington, where they will meet Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, and then go to El Paso for the annual meeting of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Wilson is 60 years old.

While serving as an A. B. on a windjammer in New York Harbor he got an extra job to rig the scaffolding for the first Brooklyn Bridge. After making several voyages in steamships he retired to become a labor leader in England, and was Member of Parliament for Hull for twenty years.

Another passenger was Dudley Field Malone, who came down the gangplank leading a big yellow dog on a leash. When asked about the political situation in England and the recent defeat of the Government, Mr. Malone said: "It was not a defeat at all. The British Labor Party has only been in power because the Liberal and Conservative Parties would not get together on a common issue. Every one knows the Labor Party is a minority rule. The big thing growing out of MacDonald's Ministry is that Europe is talking today in terms of political economy and not in politics. He has placed the English Labor Party on the map and it is going to stay. On the next ballot the Labor votes will gain seats at the coming general election instead of losing them in Parliament."

Captain R. Langton Douglas, also a passenger, brought a sample of oil paintings said to be worth thousands of dollars for exhibition in New York.

$200,000,000 PLAN BY ELECTRIC LINES

Program for Improving Local Transit Calls for a Big Outlay Next Year.

$3,000,000 IN ADVERTISING

Co-ordination of Bus and Traction Service—Abolition of Free Fares Recommended.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 10.—A national program for improving local transportation was recommended to the Convention of the American Electric Railway Association by a committee at its closing session today.

It was estimated that $200,000,000 will be spent for improvements on traction lines in the next twelve months. According to a survey, the industry will expend $3,000,000 for advertising next year. It was recommended that companies use 1 per cent. of gross receipts for local advertising. Some are spending 2 per cent.

Recommendations to the entire industry by this special committee were:

Co-ordination of bus and traction service under traction management in territory now principally served by electric railways; financing of improvements by customer and employe ownership in so far as possible; revision of traction taxation relieving companies of such special burdens as paving, sprinkling and street-cleaning charges; abolition of free fares, including city employes; equalization of traction and bus taxes, and local advertising.

Police, firemen and others who now enjoy free rides on street cars in many cities may find themselves paying fare if the traction interests succeed in shaking off some burdens enumerated by the Taxation Committee. This body pointed out today that it costs the profit on four average rides to carry one person free and recommended that free rides be abolished.

The Northern Texas Traction Company of Fort Worth, Texas, received the Charles A. Coffin prize for being the best conducted railway in the United States during 1924. The report stressed that the incorporation of the Southwestern salutation of "Howdy" into the company's advertising was a large factor in the decision.

The Texas line recently adopted the slogan, "Howdy, glad to see you," which was emblazoned from its cars, utilized in newspaper advertising and otherwise spread as widely through the territory as possible. It was declared that the whole organization set out to live up to its cordial expression and rendered the best possible service. Its cars are painted white and the conductors and motormen clothed in white yachting suits. The company's receipts are said to have doubled within a year as the result of the attentive policy. The prize consists of a gold medal for the company and $1,000 in cash to the employes.

Atlantic City is a leading contender for the annual convention next year, and the midwinter meeting may go to California. The railway congress, which closed tonight, was the largest in the history of the association, with an attendance of more than 5,500 from every State in the Union.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Increases in Some Foodstuffs Were One of the Features.

Although the excess of advances over declines in Dun's wholesale commodities price list this week was not so marked as that of last week, it was still great enough to show slightly more than two "ups" to every "down." Fifty-one of this week's 70 changes were upward, compared with 55 advances in 72 fluctuations last week. The foodstuffs division of the list showed nearly four advances for every decline. Domestic wools also continued to gain.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. With them are given the comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

Of the twenty-three changes in the foodstuffs this week eighteen were advances. Revisions in this part of the general list were again featured by sharp advances in flour. Spring patent flour and the family grade of fancy Minnesota flour were each 50 cents a barrel higher, showing a rise of 85 cents in the last two weeks. Winter soft straight moved up 25 cents a barrel and is now 50 cents a barrel higher than it was two weeks ago. Middle Western lard and bacon were also higher here, but hams declined. At Chicago mess pork, live hogs and short ribs were higher, with live sheep and live steers unchanged. Declines were lacking.

All of the changes in the local dairy list, which was more unsettled than for some time, were small. The least lifted butter was fractionally higher and there were declines in cheese ranging from a cent to 1½ cents a pound. Both nearby fancy and fresh-gathered eggs were a cent higher a dozen.

The only revisions shown in the fresh or dried fruits in the list was a drop of 25 cents a barrel in common apples. In the vegetables Scotch peas were lower. For the first time in a long while there were no changes in beans. Cabbage and onions went up 25 cents a barrel and bag, respectively, but potatoes dropped 15 cents. No changes were noted in teas this week, but both of the basic grades of Brazilian coffee were higher. Raws in spices showed advances in black and red peppers. The best listed grade of raw sugar was higher, but there was no corresponding rise in fine granulated.

The changes in the grain list this week were divided between advances in wheat, corn and malting barley and declines in rye and straw. For the first time in many months there were no changes listed in the spices, shoes and leathers; but tallow continued to advance.

A drop in clear red cedar shingles was the only revision in the building materials. The lumber list showed a rise in long leaf yellow pine timbers and declines in ash and North Carolina air-dried roofers. Revisions in the metals also were few in number, with a decline shown in tin and advances in zinc and lead.

A drop of $1 a flask in quicksilver was about the only feature of the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils, which showed eight advances and five declines. The only change in the naval stores was a rise in rosin.

This week eleven grades of domestic wool went up, and there were further advances in finished cloths on the basis of the higher cost of the raw material. The paper list showed four declines and no advances, the changes taking place in chip and straw boards and domestic sulphite and No. 1 old paper mixture pulps.

Both Brazilian and plantation crude rubber lost ground during the week. Japanese raw silk was weaker. Hemp and hops were higher.

One week in the textiles brought higher prices to burlaps, but some of the unfinished cottons eased off. New prices were named on a leading line of Eastern ginghams and kindred fabrics.

BARNSDALL STATEMENT.

Sold Its Russian Interests Two Years Ago, President Says.

Because of an erroneous impression given by published reports in the financial district yesterday that the Barnsdall Corporation suffered a loss in quitting Russia, Robert Law Jr., President of the company, issued the following statement:

"The Barnsdall Corporation has had no substantial interest in the International Barnsdall Corporation for two years. The Barnsdall Corporation sold its interest in International Barnsdall, which was formed for the purpose of doing business in Russia, over two years ago, to a private syndicate which took over the Barnsdall Corporation interest and assumed all obligations of the financing without charge to the Barnsdall Corporation. Therefore the Barnsdall Corporation suffers no loss whatever by reason of the shutting down of the operations in Baku district."

Croker's Widow Loses in Court.

The Appellate Division affirmed yesterday a decision of the lower court denying an application by Mrs. Bula E. Croker, widow of the former Tammany leader, for permission to file a new answer in the suit for an accounting brought against her husband's estate by his son Richard. Ashbel P. Fitch, as referee in the case, found that the estate must pay $156,336 less a credit of $44,500.

Amoskeag Fabrics Are Priced.

A list showing the following prices on products of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company for Spring, 1925, was sent to the trade late yesterday afternoon by Jarvis, Loomis & Dunbar, selling agents: Twenty-seven-inch staple gingham, 12½ cents, net; 32-inch "10,000 Range," 15½ cents, net; 32-inch "Utility" dress gingham, 12½ cents, with discount; 32-inch "A. F. C." gingham, 21 cents, with discount; 32-inch sport stripes (guaranteed fast colors), 21 cents, net, and 36-inch bookfold crash suiting (50 per cent. linen and in plain shades only), 22½ cents, net. The delivery covered by these prices runs from November to April, and the prices are guaranteed to date of invoicing. The first four fabrics mentioned, which have occupied a prominent position in the market for many years, are priced on the same basis as they were late last February for the present Fall season.

Burlap Shipments Were Light.

Shipments of burlaps from Calcutta to North American ports during September were very light, according to a cable received yesterday by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc. They totaled only 59,000,000 yards, against 72,000,000 yards in August and 81,362,000 yards in September, 1923. Total shipments to this country in the period ranging from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, inclusive, were 707,274,000 yards, against 719,245,000 yards in the same period last year. Average monthly shipments during the period have been 78,586,000 yards this year, compared with 79,917,000 yards a year ago. The effect of the small shipments last month has been materially to strengthen the price position in this market of afloat goods, as well as those for shipment from Calcutta in near-by months.

Prints Lead in Silk Lines.

Prints are strongly featured in the Spring silk lines which H. R. Mallinson & Co., Inc., opened yesterday. The view was expressed by officials of the firm that the Spring will be a greater sports print season than ever before in the history of the industry. Prices for the line average materially lower than the Fall levels, reflecting the lessened cost of raw silk. The prints are shown in the firm's "pussy willows," crêpes and inextensible chiffon voiles. A large variety of color combinations are available, with pastel backgrounds replacing the dark ones recently used. A further development is the offering of printed pussy willows in greatly enlarged color variety in sheers, from light and to washing. Special emphasis is placed on brocaded and velvet fancies for the highly favored ensemble costume. Satin crêpes and flat crêpes lead in the more staple cloths, with sheer Summer goods featured more than formerly.

Tan Calfskins Are Favored.

Tan calfskin shoes have come notably to the fore in women's footwear recently. Both manufacturers and retailers report a stronger interest in them, although the demand for them was slow at the start of the Fall season. Patent leathers continue to rule as leaders from a volume standpoint, with the call for satins also said to be strong. The blond shades in the satins are growing in vogue. Black gun metal shoes are also selling well. In the models, gored effects and straps, together with sailor ties, dominate. In the very high-grade shoes open pumps command favor.

Outlook for a White Season.

Along with the rampant color development in silks and woolens for Spring there has been some talk of the likelihood of a white season. In some quarters it is believed that the fashion cycle is due to swing to white. With color so strongly dominant, the question arises as how white can best fit into the general color development, with the opinion expressed that it would come in for use as contrast and relief for the favored pastel shades. The suggestion has also been made that it would be a highly desirable thing for united action to be taken to have a white season start uniformly.

Gray Goods Volume Limited.

Although more business was done in the local gray goods market yesterday than on Thursday, the volume of goods that actually changed hands was not large. First hands sold near-by deliveries of 39-inch 68-72 and 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths at 9¼ and 9⅛ cents, respectively, with good-sized bids for both constructions in the market at an eighth less. Spot business was reported in 39-inch 80-squares and 39-inch 72-76s at 12¾ and 11½ cents, respectively, with some good trading in 38½-inch 60-48s at 7¼ cents. In the sheetings business was done on the basis of 8⅝ cents for 36-inch 5-yard cloths and 7½ cents for 8.50s in the same width. Some trading also took place in sateens on the basis of 13½ cents for 37½-inch 4.35-yard goods.

Stove Coal in Demand.

In the anthracite market the demand runs largely to the stove and nut sizes, Seward's Journal will say today. Buyers accept a proportion of egg coal because the producers insist on it, rather than from any desire to add to their stocks of that size. This is also true of pea coal, which the public is not buying in sufficient quantities to enable retailers to work off supplies accumulated during the Summer. The two smaller steam sizes are inclined to be firmer, while No. 4 buckwheat is barely holding its own. Aside from the slow growth in volume of business the bituminous trade presents little in the way of new developments.

Payments Were Quite Good.

"More than fair" was the way the financial executive of one of the most prominent jobbing houses in the country yesterday described the payments that had been made for goods purchased for Fall use by retail buyers. Yesterday was the due date for many of the bills rendered throughout the country for such goods, most of the jobbers now selling on terms of 2/10, Oct. 1 dating. Two things were brought out by this executive in his comment on collections. One was that he has seen less anticipation this Fall than last, and the other was that there is less discounting than was formerly the case. Collections now are not at quite as high tempo as last April, but the executive in question saw plenty of cause for optimism in the way the checks were coming in yesterday. The exact state of payments for Fall goods will not be known by the house for about ten days.

Select Six Spring Shoe Shades.

Selection of six shades for the shoe and leather trades for Spring was made yesterday at a meeting of a joint committee representing shoe and leather and hosiery factors held at the offices of the Textile Color Card Association. In the colors are two grays, one sand and three tans. In connection with the choice of these colors Mrs. Margaret Hayden Rorke, director of the color organization, emphasized the fact that they are solely for the shoe and leather trades. There has been some misunderstanding that it colors to be selected would be for the hosiery as well as the shoe trade. She pointed out that the hosiery manufacturers will be guided entirely in the selection of their colors later on by the choice they cooperated in making yesterday, but the hosiery shades, of course, will not be limited to six colors. The National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association and the National Shoe Retailers' Association will be meetings to be held soon, further announce and give their official support to the six colors chosen.

Jewel Effects in Trimmings.

A novel departure in dress and coat trimmings for Spring will be ornaments in imitation of semi-precious stones and minerals. A large variety of these trimmings, it was said yesterday, is being made up by manufacturers of these goods. Their action is largely in response to the sponsorship of jewel colors for Spring by a leading manufacturer of women's wear fabrics. The trimmings will be of glass and will harmonize with the jewel tones developed in the cloths.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Irregular Decline in Stocks, Firmness in Bonds—Sterling and Francs Advance.

While the decline on yesterday's stock market attracted some attention, the really interesting incidents of the day were the strength in sterling exchange and the verdict of the grain markets on Thursday's crop report. A pretty widely distributed downward movement on the Stock Exchange carried the average to the lowest of the month, ending the day not far above the lowest. There was no convincing explanation of this weakness; it may have been resumption of last week's professional effort to promote an "election scare," or it may have represented the closing-out of speculative accounts for the rise, in an unsympathetic market with a double holiday ahead. The ascribing of the day's weakness to the increase of only 184,208 tons in the Steel Corporation's unfilled orders during September was a search for reasons after the thing had happened. This relative slowness of expansion in bookings in the steel trade was wholly in line with expectations and with the known movement of the month.

At $4.43¾, the highest of the day, sterling had reached the best rate since August. This rise of 3¼ cents from last week's closing may be connected with shifting of capital in connection with the impending German loan; but even London shows bewilderment over just that reception of the announcement of the general election which the "City" had apparently been dreading. It may conceivably reflect inside knowledge as to the political alignment; but that is mere conjecture.

Having its first chance yesterday to adjust its values to the altered forecasts in Thursday's Government report, the grain market passed a day of falling prices. It was evidently most impressed, first by the marking-up of the estimates on wheat and rye and oats, second by the fact that reduction of the indicated corn yield was not as disastrous as the speculators had imagined. Wheat declined 4¾ cents on the 19,000,000-bushel increase over the September estimate, oats and rye fell 1¾ and 2¾ cents respectively on the similar raising of the Government's forecast for their yield. Corn went 2¾ cents lower, to a price 8¼ cents under the season's high figure of last August, before either the September or October estimates had been compiled. The market's trend fully justified the opinion of those who considered last week's speculative advance unwarrantably rapid.

But the decline in no respect indicated disappointment over the latest developments affecting the harvests. On the contrary, the feeling in the more cool-headed portion of the grain trade was that this reaction of 4 or 5 cents from the top prices of the recent excited speculation was a safeguard against reduction or diversion of export orders. In that direction, one very striking report was published yesterday. Bradstreet's telegraphed compilation of the present week's shipment of wheat and flour from the United States and Canada showed all records in the grain export trade to have been broken. The total outgo of 15,902,000 bushels overtopped the previous maximum of 15,282,000 in the last week of August, 1921, when the sudden fall in wheat prices from $1.33 to $1.13 had attracted foreign buyers.

If the week-end mercantile reports were final evidence of the business situation, it might be hard to keep up courage. "Irregularities and contrasts in business," "disinclination to make forward commitments," industrial activity "in most cases running behind last year," are the familiar enough story. But along with these wholly negative reports came a report, for the last week in September, of the third largest weekly loadings of railway cars in the country's history; only 10,000 cars, or 1 per cent., below the highest record. Loadings of grain exceeded all weekly precedent, but so also did cars loaded with general merchandise and miscellaneous freight, the traditional measure of retail trade activity.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, OCT. 10, 1924.

Stock Exchange call money continued plentifully offered at 2½ per cent., while in the outside trading, loans were arranged at 2¼ on Governments and acceptances. Fixed period market was a trifle easier for the longer dates, four to six months' accommodation being reported at 3¼ per cent., a fractional shading in case of six months. Dealers reported that money for the distant dates is steadily coming into the market, and extremely light demand for it brought lowering in bankers' rate. Both commercial paper and acceptances were only moderately active at prevailing discounts.

JOINED TO PROMOTE SUPERPOWER PLAN

Interests Behind Movement to Buy Into Largest Public Utilities Are Revealed.

HEADS OF BIG COMPANIES

Active in American Corporation Recently Organized—Subsidiary of General Electric Takes Part.

A plan to bring about a huge superpower combination through the purchase of stock interests in a number of the largest and most prosperous public utility properties in the country, received substantiation yesterday when the interests identified with the recently organized American Superpower Corporation became known.

Among those interested in the American Superpower Corporation as directors, officers or bankers, are Randal Morgan of the United Gas Improvement Company, Thomas N. McCarter, President of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey; Sidney Z. Mitchell, President of the Electric Bond and Share Company, the common stock of which is owned by the General Electric Company; Landon K. Thorne, President of Bonbright & Co., public utility bankers; Alfred L. Loomis of Bonbright & Co.; B. C. Cobb of Hodenpyl, Hardy & Co., public utility managers; Frank T. Hulswit, President of the United Light and Power Company, which recently welded five mid-West public utility properties, including the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation and the United Light and Power Company; Owen D. Young, Chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, and Spencer Murray, a Government expert on supe power.

Since the incorporation of the American Superpower Corporation last November its activities have been conducted with the utmost secrecy so far as the general public is concerned. According to the corporation's own statement to its stockholders, it was organized "to acquire interests in various power and light companies in the continental United States and to cooperate with the management of such companies in furthering the best interests of the electrical industry."

Holdings in Large Companies.

The company has acquired interests in various light and power properties, its larger holdings being in the stocks of the following companies: Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, Brooklyn Edison Company, Commonwealth Power Corporation, with which Hodenpyl, Hardy & Co. are identified as managers; the United Light and Power Company, the Tennessee Electric Power Company, another Hodenpyl, Hardy & Co. property; the Appalachian Power Company, in which Sidney Z. Mitchell of the Electric Bond and Share Company is one of the largest stockholders, and the Republic Railway and Light Company. In addition, the corporation has recently acquired a stock interest in the American Waterworks and Electric Company. Other companies, as yet not named, have likewise figured in the activities of the American Superpower Corporation, it was learned yesterday.

The properties mentioned, with their affiliated companies, serve communities in virtually every part of the country, and while those interested in the American Superpower Corporation have declined to discuss its purposes or plans, it is believed that the objective is eventually a power arrangement of the first magnitude, embracing not only a tie-up of the properties mentioned, but additional properties in which the company is entitled under its articles of incorporation to acquire interests.

The secrecy with which the corporation has proceeded thus far is characteristic of much of the buying of public utility shares in the open market this year. Among the companies which have so figured to date is the American Water Works and Electric Company, whose common stock has more than doubled in market value this year. The stock does not pay dividends, but it recently sold as high as $120 a share.

American Water Works Control.

Officers of the American Water Works and Electric Company admitted that they were nonplused by the sudden activity in the stock, and at the time discouraged reports that the Electric Bond and Share Company was instrumental in acquiring the shares, or that other utility banking interests were seeking to obtain control of the property in the open market. This company, with its subsidiaries, has total assets of nearly $250,000,000, but control still rests with the present management and its friends.

According to reports in Wall Street during the last week, an effort is being made to obtain control of the American Light and Traction Company by some of the same interests associated with the American Superpower Corporation who brought about the consolidation of the United Light and Power Company and the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation and three other large companies in the Mid-West. Frank T. Hulswit and Landon K. Thorne are among those at the head of the United Light and Power-Continental Gas and Electric interests. They are also among those identified yesterday with the American Superpower Corporation.

Railroad Plans $50,000,000 Issue.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Pennsylvania Railroad today applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue and sell $50,000,000 of forty-year 5 per cent. matured gold bonds and to pledge as security stock of subsidiary companies. The bonds will be sold through Kuhn, Loeb & Co at 95.5 per cent. of par, the proceeds to be used to make a partial payment on a note for $68,983,000 made to the United States Government.

Illinois Plans a Bond Issue.

The next large piece of State financing now in sight was said yesterday to consist of $100,000,000 of State of Illinois highway bonds. Voters of that State at the Presidential election on Nov. 4 will pass on a proposal to spend that amount on its highways. If ratified, an issue of 4 per cent. thirty-year bonds would be floated, the proceeds of which would be used for the construction of a network of highways embracing 185 routes.

Montreal Water Stock Dividend.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 10.—The Montreal Water and Power Company, which supplies water to part of the City of Montreal and adjacent municipalities, has declared a special dividend of $25 per share on the common stock of the company out of its capital surplus account. The dividend is payable in fully paid up common stock on Nov. 15, to shareholders of record Oct. 31.

WEEK'S NEW BONDS TOTAL $101,697,000

Industrial Issues Aggregate $36,500,000 and $29,000,000 for Foreign Account.

New bond offerings this week totaled $101,697,000 against $174,447,000 the week before. Industrial, public utility and foreign financing in fairly heavy volume accounted for virtually all of the week's total. As in the two preceding weeks, when the totals averaged around $160,000,000, dealers reported ready absorption of new issues.

By groups the offerings of this and last week compared as follows:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Industrial	$36,500,000	$16,900,000
Foreign	29,000,000	74,900,000
Public utility	22,032,000	14,675,000
State and municipal	11,165,000	43,968,000

With the German loan due for a public offering on next Tuesday, it was estimated yesterday that the next week would run ahead of last week's figure of $174,447,000. A number of corporations were reported in the market for new money, but a part of this was held back in order to give clear right of way to the German financing.

Sale of the new issue of Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company bonds, amounting to $12,000,000, was announced yesterday by Blair & Co., Inc., a short time after books were opened.

LISMAN ON REORGANIZATION

Banker Testifies on Missouri-Kansas-Texas Road Inquiry.

F. J. Lisman of F. J. Lisman & Co., bankers, testified as an expert on railroad reorganizations before the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing before Examiner Oberlin yesterday. He told of the reorganizations in which he and his firm had figured, and declared that the reorganization of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas was one of the most difficult within his knowledge.

Further testimony was introduced by Albert Rathbone of the law firm of Larkin, Rathbone & Perry and by Frederick Strauss of J. & W. Seligman & Co. The firm of which Mr. Rathbone is the head, together with Cravath, Henderson & deGersdorff, is asking for $750,000 in counsel fees, while J. & W. Seligman & Co. and Hallgarten & Co., reorganization managers, are asking for $1,614,000.

Mr. Strauss and Mr. Rathbone reviewed the efforts made by the reorganization managers and their counsel to complete the reorganization of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas. Mr. Strauss recited the number of tentative plans drawn up previous to the presentation of the plan of October, 1917. When this plan was about to be carried into effect the war interfered, and the final plan was not published until 1921.

The hearing, which was held yesterday in the board room of the Central Union Trust Company, 80 Broadway, was adjourned until 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning.

TO OFFER $2,000,000 BONDS.

Underwriters to Market N. Y. Central Electric Issue Next Week.

A new issue of $2,000,000 New York Central Electric Corporation 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock will be offered at 97½, to yield 7.18 per cent., some time next week, it was reported yesterday. Bonbright & Co., Inc., and W. C. Langley & Co. will underwrite the issue.

Proceeds will be used for expansion of the corporation's business, which, after the new financing, will consist of furnishing the entire electric light and power service to Auburn, Corning, Hornell, Geneva, Newark, Seneca Falls, Dansville, Perry, Warsaw, Lyons and forty-four other communities; the principal electric power and light service in Penn Yan; the entire gas service in Auburn, Geneva, Newark, Seneca Falls, Dansville, Lyons and five other communities, and a steam heating service in Auburn and Hornell. The corporation is controlled and operated by the same interests that control and operate the Long Island Lighting Company and the Queens Borough Gas and Electric Company.

LESS BRISK IN DRY GOODS.

Neither Current Nor Road Sales Up to Those of Year Ago Week.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was somewhat in excess of last week's volume and was slightly less than that of a year ago for the same week.

"Road sales did not reach either the total reported last week nor that of the corresponding period last year.

"There were more customers in the market than during the same period in 1923.

ALABAMA TRACTION CO. DEAL

To Sell Holdings in Alabama Power to Southeastern Light.

Stockholders of the Alabama Traction, Light & Power Company have voted to sell the common stock and other securities which it owned in the Alabama Power Company to the Southeastern Power and Light Company, the American company recently organized for the purpose of acquiring those holdings, according to an announcement yesterday by Thomas W. Martin, President of the Alabama Power Company.

The common and preferred stock of the Canadian company will be converted into the common and preferred stocks of the American company, and the new company assumes the payment of all of the obligations of the Canadian company. About 90 per cent. of the common stock of the Traction Company is now owned in the United States.

Ford Company for Australia.

The Ford Motor Company of Canada has organized a new subsidiary to operate in Australia. The new company, which is capitalized at $5,000,000, will be known as the Ford Motor Company of Australia. Five assembling and one body plant, estimated to cost $2,500,000, will represent the fixed assets of the new company. Late last year the company organized a new subsidiary in South Africa.

The New York Trust Company has been appointed registrar of Pennok Oil Corporation common stock.

ROCK ISLAND ROAD NOTES 72D YEAR

Hauled Its First String of Cars Out of Chicago on Oct. 10, 1852.

TRAIN TAKEN TO JOLIET

Company's First Equipment Included Only 12 Passenger Cars and 150 Freight Cars.

The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad yesterday celebrated its seventy-second anniversary of service by simply calling to the attention of its employes the fact that it had reached another birthday. On Oct. 10, 1852, the first string of cars was hurled over the Rock Island, as it is popularly called, from Chicago to Joliet. The construction of the line had been started the previous Spring under the direction of Sherfield & Farnam of New Haven, the contractors. They completed the first link on Oct. 8.

At what is now Sixty-first Street, Chicago, the road connected with the Northern Indiana Railroad, now a part of the New York Central, continuing over the jointly-owned right of way to a station at Twelfth and Clark Streets. The joint right of way was extended three-quarters of a mile to the site of the present La Salle Street passenger depot in 1853, and the trains commenced using the new central depot on Dec. 2 of that year.

In those days communication with the South was by the way of the great rivers, especially the Mississippi River. One of the centers of transportation was Peru on the Illinois River. Boats arrived regularly from St. Louis. The Chicago & Rock Island, by extending its line to Peru, brought New York within 85 hours of St. Louis and the completion of the line to Rock Island brought that city within 44 hours of New York.

The first equipment of the road consisted of 8 locomotives, 16-ton weight; 10 locomotives, 18 tons weight; 12 passenger cars, 150 covered freight cars, and 100 platform freight cars.

Today the Rock Island system has total assets of about a half-billion dollars, and has total trackage of 11,002 miles, including 4,709 miles of main line.

Over the modern railroad systems the running time from Chicago to St. Louis is six and one-half hours, and St. Louis is within twenty-four hours of New York City.

TRIPP TO TALK ON POWER.

Westinghouse Chairman Will Address Electrical Engineers.

General Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the Board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, will discuss the question of private versus public ownership of superpower systems and other political factors affecting the power situation in the United States, at the season's first meeting of the New York section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, to be held at 33 West Thirty-ninth Street the evening of Oct. 15.

In addition General Tripp will give his views concerning the "Lloyd George Coal and Power" report, in which a superpower system on the American plan has been suggested for Great Britain as a means of overcoming her present economic difficulties. Francis Hodgkinson, chief engineer of the Westinghouse Company's South Philadelphia works, will be another speaker, and H. H. Barnes Jr., Chairman of the section, will preside.

Court Hears Carfare Appeal.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—The State Superior Court today reserved decision on appeals by the City of Philadelphia, the United Business Men's Association and Dr. Maurice Weisblum, an individual car rider, against an increase in carfare granted the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company by the Public Service Commission. The increase, now in effect "temporarily," supplants the 7-cents-a-ride with an 8-cent fare.

Increase Shown in All Classes of Loans In Weekly Reports of Member Banks, Oct. 1

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Further increases of $186,000,000 in loans and investments, accompanied by increases of $240,000,000 in net demand deposits and of $17,000,000 in accommodations at the Federal Reserve banks, are shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly consolidated statement of condition on Oct. 1 of 745 member banks in leading cities.

All classes of loans increased during the week; loans on corporate securities were higher by $84,000,000; on United States Government securities by $2,000,000, and "all other," largely commercial, loans and discounts by $99,000,000. Investment holdings of United States Government securities increased by $6,000,000 and investment holdings of corporate securities by $75,000,000.

Loans and discounts of the New York City members increased by $75,000,000, of which $57,000,000 was in loans on corporate securities, $1,000,000 in loans on United States Government securities and $17,000,000 in all other loans and discounts. Their investments in corporate securities show a gain of $51,000,000, while their investment in United States Government securities declined by $2,000,000.

Of the total increase of $240,000,000 in net demand deposits, $173,000,000 was reported by banks in the New York district. Smaller increases were reported by banks in all other Federal Reserve districts, except St. Louis and San Francisco. Time deposits increased by $11,000,000.

Reserve balances with Federal Reserve banks were $8,000,000 larger than a week ago, the larger increase of $37,000,000 reported by New York City members being partly offset by decreases reported by other members, principally in the Cleveland and Chicago districts. Cash in vault declined by $10,000,000, of which $4,000,000 was reported by the New York City banks.

Borrowings of all reporting institutions advanced from $73,000,000 to $92,000,000, the New York City members accounting for nearly all of the increase.

A summary of changes in the principal assets and liabilities of reporting members during the week and year ended Oct. 1, 1924, follows:

SCHWAB ON STEEL PRICES.

Regrets Order for Abolishment of Pittsburgh Plus Basis

Charles M. Schwab, Chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, in commenting on the action of the Federal Trade Commission in ordering abolishment of the Pittsburgh plus basis of quoting steel prices said, "I was sorry to see it."

According to dispatches received in Wall Street from Pittsburgh yesterday Mr. Schwab said: "It makes it hard to establish just quotations. I don't think it will have any effect on the Pittsburgh steel industry, good or bad, but it will make difficulties in quotations. I am an optimist. I believe in the prosperity of the iron and steel industry."

Commenting on foreign conditions, Mr. Schwab said: "The principles of the Dawes plan will mark a milestone in the world's history. The loan is a good thing for the whole world. It will stabilize conditions." Mr. Schwab expressed confidence in the sincerity of the German people.

PAY ON BACK DIVIDENDS.

Montgomery Ward Announces Two Amounts on Class A Stock.

Directors of Montgomery Ward & Co., in Chicago, yesterday declared a dividend of $3.50 a share on Class A stock. The dividend, which is payable Nov. 3 to stockholders of record Oct. 25, covers payments due for the last quarter of 1920 and the first quarter of 1921. The issue bears 7 per cent annually.

Following payment of this dividend, there will still be $17.50 a share due for back dividends on this stock. Early this year the company started payment of the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75, the last payment having been made on Oct. 1, 1920.

Kinney Company Sales.

The G. R. Kinney Company, Inc., yesterday issued a corrected statement covering sales for September and the first nine months of this year. September sales aggregated $1,250,215, against $1,255,889 in the same month last year, while nine months' sales aggregated $9,446,023, against $11,108,767 in the same period last year.

Beginning March 25, 1924, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit, and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1924 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

CAR LOADINGS SET FIVE NEW RECORDS

Total for Week of Sept. 27 the Largest of Any Week This Year.

GRAIN MOVEMENT GREATEST

Shipments of Merchandise the Largest and More Miscellaneous Cars Moved Than Ever Before.

Although the total of 1,087,447 car loadings for the week of Sept. 27 exceeded by 10,046 cars to reach the high record for all time, still they were sufficiently large to set five new records, according to the report of the car service division of the American Railway Association published yesterday. The loadings for the week were the highest for any week this year; the greatest weekly loading of grain and grain products was recorded; merchandise movements exceeded all records; more miscellaneous cars were moved than ever before; and the railroads handled more cars on Wednesday, Sept. 24, than on any other single day this year.

The total movement was 10,804 cars more than the previous week but was 20,046 fewer than the corresponding week last year, when the loadings totaled 1,007,493, the largest in history, with this exception and that of the last week in August, 1923, when 1,092,250 cars were loaded, the total movement of freight was the largest in the history of the railroads.

Loadings of grain and grain products for the week totaled 69,289 cars. This was the greatest number ever loaded; was 652 more than were handled in the week of Aug. 30, 1923; was 726 more than the preceding week, and 18,404 more than the same week last year. The record is attributed to the high loadings in the Northwestern part of the United States.

Loadings of merchandise and miscellaneous freight, generally considered indicators of current business conditions, were greater than ever before; merchandise loadings being 256,455 cars, 899 more than the preceding week and 5,238 greater than the corresponding week in 1923, and miscellaneous freight loadings totaled 405,436, an increase of 7,569, compared with the previous week and 11,801 more than in the same week of last year.

Loadings of coal, livestock, ore and coke were all less than for the corresponding weeks of last year. Compared by districts all except the Eastern, Allegheny and Northwestern reported increases over the same week in 1923.

	1924.	1923.	1922.	1921.
Sept. 20	1,076,553	1,090,811	961,138	873,816
Sept. 13	1,061,424	1,090,563	937,221	853,762
Sept. 6	930,978	923,814	832,247	748,118

The record of the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association shows that 4,146,403 cars were loaded in the four weeks of September, compared with 4,147,783 in the same period a year ago. Since the first of the year the railroads have hauled 35,703,014 carloads of revenue freight, compared with 37,808,239 in the corresponding period last year.

BUSINESS IMPROVES BUT PACE SLACKENS

Reviews Show Progress in Week to Be Less Rapid Than in Preceding Periods.

Further business improvement was reported last week by Bradstreet's review, but the pace of progress was less rapid than in preceding weeks. Lulls in purchasing in some lines alternated with expansion in others. The best reports of increased business come from the sections favored by improved wheat prices and from the South, where increased yields offset the lower prices for cotton. Mail order sales continue to expand, and gains in chain store sales also are on the up grade. In jobbing and wholesale lines expansion is restricted.

Bradstreet's says in part:

"Industry goes forward steadily and money generally marks gains over recent months, but in most cases running behind a year ago. Some reactions are noted in lumber, in automobile production and even in some lines of iron and steel from the moderate activity of some weeks ago. Scrap material is generally lower. Collections are not quotably better. Coal buying has fallen off in the Middle West. The passing of 'Pittsburgh plus' has had more far-reaching effects than earlier predicted. Western markets are reported getting the larger part of the orders readjustments of prices giving the latter at least temporary advantages."

Dun's Review says:

"There has been no appreciable lessening of the irregularities and contrasts in business, the lack of uniformity in commercial movements still being a conspicuous phase. The Fall season has not failed to bring increased activity in different quarters, but the situation remains uneven and existing uncertainties cause continued hesitation. Political factors tend to restrict operations, there being a disposition to await the outcome of the elections, and the question of prices also has a restraining effect in some lines. Revival in the cotton goods industry is being impeded by the wide variations in prices for the raw material, due chiefly to revisions of crop estimates, and the recent adoption of a better method of quoting prices has unsettled the steel trade. Despite these and other drawbacks, however, there has been a definite improvement in general conditions, and most of the statistical compilations reflect the turn for the better."

SHEPARD MORGAN RETURNS.

Assistant Federal Reserve Agent Ends a Year's Vacation.

Shepard Morgan, Assistant Federal Reserve Agent for the New York district, returned yesterday to his office after an absence of one year. He was received by a number of Reserve Bank associates and made his first inspection of the new Federal Reserve Bank Building. Mr. Morgan spent his year's leave of absence in Europe, with his headquarters in Grenoble, France. He visited a number of Government banks while abroad, and just before his return to the United States went to Berlin, where he studied the financial condition of that country.

"It is good to be back," he said yesterday, "and only by seeing conditions in Europe can one realize the great advantages we have in the United States."

Mr. Morgan said that the turn in Europe's condition had already arrived. Germany, he believed, would benefit immeasurably from its acceptance of the Dawes plan, and he thought the country would be one of Europe's most prosperous fields in three years.

"All I can say about the German loan," he said, "is that the security is ample."

State Savings Banks Election.

RYE, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Members of the State Savings Banks Association closed their annual meeting here today with the election of Charles J. Ottemeyer, President of the Greater New York Savings Bank of Brooklyn, as President for the next year. William M. Trumble, Secretary of the American Savings Bank, New York, was re-elected Treasurer. Secretary Burgess Gaul Richards of New York was elected counsel to the Association.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Conclusion of German Loan Brings Vigorous Rally—Speculative Covering Factor.

News that terms of the German loan had been arranged and the contract signed by American, British and Continental bankers had an exhilarating effect upon European exchanges yesterday. Strength also came from the fallsite of the British Government upset to create any uneasiness, and between fresh buying, developed through the successful loan negotiations, and covering by those who were disappointed in the stability which followed the fall of the MacDonald Ministry, sharp rallies interspersed the entire list.

Sterling moved up three-quarters of a cent to $4.40½; French francs improved 7½ points to 5.21½ cents; Italian advanced 3½ points to 4.36½ cents, while Holland touched a new high for the year at 39.12 cents, an overnight gain of 10 points. Spanish, Belgian, Swiss and Scandinavians were all higher. Resulting sales at the close canceled part of earlier gains. The only weak spot in the structure was the heaviness in Japanese yen, which sagged three-eighths of a cent to $7.88 cents, a record low. The advance in the Chinese and South Americans came to a halt, slight losses being distributed over those rates.

STEEL CORPORATION REPORTS NEW GAINS

Orders for 3,473,780 Tons on Hand Oct. 1 Compare With 3,289,577 Sept. 1.

BETTER SHOWING EXPECTED

Increase, However, Fails to Stimulate Demand for Stocks, Common Shares Selling Off.

The United States Steel Corporation yesterday reported an increase of 184,203 tons in the volume of forward business carried on the books Oct. 1, making the total of such orders 3,473,780 tons, the largest since last May. The total compares with forward business of 3,289,577 tons reported Sept. 1, 4,012,901 tons on March 1 and 5,025,750 tons on Oct. 1, 1923.

The gain of 184,203 tons for October was less than had been expected in the financial district, which expected a gain of between 200,000 and 225,000 tons, but these estimates were scaled down to between 175,000 and 200,000 tons on Thursday. Considering general conditions in the steel industry and the fact that much business is being held up until after the election, the gain was viewed as favorable, despite the fact that it failed to stimulate the demand for stocks. Steel common sold off after publication of the statement and the rest of the market followed steel. At the close, decline of one to three points or more were registered in both speculative and investment issues.

Based upon average operations equal to about 61 per cent. of capacity during September, it was estimated that the Steel Corporation shipped approximately 800,000 tons of steel, while incoming business fell just short of the million-ton mark. These orders were about double the amount of new business booked in July, which was the dullest month this year.

The following table shows the amount of unfilled tonnage on the Steel Corporation's books at the close of each month for the last three years:

	1924.	1923.	1922.
September	3,473,780	5,065,750	4,601,907
August	3,289,577	5,414,663	5,960,051
July	3,187,072	5,010,763	5,776,181
June	3,262,505	6,386,261	5,635,551

October	4,672,835	6,902,387	4,130,820

The aggregate of unfilled orders carried on the books as of the close of July was the smallest reported at any time since 1911.

Rumors of Marland Oil Loan.

The Marland Oil Company is reported to be considering the floating of a $15,000,000 loan in the form of short-term notes. Bankers identified with the company's interests said they knew nothing about it. According to the report, the money presumably to be raised through a new loan would be used to finance oil in storage and to buy additional supplies of oil, which now is quoted at the lowest price since last year.

EXPECT A STRUGGLE OF GREAT RAILWAYS

Executives and Commerce Commission to Confer Today on Proposed Consolidations.

DUE TO NICKEL PLATE PLAN

Trouble Looked For in Grouping Trunk Lines into a Few Main Systems.

What was proposed as a friendly conference between railway executives and members of the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington today regarding the allocation of trunk line systems into four or five main trunk lines between Chicago and St. Louis in the West and the Atlantic Seaboard, may develop into a fight that will draw into it every principal railroad in this section of the country, according to information in the railroad district yesterday. Those in a position to know expect the meeting at Washington, about which there has been considerable secrecy, to pass off without any serious break but they assert that the questions which will arise are likely to cause trouble later.

Representatives of the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore & Ohio, and the Van Sweringen System are expected to attend the meeting in Washington today.

So far as could be learned yesterday no invitations have been issued to the heads of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, the Delaware & Hudson, or the Lehigh Valley. All of these are powerful railroads, directed by men who are not expected to sit idly by and watch the larger systems gobble up their properties. That they will make some trouble is almost a foregone conclusion. But it is expected that other difficulties also will arise from the plans which are to be presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission today.

According to the information which bankers have received, the meeting today grew out of the proposal of the Van Sweringens to consolidate the Erie, the Nickel Plate, the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Pere Marquette, and the Reading Valley into a single system. This system so disrupted the plans of the Interstate Commerce Commission that meetings of the heads of the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore & Ohio, and the Van Sweringen System have been held to work out some other plan of adjusting the Eastern trunk lines.

One point of contention which it is said is almost certain to arise at the meeting will be over the Lehigh Valley. The New York Central wants this property to give it another gateway to New York City. Objection to this is expected from the Pennsylvania Railroad. Should this objection be sustained the old question of New York Central getting the Central Railroad of New Jersey will be revived, and is certain to be followed by a revival of the fight between the New York Central and the Baltimore & Ohio for this property.

One report that received serious consideration in Wall Street yesterday was that the Lehigh Valley instead of being merged with the New York Central was more likely to take some other road this its fourth suitor. It was recalled that when officials of the Lehigh Valley were asked their attitude towards consolidations at a hearing a year ago, they suggested that the Lehigh Valley be permitted to take over the Michigan Central and that part of the Reading Railroad between Bethlehem and Philadelphia. Under this arrangement the Lehigh Valley would have one of the shortest lines between New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, with exceptional terminal facilities in both New York and Buffalo.

SOVIET TRADE SHOWS GAINS

Bureau Reports Big Increase in Foreign Business in Five Months.

Figures issued yesterday by the Amtorg Trading Corporation, representing in this country the Russian State Export and Import Bureau, show that Soviet Russia's imports and exports from Jan. 1 to June 1 totaled in value 190,517,000 rubles, using the prices of 1923 as a basis of valuation. This was equivalent to $100,000,000 in values of 1913. The value of Russia's foreign trade in the same period of 1923 was 77,172,000 rubles.

A substantial increase of imports of materials for industrial and manufacturing purposes was reported. The value of cotton exports increased from 5,825,000 rubles in the first five months of 1923 to 11,473,000 rubles in the corresponding period of 1924.

SUGAR SECURITIES DROP.

Rumors of Closing of Refineries Cause Slump in Stocks and Bonds.

Rumors persist in the financial district to the effect that some of the sugar companies in the metropolitan district contemplate closing their refineries because of the scarcity of raw sugar and the high prices. These reports caused further weakness in the sugar stocks and bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Warner Sugar first 7s of 1941 dropped more than ten points, from 98¾ to 88, and closed at 92, a net loss of 4¾ points for the day. On one sale these bonds broke 5¾ points from 97¾ to 92¼. The 7½s of 1939 dropped from 87 to 81 and closed at 83, down 5½ points for the day.

American Sugar common dropped 1¾ points net yesterday, while the stocks of many other sugar companies also were fractionally lower.

The reports were to the effect that the Federal Sugar Company was contemplating closing its Yonkers plant, and that Arbuckle Bros. would close their plant in Brooklyn. Neither report, however, was confirmed.

Show Deficit in Annual Report.

For the year to Aug. 31 Julius Kayser & Co. reports a deficit of $426,521 after all expenses, charges and reserves for depreciation and inventory adjustment. This compares with net income of $1,714,629 for the previous fiscal year, which, after preferred dividends, was equal to $3.08 a share earned on the 115,700 shares of common stock outstanding. The general balance sheet showed net current assets of $10,562,492, against net current liabilities of $842,100

BANKS FAIL TO FIX ON INTEREST RATE

Special Committee of the State Association Adjourns After Discussion Here.

COMPETITION IS SPIRITED

Rivalry Between Commercial and Savings Institutions Leads to Unusual Methods.

No decision on the policy to be followed by up-State banks with regard to a uniform adjustment of interest rates on commercial checking accounts has yet been reached, according to information obtained yesterday. The special committee of the New York State Bankers' Association was in session here Thursday, but adjourned again subject to call of the Chairman.

The principal obstacle to an agreement on interest rates is that the New York State Bankers' Association has no power to bring about the adoption of any set of recommendations which may be formulated by the committee charged with the task of offering a suitable remedy for the existing competitive conditions. This fact has led to the belief in banking quarters that any action taken by the committee will be purely voluntary in its results, and that a circular outlining suggestions for remedying the situation will probably be sent to the 1,100 banks which hold membership in the association. This will probably be decided at the next meeting of the committee.

Some banks, because of the pressure of competition, are now known to be paying interest at 4 per cent. and even more on deposits subject to check.

State Banking Superintendent George V. McLaughlin attended the session of the committee on Thursday, as did National Bank Examiner O. T. Reeve.

The competition between the commercial and savings banks is said to have become so keen that it has led to methods which are admitted by both to be at variance with the best banking practice. The interest of State and National banking officials in the discussions of the committee was said yesterday to be solely that of friendly advisers. No legislative action is contemplated, the matter being one which members of the Association, it was pointed out, must work out for themselves through the committee.

ARTIFICIAL GASOLINE PREDICTED IN 5 YEARS

French Scientists Declare Experiments Have Advanced Enough to Assure Success.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Before five years artificial gasoline will be a competitor of the natural product, says Daniel Berthelot, famous French chemist and son of Marcellin Berthelot, who himself in 1866 made the first successful experiments in this direction.

Daniel Berthelot is President of the Government committee appointed two years ago to study carburants, and under his direction the sub-committee on synthetic gasoline has constructed at Creil a laboratory, which will be opened next week and where experiments on an industrial scale will be carried out. At this laboratory all the results announced by independent scientists will be controlled, as well as all experiments and discoveries made in other countries; and new experiments also will be made.

Of independent discoveries, M. Berthelot considers those made by the chemist Maline, and jointly by Andry, Bourgeois and Oliver, the most important. Maline, using fish and nut oil as raw material, obtained the whole gamut of petrols, but for the realization of any commercial manufacture there would be necessary the creation of immense plantations of oil-bearing plants, with the additional cost of transport.

The process of Andry, Bourgeois and Oliver already has been described in these cables. Its basis is the manufacture of gas from the action of water on coke, which releases hydrogen and carbonic oxide as the first phase. The second phase, by hydrogenation, gives methane or marsh gas. The methane is converted into acetylene, which in turn is converted by catalysis into liquid hydrocarbon, that is to say, gasoline.

It is to this second method that M. Berthelot attaches the greatest importance, as the primary material will be lignite, of which large quantities are found in France. Of ultimate success he has no doubt.

"We will do for the commercial production of artificial gasoline exactly what has been done for the artificial production of nitrates," he says. "In less than five years you will see factories for the artificial production of motor spirit all over France, competing against the oil gushers of Texas, Mexico and Russia."

FRENCH ARE PROSPEROUS.

Jusserand, Back From France, Tells President of Conditions There.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—President Coolidge was told today by Jules Jusserand, French Ambassador, that the French people, generally, looked upon the Dawes reparation plan as sound, and expected it to solve the reparation problem and go a long way toward improving economic conditions in Europe.

M. Jusserand has just returned to Washington after a two months' vacation in France and called on the President to pay his respects. He described conditions in his country as more satisfactory than they had been in years. The people throughout the republic were happy and prosperous, he said. The export business had gone beyond all anticipation and the crops were huge. The only disturbing element in this rosy picture, the Ambassador said, was the high cost of living, which showed no signs at this time of being lowered.

RETAIL FOOD COSTS RISE.

Twenty of Twenty-one Cities Show Increases Ranging Up to 3 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Increases in retail food prices in the month ending Sept. 15 ranging up to 3 per cent. were shown in all but one of twenty-one cities for which figures were announced today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor. Butte, Mont., with a decrease of 1 per cent., was the only exception to the general increase in which Bridgeport, Conn.; Fall River, Mass.; Mobile, Ala., and New Haven, Conn., showed the maximum of 3 per cent.

Eighteen of the twenty-one cities showed decreases for the year ending Sept. 15, ranging up to 5 per cent.

WINNIPEG SLUMP PUTS WHEAT DOWN

Chicago Market Hit by Wave of Selling, Which Cuts May Option Heavily.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Scattered liquidation by longs developed in wheat after the market had shown considerable resistance to pressure early. A collapse in the Winnipeg market, with October off 11¾ cents from the high mark of the previous day, was responsible for a wave of selling which swept over the market toward the last and put the May down to $1.49⅝, or 7¼ cents under the recent top, and the finish was 2⅝@4¼ cents lower, while Winnipeg was off 4¼@6¼ cents, October leading.

The technical position was largely responsible for the break, an overbought condition being disclosed, and, while there was heavy buying at times to remove hedges against export sales of 500,000 to 1,000,000 bushels at the seaboard, many of the local operators are still holding off, anticipating that May will get down to around $1.47 before the market is a purchase again. Rumors of offers to resell or cancel wheat and rye for European account below a replacement basis could not be confirmed.

The seaboard bought 200,000 bushels hard Winter here, with charters for 250,000 bushels at 2 cents to Buffalo and 300,000 bushels at 9½ cents to Montreal.

A Canadian Government report, due today, when received was largely on the quality of the crops, no figures on yields being given up to a late hour. As compared with a ten-year average, the quality of wheat in Manitoba this season is 94 against an average of 84, while in Saskatchewan it is 90 against 92 and in Alberta 95 against 105.

Primary arrivals today were 3,512,000 bushels; week ago, 2,627,000; last year, holiday. Shipments were 3,086,000 bushels; week ago, 3,115,000.

Corn showed fair resistance to pressure as the result of a bullish construction placed on the Government report, but there was sufficient selling to offset this and the late break in wheat led to a decline, with the finish at net losses of 1½ to 1⅞ cents. Outside trade remains slow.

The country is selling new No. 3 yellow and white to arrive on a fair scale at 4 to 4½ cents under December for December and next year shipment.

Primary receipts today were 627,000 bushels; week ago, 748,000, and shipments, 278,000 bushels; week ago, 583,000.

Oats were 1½ to 2⅝ lower in sympathy with other grains. There was aggressive buying of rye credited to a leading local bull and also considerable short covering, but at the last prices were ⅝ to 1⅛ cents lower.

North American grain markets, with the exception of Minneapolis, Duluth and Winnipeg, will be closed Monday.

Embargo against shipments of grain to Duluth was lifted at midnight.

COTTON AGAIN DOWN AFTER EARLY RALLY

Advance of One-half Cent Brings Out New Selling Orders.

CROP MOVEMENT IS LARGE

In Sight Figures for the Week Aggregate 639,000, Against 1923 High of 813,000.

Pressure of liquidation slackened considerably yesterday and at one time the cotton market recovered half a cent. This brought out contracts from many commission house quarters where cotton had been carried over previous declines, and the action of both stocks and grain unsettled sentiment. Selling the last hour turned an earlier recovery of 40 to 50 points into a net loss of 1 to 7 points on the day. Spot houses did a large swapping business in the shape of purchasing March and May contracts against sales of December and January. The movement of the new crop was on the largest scale of the season, in-sight figures for the week aggregating 639,000, compared with 813,000, the largest single week last year. Spot transactions at Southern markets were fewer than 30,000 bales at generally unchanged quotations.

There was less weight on the foreign market throughout the day, and instead of continuing the downward movement, prices steadied and recovered all of Thursday's loss before the close abroad. So many mills were willing to purchase raw material after a sharp decline of 2 cents a pound that the tone of all three markets reflected a better adjustment between supply and demand in the contracts. Predictions of colder, unsettled weather in Western regions for today developed a covering movement both here and in New Orleans, with a steady gain in prices until a recovery of about half a cent had been recorded. The trade was closed on Monday, uncertainty over the character of weather the coming few days had a steadying effect. The rally, however, met cotton, and smaller spinners' takings, together with a break in both stocks and grains depressed the market during the afternoon. After selling above 24.30, January declined below 23.70. New Orleans broke sharply the last hour, losing all the earlier advance, with December selling around 26½ cents, or lower than Thursday's close.

Week-end figures showed 639,000 bales in sight, against 580,000 for the corresponding week a year ago and making 3,121,000 for the season, against 3,125,000 last year. Spinners took 298,000, compared with 354,000 a year ago, making 1,718,000 for the season, against 1,857,000 last year. This brought an increase in the visible supply of 340,000, compared with 226,000 last year, with a world's visible supply of American cotton of 2,354,000, against 2,138,000 a year ago.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
Oct.	24.75	25.00	24.40	24.54-60	24.81

WOOL TRADE HESITANT.

Pressure on Foreign Market and Buyers' Attitude Uncertain.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"Business has been spotty and in lessened volume this past week in the wool market; in fact, there is a distinct disposition to mark time and watch the course of events, especially in the foreign markets, where the financial strain of marketing wool is becoming more pronounced, so that the bankers are advising Australian selling brokers to cut down their offerings somewhat, and the close at London showed prices back to or slightly under the opening level.

"Even with these precautions, not a few observers predict lower prices in the colonies when the peak load of the season's offerings come forward. The feature of the week's trading has been an advance of about 2 cents in the price of quarter-blood fleeces to 57 cents for Ohios. Otherwise the market is not quotably changed.

"The manufacturing situation has shown further slight improvement, although not so much can be said for the clothing market, where the buying power and disposition of the man higher up is still a matter of conjecture. Nevertheless, the trade is disposed to view the future with more confidence."

Live Stock Markets at Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Hog prices advanced 10@30 cents, to a top of $11.85, equalling the best figure since 1921, while the average moved up 20 cents, to $11.25. Shipping demand remains good, with medium and heavy weight hogs in demand. Receipts of 18,000 made arrivals in five days 108,000, of which shippers have taken 30,000. Lambs were strong to 25 cents higher on a good Eastern shipping demand. The top on natives was $14, with no Western rangers offered. Receipts were 11,000. Yearlings and handy weight steers continue in demand and prices averaged somewhat higher. The top on yearlings was $11.75 and handy weights $11.35, while heavy steers were sold up to $11. Receipts were 4,000.

New Phone Station Open Tonight.

At midnight tonight Raymond, which will ultimately be one of the largest machine switching telephone central offices in the city, will be placed in operation by the New York Telephone Company in the company's building at 184th Street and Tiebout Avenue. The new office will serve in that section of the city lying generally between New York University and Fordham University.

Your Last Day To Register!

Unless you register before 10:30 o'clock this (Saturday) evening you cannot vote on Election Day, November 4.

Vote as a partisan if you wish, but register as a citizen. The soundest foundation upon which your Government can rest is the fullest exercise of the privilege of the ballot by the greatest number of citizens.

Register yourself—and see that every one in your family registers. The registration places in New York City are open today from 7 o'clock in the morning until 10:30 o'clock in the evening.

To register, you must have been a resident of the State one year, of the county four months, and of the election district 30 days, prior to Election Day.

Take your privilege—vote.

Do your duty—vote.

Register today!

M'ADOO CALLS JAM IN COURT INHUMAN

Chief City Magistrate Says Auto Parking Cases Have Created an Emergency.

NEW ROOM TO BE OPENED

Traffic Cases Also to Be Called for Varying Hours to Lessen the Rush and Save Time.

Chief City Magistrate William McAdoo replying yesterday to criticisms made Thursday before a legislative committee of conditions in the Traffic Court, admitted that the recent enormous increase in the number of cases had caused the two parts of the court to be "indecently, inhumanly and dangerously crowded" at times. He added, however, that responsibility for this condition should not be placed on the Magistrates presiding there, and said that a new court room was about to be fitted up in the old Police Headquarters building in Mulberry Street, where the Traffic Court is located.

"Until the police began the thoroughly justifiable crusade against the dangerous practice of parking cars in the streets, we had no great difficulty in handling the number of cases that came to this Court," the Chief Magistrate said. "It is quite true that the floor under the ordinary working conditions is not as large as it should be and, with the approval of the city authorities, we are about to fit up and open a new courtroom on the second floor, which will relieve the pressure of having so many people on one floor of the building.

"We are also arranging with Deputy Chief Inspector Henry, in charge of traffic, to have the summonses returnable at different hours, viz., 9 A. M., 11 A. M. and 2 P. M. No one realizes more than I do that since the beginning of these new activities on the part of the police this building, including the courtroom, has been at times indecently, inhumanly and dangerously crowded.

"The court attendants, the police and the Magistrate have done their best in handling at times as many as 2,000 people attending a morning session of this court, and they are entitled to my thanks and approval of what they have done.

"No one feels this more than I do when I see a number of citizens huddled in the hall, standing on the stairways, on such occasions inconvenienced, crowded, nervous, and of course, indignant, and in that condition liable to blame those of us who are in no way responsible for these conditions. These citizens, outside of the reckless and drunken drivers, are of course to be assumed as otherwise law abiding, not criminal or felonious, and to be treated decently and have their cases disposed of justly.

"We always have in view, not the interest of the class of car owners or drivers, manufacturers or agents, but the hard working people who constitute the majority of the people, who go about their business on foot and in public conveyances. These number millions as against the others, nd, as they have no organization or lawyers to represent them before committees, we, to a large extent, in connection with the police, are their sole protectors."

WOMEN HURT IN TERMINAL.

Swept From Empty Train While Trying to Avoid Crowds.

An accident resulting in serious injuries to two young women caused great excitement during the rush hour at 8:35 yesterday morning in the Grand Central Terminal. Sarah Aldrich, 24 years old, of 15 Fernbrook Street, Yonkers, and Catherine Sass, 19, of 13 Fernbrook Street, Yonkers, had just alighted from the Hudson Division train No. 210, on track 111 of the lower level, when they sought to avoid the congestion on the platform by passing through the open doors of a "deadhead" train on track 112 to the empty platform beyond. This is a common practice among commuters, several of whom had preceded the two girls. Just as they were about to step from the second train the motorman, W. C. Acker, started the cars slowly for the Mott Haven yards.

The girls, becoming frightened, failed to see a closed elevator shaft a few feet ahead almost flush with the train, which swept them down between the cars. Conductor L. Shattaffer and his brakeman, C. J. Winchell, returning from another train, saw the accident and, with the help of attendants, extricated the victims. They were taken to the emergency hospital of the station, where Dr. D. H. M. Gillespie administered first aid. Miss Aldrich was removed to New York Hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the left leg above the knee. Miss Sass, still unconscious, was removed to Bellevue Hospital. Miss Aldrich's condition was said last night to be satisfactory, as she had shown remarkable vitality in withstanding the shock. Bellevue officials reported Miss Sass's condition as grave, her skull having been fractured.

Both girls have been employed as saleswomen in this city. Miss Aldrich having for the past five months been with Arnold, Constable & Co. The train they took each morning often carries 1,000 commuters, and some delay is inevitable from the congestion in the ramp leading to the concourse. Railroad officials said yesterday that for years the company had tried to prevent passengers from attempting to save time by crossing over through "deadhead" trains to empty platforms. It was pointed out, however, that, considering the 25,000 persons arriving daily at the terminal, accidents have been very rare, as motormen of "deadhead" trains are instructed always to start slowly in pulling out of the station.

CUBANS HERE CELEBRATE.

Hold Series of Services in Honor of Their Independence Day.

Cubans in New York observed their Independence Day yesterday with several services and celebrations in honor of Cuba's Declaration of Independence on Oct. 10, 1868.

In the morning the Comite Pro-Cuba raised the Cuban and American flags on the Waldorf-Astoria. Religious services were held at the Spanish church of Our Lady of Hope, Riverside Drive and 156th Street. Following this a reception was held at the Waldorf. Late in the afternoon Felipe Tahoda, Consul General of Cuba; H. J. Medrano, Vice Consul, and L. Serapa, President of the Comite Pro-Cuba, received representatives of the various foreign Governments.

A formal supper and ball were held at the Hotel Alamac, Broadway and Seventy-first Streets.

WHEELER IN OAKLAND REPEATS BANK CHARGE

Radio Carries His Second Request That Some One Ask Coolidge to Withdraw.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler reached San Francisco today and in the evening made an address at Oakland, across the bay. He restated his allegation of corruption in Republican official circles in Washington, and again called upon some Republican to ask President Coolidge to withdraw from the race because he had failed to reply to the Senator's charge about Coolidge's alleged relations with the Cosmopolitan Bank of Boston.

The speech of La Follette's running mate was sent out by the Oakland wireless station, and the Progressive leaders said that in this way it had reached hundreds of thousands of voters in the Western States.

During the day Senator Wheeler took an automobile ride and later rested in his car. The Senator has been worn out by hard campaigning, but felt better today and was restive under the restraint.

There was much speculation about the probability of a meeting between Senator Wheeler and Senator Hiram Johnson, who, up to this time, has taken no active part in the campaign. The Progressives have been hopeful that Johnson would leave the Republican Party and come out in support of La Follette and Wheeler.

Senator Wheeler was met here with the hopeful prediction that the Progressive Party would get a majority in the northern part of the State where Senator Johnson has always been strongest. There is concern, however, about Los Angeles County and the country to the south. The Republicans seem confident that Coolidge will have a comfortable majority in the State and betting odds are about 2 to 1.

While Senator Wheeler was resting during the day Mrs. Wheeler addressed an afternoon meeting. She told her audience that polls taken in Washington, D. C., "where the people know President Coolidge and Senator La Follette," were heavily in favor of La Follette, and that got a cheer.

Senator Wheeler will speak twice in San Francisco tomorrow and then turn south to Los Angeles and San Diego.

ADMITS DOUBLE MURDER.

Wife, 23 Years Old, Says She Shot Her Husband's Parents.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Winona Green, 23 years old, of Pueblo, Col., confessed last night, after more than twenty hours of questioning, according to the police, that she had killed J. R. Green and his wife, Lena, who were her husband's parents.

She said her motive was to recover $4,000 her mother-in-law had borrowed, said the police. Her husband, Leroy, who was arrested with her when she returned from Pueblo two days ago, was absolved from guilty knowledge of the murders.

Green was shot in a railroad cut here on Aug. 16, after she had waited there for him to pass, said Mrs. Green's confession, as announced by the police, and Mrs. Green was shot near Redfork, Okla., Sept. 25.

The murder of Mr. Green remained a mystery until investigation of that of his wife led them to suspect the young Mrs. Green, said the police. The only clue in the killing of Mr. Green was a number of loaded cartridges found near his body. A woman who lived near where he was slain told the police that she had seen a man leaning over his body.

Budapest Releases Heinrich Schulz.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 10.—The Minister of Justice has instructed the judicial authorities to release Heinrich Schulz, alias Foerster, alleged by the German authorities to have participated in the assassination of Mathias Erzberger, the German Finance Minister, in August, 1921.

CORONA SALE TODAY.

Nine Hundred and Twenty-seven Lots to Go at Absolute Auction.

The absolute auction sale of 927 lots in the Corona-Flushing district of Queens, directly along and on both sides of Roosevelt Avenue extension of the Corona division of the Queensboro subway and including approximately a mile frontage on Northern Boulevard (Jackson Avenue), is one of the most important sales of lots held in the City of New York in several years. This sale will begin today at 2 P. M. on the premises, rain or shine, and, unless all of the lots are sold at the first session, the sale will be continued at the same time and place Monday (Columbus Day).

The auctioneer is Joseph P. Day, who in the last ten years has held a great number of important lot sales along the route of the Queensboro subway, as also in the Elmhurst, Corona and Flushing sections of Queens.

The 927 lots to be sold constitute the sole barrier to the practical consolidation of Corona and Flushing now that the Corona subway is being extended from the Alburtis Avenue terminus station across these Corona-Flushing subway lots to Main Street, Flushing.

PLANS A TALL LOFT.

Twelve-Story Structure for Thirty-third Street Sites

William Lowenstein of the St. Regis Restaurant Company has acquired for his personal investment from the Farmers Loan and Trust Company, as executor and trustee of Mary J. Odell, the parcel at 50 and 52 West Thirty-third Street, between Fifth Avenue and Broadway, immediately adjoining the Hotel Martinique.

This plot, which is 40 feet wide and 98 feet 9 inches in depth, was held at $300,000, and the property was sold at that price for all cash, being free and clear.

Mr. Lowenstein's purpose in acquiring the plot was to establish a modern high-class restaurant on this street, which will occupy the ground floor, mezzanine and basement in a twelve-story store and loft building which he will erect as soon as title is taken, the plans for which are being prepared by Louis Allen Abramson, architect.

The proposed cost of the building, excluding the cost of outfitting the restaurant, will be $300,000. L. A. Birck of the Birck Realty Corporation acted as broker on behalf of the trust company; Harvey B. Newins acted as broker for the purchaser and Joseph G. Abramson acted as attorney for Mr. Lowenstein.

TO BUILD 200 HOMES.

William F. Chatios Plans Big Broadway-Flushing Operation.

The Rickert-Brown Realty Company sold to William F. Chatios, operating as the Stiles Realty Corporation, 246 lots in Broadway-Flushing for $270,600, on which he will immediately erect approximately 200 one-family dwellings to sell for from $10,000 to $12,000 each. The property lies on Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-first and Thirty-second Streets, between Broadway and Queens Avenue.

Mr. Chatios has just completed on the Rickert-Brown Company properties in Astoria 572 one and two family houses, all of which have been sold before completion.

Buys Single-Family House.

Mrs. Helen Shearman Gus has purchased the single-family convertible house at 80 Thirtieth Street, Jackson Heights, and will take possession immediately.

Win Princeton Scholarships.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 10.—The Lyman Biddle scholarships were announced here today by Secretary V. Lansing Collins. The senior scholar is Paul S. Havens of Lawrenceville, N. J., a member of the Senior Council and of Phi Beta Kappa. Alexander McKnight Richards of Chicago received the junior scholarship. The scholarships are worth the interest on $40,000 and are awarded each year on a basis similar to the Rhodes scholarships.

DEAL INVOLVES $1,000,000

Manport Realty Company Resells Two Multi-Family Structures—Private Houses Sold.

An apartment house operation involving an investment of $1,000,000 will be undertaken on Riverside Drive as the result of the purchase yesterday by builders of a site having a frontage of 65 feet.

Clement and Fabian Crystal, sons of the late Moses Crystal, purchased the three private dwellings known respectively as 37, 38 and 39 Riverside Drive, occupying a plot 65 by 100, irregular, and comprising the northeast corner of Seventy-sixth Street.

The buyers will demolish the present dwellings and erect thereon a fifteen-story fireproof apartment house, containing suites of six and eight rooms, with three and four baths on each floor, on plans by Schwartz & Gross, architects. The operation involves over $1,000,000. Sharp, Nassoit & Lanning, Inc., acted as brokers and assembled the plot. All cash above the first mortgages was paid for the property.

Apartment House Trading.

The six-story apartment house at 628 West 160th Street, on a plot 100 by 100 feet, was resold by the Manport Realty Company, I. Portman, President, to the Empire City Realtors Corporation. The structure was held at $225,000 and returns an annual rental of approximately $45,000.

The Manport Realty Company has also resold to Gertrude L. Bleckman the Monte Cristo, a seven-story elevator apartment house, with stores, at the northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and 123d Street. It is known as 157 West 123d Street, and occupies a frontage of 60 feet on the avenue and 105 feet on the street. The property was valued at $175,000 and returns an annual rental of about $34,000.

Simon C. Bernstein sold the three tenements, consisting of one six-story and two five-story tenements at 26 Second Avenue, between First and Second Streets. Leon S. Altmayer was the broker. The property has been in the hands of the present seller since 1906, when he purchased it from George F. Johnson.

The property had been in the Johnson family for more than 100 years. The size of the property is 26 by 100 by 45.2 by 102 feet.

Premises 134 and 136 Eighth Avenue, two four-story buildings, on a plot 34 by 60, were sold by the Bradish Johnson estate through the Duroas Company; also sold 118 Charlton Street, a three-story and three-family house, for Banny B. Kasper to Arturo De Gennaro, and also sold 251 West Twenty-first Street, a four-story house, on a lot 16.9 by 98.9, for Mary Tiernan to Josef Nystad.

John Peters sold for Gertrude Hess, executrix, to Frank Kosynsky 536 East Sixth Street, a five-story tenement on a lot 23 by 97 feet.

Pasquale Viscardi sold to Pasquale Tarangelo the six-story flat with stores at 314 East 106th Street, 37.6 by 100.11.

The four-story dwelling at 240 West 130th Street, 32.4 by 99.11, has been sold by Estelle Washington to F. Lannin.

The five-story tenement with stores at 412 East Sixty-fourth Street, 25 by 100.5, has been sold by Samuel Selman to Henry L. Crehan.

Private Dwelling Sales.

Mrs. A. Hofheimer sold her residence at 23 West Seventy-sixth Street, a five-story dwelling 33 feet front by 102.2 deep. The purchaser is E. Ankus, an attorney. The property was held at $155,000. Slawson & Hobbs, in conjunction with Ward Realty Company, were the brokers.

The Benenson Realty Company resold the private dwelling at 308 East Fiftieth Street to Anna Brenner, the tenant. The sellers acquired the property two weeks ago from the estate of Moses Sahlein. It is on a lot 18.6 by 80 and has been occupied by the buyer for many years. Isaac Strauss was the broker.

The Benenson Realty Company has purchased from the C. A. M. Realty Corporation the private dwelling at 130 West Eighty-sixth Street, on a lot 20 by 166.10 and held at $65,000.

John J. Meenan, Inc., resold the four-story and basement dwelling, 20 by 100, at 48 West Sixty-eighth Street, recently purchased by Mrs. Ida Mills, to Joseph M. Levine.

The estate of Moses Sahlein sold the four-story brownstone dwelling house at 221 West Fourteenth Street, also 25 by 100 feet, to Mrs. Ida Horelmann at $45,000. This property has been held for over sixty years by the family of the late Moses Sahlein. The broker was Isaac Strauss.

Realty Notes.

The New York Edison Company proves to be the purchaser of the plot, 55 by 98.9 feet, at 308 to 312 West Thirty-sixth Street, running through to 311 West Thirty-fifth Street, 19.6 by 98.9, recently reported sold.

The offices of the Real Estate Board of New York, 7 Dey Street, will be closed on Monday, Oct. 13.

The Chatavney Realty Company is the buyer of the six-story apartment house at 540 and 542 West 146th Street.

Lawrence, Blake & Jewell are the brokers who arranged the permanent financing of the Varick Street Post Office, 34-50 Varick Street, which was recorded yesterday at $3,000,000. Of this amount $2,000,000 has now been issued by P. W. Chapman & Co., with the provision that the additional amount may be issued later, if additions are made to the present structure. The same brokers originally handled the financing for the construction of this building and have now under the new financing arranged the permanent loan to run for seventeen years.

Tenant Owners Acquire Title.

Title has been acquired by the Number Eight Hundred Park Avenue Corporation, representing tenants who purchased cooperative suites in the fourteen-story structure at the northwest corner of Park Avenue and Seventy-fourth Street, recently completed by the E. D. L. Corporation, Electus D. Litchfield, President.

The transfer was made subject to a mortgage for $224,000.

The house is from plans by Litchfield & Rogers, who estimated its cost at $550,000. Mr. Litchfield will occupy one of the suites.

Bronx Borough Sales.

The Benenson Realty Company has purchased from Frederick C. Asendorf and John Bunke the five-story tenement at 450 East 139th Street. The property is on a plot 41.8 by 100 and has all improvements. It was held at $65,000. The broker in the transaction was Frank J. Derr.

Anthony F. Eufemia sold for the Oakley Construction Company a two-family brick dwelling on a plot 30 by 100 at 3,805 Bainbridge Avenue, held at $27,000, to S. Gommi.

THE BROOKLYN MARKET.

Apartment Houses and Private Dwellings Are in Demand.

Apartment houses and private dwellings erected by William H. Calder Company were sold recently in their new development at Nostrand Avenue and Beverly Road. The sales indicate that there is still a very great demand for houses in this section of Brooklyn. The sales were as follows: A sixteen-family house at 2,903 Beverly Road to M. H. Levin, an eight-family house at 101 East Twenty-ninth Street to Elizabeth Witten, three six-family houses, 1,640 Nostrand Avenue to Joseph Milion, 1,641 Nostrand Avenue to Philip G. Kee, 1,648 Nostrand Avenue to Phillip G. Kee, and five two-family and store, 1,663 Nostrand Avenue to Joseph Cincotta, 1,661 Nostrand Avenue to Eveline Meretreau, 1,657 Nostrand Avenue to G. and M. Paterno, 1,653 Nostrand Avenue to Catherine Kroos, and 1653 Nostrand Avenue to J. and M. Conaty.

Morris Cukor purchased for his client, Charles Cantasano, the private dwelling at 901 East Eighth Street, 32 by 100. It is to be enlarged and improved for the occupancy of the new owner.

ORPHAN HOUSE BUYS.

Two Dwellings in East 34th Street Sold by Mrs. M. R. Knox.

Maria R. Knox sold to the trustees of the Leake and Watts Orphan House, now at 263 Greene Street, the two five-story buildings 318 and 320 East Thirty-fourth Street.

They each occupy a lot 23.9 by 98.9, located between First and Second Avenues.

The home of the Friendly Aid Society is at the northwest corner of First Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street.

Operators Sell Interest.

A. H. Levy and Harry Rutheiser, operators, sold a one-third interest in the block front on the east side of Twelfth Avenue, between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth Streets, which they recently leased for a period of seventy-one years from the estates of Charles E. and J. S. Appleby. The purchasers are William Solomon & Sons, Sigmund Solomon, President, builders. The owning syndicate plans either to resell the site or improve it for tenants. The property measures 200 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on each street.

$2,000,000 Real Estate Loan.

According to a building loan contract filed with County Clerk James A. Donegan, the Equitable Trust Company will lend to the Millinery Centre Building Corporation, of which Chas. J. Cohen is President, $2,000,000 on the property situated at the northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street. On this site is to be erected a twenty-two-story commercial building.

New Rochelle Estate Sold.

Julia Weinberg, broker, sold to Martha F. Gluck the Putzel estate in Beechmont Park, New Rochelle, consisting of a house of fifteen rooms, four baths and a four-car garage with about one and a half acres. The property was held for $40,000 and was sold for all cash.

Automobile Showroom Leased.

Brett & Wyckoff leased the automobile showroom at 258 East Fifty-seventh Street, in the Colonnade Building, to A. W. von Meister, who is the United States agent for the Mabach Motor Company, the automobile subsidiary of the Zeppelin Air Ship Company.

Every tenant becomes a part owner of the entire property.
Every dollar paid above actual operating costs and interest is invested instead of spent.
You receive ownership, much instead of worthless rent receipts.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Western disturbance has moved slowly eastward and its centre was over extreme Eastern Utah Friday night. This disturbance has been attended by local rains in the North Pacific and Rocky Mountains and northern plateau regions. A disturbance of marked intensity was central over Eastern Alaska Friday morning, whence it will move southeastward. Eagle reported a barometer reading of 28.90 inches and pressure is also relatively low over Southern Florida and in the West Indies and Bermuda. It is high along the Missouri Valley and Saskatchewan eastward to the Atlantic Coast. In addition to the precipitation already specified, showers have occurred within the last twenty-four hours in Florida and Eastern Kansas.

The temperature was slightly higher Friday in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States and upper Ohio Valley, the lower lake region, the Plain States, and the southern Rocky Mountains, while cooler weather overspread the plateau region, Montana and Wyoming.

The weather will remain generally fair without material change in temperature in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States and upper Ohio Valley, during the next two days, except that unsettled, showery weather will continue in Florida.

COURTESY-WIRE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

CITY TO PAY COST OF BIG PARK PLAN

Riverside Extension Project From 72d to 129th, to Be Paid for in Five Years.

TRACKS TO GO UNDER ROOF

Action of Estimate Board Brings Improvement a Long Step Nearer Achievement.

The Board of Estimate yesterday by unanimous vote adopted a resolution offered by Controller Charles L. Craig, providing for placing upon the City of New York the entire cost of the proposed improvement known as the Riverside Park extension from Seventy-second to 129th Street. Another resolution, fixing only 90 per cent. of the cost upon the city and the remaining 10 per cent. upon the local area deemed to be peculiarly benefited, was rejected.

As adopted, the resolution provides for the levying of the cost of the great improvement upon the city "in five equal annual instalments, the first beginning with the first tax levy subsequent to the date of confirmation of the report of the Board of Assessors for the entire improvement."

According to Controller Craig this action by the board brings the proposed Riverside Park plan one long step nearer to ultimate achievement. It contemplates the conversion of the entire area bounded by the streets named and extending from Riverside Drive right down to a new breakwater along the shoreline of the Hudson River, into one gigantic and beautiful park. The Controller's description of the project says:

"It involves four elements, namely, a promenade or esplanade along a sea wall from Seventy-second Street to 129th Street; a new drive constructed as a roof over the New York Central Railroad tracks and approximately paralleling the present Riverside Drive from the Fort Lee Ferry to Seventy-second Street, and continuing southward as a viaduct along Twelfth Avenue over the New York Central yards to Fifty-seventh Street, with which connection is made at grade between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues; the removal of the garbage dumps, coal pockets, piers and other unsightly and commercial structures, and the landscaping of the area of park lands between the sea wall and the new driveway."

No definite estimate of the total cost of the enterprise has yet been made. Much will depend upon the terms which the city may arrive at with the New York Central Railroad, as the proposed decking over of its tracks is one of the most costly features of the plan. It will be necessary also, before beginning actual work, to have in active cooperation the Borough President's office and the several city departments affected, such as the Docks, Parks and Street Cleaning Departments.

FOREIGNERS RESENT WAR NOTES OF PEKING

Regard Use of Custom Revenues as Unneutral—Chang to Have Own Foreign Office.

Copyright, 1924, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 10.—The news that the Peking Government is enabled to issue Treasury notes for $4,200,000, which Sir Francis Aglen, Inspector General of Maritime Customs, has consented to be secured by the custom revenues, which were earmarked for the German Boxer indemnity, and which lapsed owing to the world war, was received today with something akin to consternation in Shanghai business circles.

Although Sir Francis Aglen may say he is obliged to make this step as a servant of the Peking Government, no Chinese will believe for a moment that it is not done without the Diplomatic Corps' approval. This seems to bring the power into direct collision with Chang Tsolin in Manchuria, and many say that imperils the whole structure of the customs service.

Already Chang has threatened to seize the Manchurian customs in retaliation for this loan to Peking. If the powers take measures to prevent him, they will virtually be making war on him in favor of Peking, it is said. If they leave him a free hand, it is asserted that it will not be long before other provinces copy his example.

The Peking Government is short of money to pay the interest on the bonds in the hands of the British holders of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway. They tried hard to appropriate the necessary money from the accumulated funds of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway. This was stopped, and now they are proposing to pledge the bonds of the German half of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway in the London market in order to pay the British bondholders. The attitude of the British Legation is that it is better to do this than to allow Peking to default.

It is said that the best business opinion in Shanghai is utterly opposed to such a step, apart from the original stipulations of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway loan agreement in Peking on Dec. 10, with its specific promise to set aside a fixed portion of the earnings to pay bondholders. The public asks, What has become of this money?

To enable Peking now to raise a loan is held to be to facilitate its evasion of obligations and to commit an act which is a breach of neutrality, as any money now supplied to the Peking Government means so much more for guns and soldiers for Wu Pei-fu. Moreover, it is asserted, no attempt is being made to pay the long outstanding debts of the railways for material supplied.

TOKIO, Oct. 10 (Associated Press).—Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian military director, has taken another step in his efforts to set up a separate Government for Manchuria, by the establishment in Mukden of a Foreign Office for the three Eastern provinces, according to a dispatch from Mukden to the Kokusai News Agency.

Under plans as stated in the news dispatch, the new Foreign Office will transact all diplomatic business for Manchuria independently of the Central Government at Peking.

Manchuria includes three provinces—Shengking (Fengtien), Kirin and Heilungkiang—which before the Chinese revolution, thirteen years ago today, composed the viceroyalty of the three eastern provinces. The population of the three provinces is reliably estimated at over 22,000,000.

Since the civil war in 1922, in which Marshal Chang Tso-lin was defeated by the Central Government forces, Manchuria has been under his military dictatorship, though not recognized by the world powers as a separate country.

How Nature, in her hidden laboratories, created a natural "anti-knock" gasoline

Motorists are now being told that they must pay extra for gasoline in order to stop motor knocks. Tydol users save that extra money. If you use Tydol consistently, it is unnecessary to doctor your gasoline or pay more than the regular price per gallon. Tydol is a natural anti-knock gasoline.

* * * *

You know from experience that automobile motor knocks are destructive. You know that they steal power, pound your bearings, rack your car and lead to big repair bills.

But perhaps you don't know that motor knocks can be eliminated in a simple, natural way—a way that does not add a premium to the cost of your gasoline.

As nature produces different kinds of crude petroleum oils, it follows that different types of crudes yield different kinds of gasolines. Of all these crudes there is one which yields gasoline famous for its natural anti-knock qualities. It is from this particular crude, by special processing, that Tydol is refined at the Tide Water Refinery at Bayonne, N. J. That is why Tydol is a natural anti-knock gasoline.

Next time you need gas, fill up at a Tydol pump. Prove to yourself that Tydol eliminates knocks. And pay no more than the regular price per gallon.

TYDOL
ECONOMY GASOLINE
For full Tydol economy use Veedol motor oil

Scientific tests prove TYDOL a natural anti-knock gasoline

Knocking in an engine is caused by the gasoline mixture exploding too quickly or too violently. There is no knock if the mixture burns progressively and evenly.

The Midgley Indicator, a remarkable scientific instrument, enables us to photograph the progress of the explosion of a gasoline mixture in the combustion chamber.

Explosion of ordinary mixture—The above graph shows the explosion of an ordinary gasoline mixture. The jagged points indicate violent, uneven burning, the cause of motor knocks.

Explosion of Tydol mixture—This graph shows how a Tydol mixture explodes. The smooth, even curve denotes progressive combustion. There is no tendency to knock.

NOTE: Tydol, of course, will not eliminate knocking in motors which are defective mechanically.
